INTER-FRAT TEAMS REPORT FOR RELAYS

Races Run Same As Last Year With Pentathlon Scoring; Hope for Fast Events

The annual interfraternity relays will be run off Monday of next week according to Coach Schulte.

They will be run on the same basis as last year and teams which are to be entered should report to the athletic office.

Delta Tau Delta were the victors of last year's relays, winning the 8 lap, 12 lap, and the medley relays.

with Alpha Tau Omega second and Phi Kappa Alpha third. The Deltas score was 7 points.

The fraternities have been well represented on the track since the interfraternity track met and should be in good shape to make the relays the fastest that have been run.

It is the hope of Coach Schulte to make the relay some of the biggest meets of the year and encourages all fraternities to enter teams.

The races will be run on the indoor track under the stadium.

Two Nine-Piece Orchestras Play at Pan-Hellenic Ball, Last of Formals

"Grecian Extravaganza" Planned As Outstanding Social Event Of Year; Twenty Prizes Form Portion of Entertainment

Two nine-piece orchestras, the Colonians and Becks, with continuous music throughout the evening, will feature the annual Pan-Hellenic Ball, which closes the formal season next Friday at the Scottish Rite Temple.

This novel idea is being introduced for the first time at the university social functions.

Corsages will be barred from the affair, the committee agreed at a meeting held last Sunday.

This will be in accordance with the custom set at the beginning of the formal season when the announcement was made that no corsages would be worn at the Military Ball.

Prizes For Lucky Numbers Twenty prizes will be awarded to the lucky persons holding the prize-winning numbers in the drawing to be held during the evening.

A numbered program will be given to each person as he enters the hall.

Two separate drawings will be held as the twenty prizes will be distributed equally to the men and women.

Plans were completed by the committee in charge at a meeting last Sunday afternoon at the Sigma Chi house.

The slogan "Something new and different every minute" is being followed out in detail to make the "Grecian Extravaganza" one of the outstanding events of the social year.

Relics of Stone Age Found

Word has been received from Boreas, 15 miles from Richmond, Va., of discoveries made at an ancient fort on top of a mountain, which indicates people of the Stone Age lived, fought and died there.

Mummies Discovered in Athens

A recent flood in Athens uncovered 20 ancient tombs, in five of which mummies were found.

The rocks of eastern Nebraska, like those which are found so generally in the northern part of the United States, were carried down by active glaciers which came from the north, bringing with them rocks and boulders which they deposited on the plains over which they passed.

"It is believed," remarked the speaker, "that these rocks which are found in Nebraska probably came from the Sioux Falls Ledge in South Dakota, which is composed of Sioux Quartzite."

Determine Rate of Movement The formation of glaciers, their action and movement and the effects that they have upon the territory over which they move were discussed and some very beautiful slide of glaciers and the debris that they carry were shown.

GRID PRACTICE STARTS MONDAY

Husker Line Weakened by Loss Of Regulars, but Talent Among Freshmen

EQUIPMENT READY NOW

The equipment for spring football was ready to be checked out Monday, and candidates will be able to get their suits and lockers the rest of this week.

Practice will start on Monday, March 15 at 3:30.

The Huskers line has been considerably weakened by the loss of Weir, Hutchinson, Westoupl and Dover.

However, a good number of experienced men are available from last year's varsity squad, and some good year's freshmen, who will be eligible for competition next fall.

Center Is Weakest

The loss of two centers has left this position the weakest in the line. Some men may be shifted from other positions to fill this gap.

Merle Suyer is the only regular candidate for center that remains with the squad. There is an abundance of guards, though, among whom are Frank Pospisil, Clarence Raish, Walter Scholz, Roy Mandery, Robert Whitmore, Merrill Reller, Reuben Manske, Carl Naffziger, and G. R. Fish.

The tackles are not so numerous, although many guards can play this position also. Captain-elect Alonzo Stiner, Cecil Molzen, and Walter Scholz have played this position considerably.

The ends are Leon Sprague, Joe Weir, Vinton Lawson, and Dorsey McIntyre.

Freshmen Make Good Showing

The freshman squad shows considerable promise. Some of the men who are expected to make a good showing are:

Centers: Hague, Reeves, Holmes, and Grow.

Guards: Krause, Sopher, Drath, Gates, Wood, McMullen, and Still.

Tackles: Durisch, Lucas, Harbaugh, Hunt, and Cast.

Ends: Skinner, Higgins, and Krall.

FARMER'S FAIR WORKERS MEET

Committee Chairmen and Board Gather To Speed Plans

Prof. C. W. Smith of the Agricultural Engineering department will be the main speaker on the program at the meeting of committee chairmen and the Farmers' Fair Board, Tuesday evening, in room 206 in the Home Economics building at 6 o'clock.

The program will be short and snappy throughout, and it is hoped that every chairman of a committee will be present in order to get the work of the fair moving as rapidly as possible at this time.

Rocks and Boulders in Nebraska Are Brought Down From North by Glacier

"The pink rocks and small boulders found in various parts of Lincoln and nearby country may well be called 'lost rocks', since they are so far from their place of origin," stated Marjorie Shanafelt, secretary to Professor Barbour, in an address at the Museum, Sunday afternoon, on "Lost Rocks."

The rocks of eastern Nebraska, like those which are found so generally in the northern part of the United States, were carried down by active glaciers which came from the north, bringing with them rocks and boulders which they deposited on the plains over which they passed.

"It is believed," remarked the speaker, "that these rocks which are found in Nebraska probably came from the Sioux Falls Ledge in South Dakota, which is composed of Sioux Quartzite."

Determine Rate of Movement The formation of glaciers, their action and movement and the effects that they have upon the territory over which they move were discussed and some very beautiful slide of glaciers and the debris that they carry were shown.

One interesting fact that was emphasized was that the bodies of persons who have fallen in to fissures of glaciers eventually reappear; and since geologists can reckon the rate at which the glaciers move, they can determine when the bodies will reappear. One case that was mentioned was that of a party of eight all of whom fell into the fissure of a glacier in 1820, and whose bodies did not reappear until 1861, after having moved 69,000 feet.

Find Animals in Ice "Various animals, particularly the woolly elephants, have been found preserved in blocks of ice," said the lecturer, "which gives an idea of the kind of animals which lived at the time that these glaciers, which made them prisoners, came down and entrapped them."

The tinted slides used to illustrate this lecture were particularly beautiful and were very interesting in connection with the address.

"The Salton Sea in the Desert of the Colorado" is the subject of the address which will be given by Frank Shoemaker, at the Museum, next Sunday afternoon, March 14, at three and at four o'clock. Frederick Collins will speak on "Half an Hour in Other People's Shoes," on March 21, and the last Sunday in the month, March 28, Marjorie Shanafelt will speak on "Living Gold."

PLAYERS NEXT PRODUCTION IS ASIATIC DRAMA

"He Who Gets Slapped" Begins Thursday Night; Plan Five Performances

ADVANCE SALES HEAVY

Andrejev Is Intellectual Skeptic, Trying to Understand Life; Play Very Intense

The University Players will present the four-act drama, "He Who Gets Slapped," by Leonid Andrejev, for five performances this week-end, March 11, 12, and 13, at the Temple theater.

An extra matinee will be given Friday afternoon at 2:30 because of the heavy advance ticket sale.

The play, in spite of its French setting, is Asiatic in its atmosphere, Asiatic in its plot, and in its attempt to peer in to the metaphysical mysteries.

Andrejev's Work Symbolic The author of the play is a famous Russian playwright. John Macy, in his "Story of the World's Literature," says of Andrejev:

Andrejev is known as an intellectual skeptic, not fighting with life, but trying to understand it, and turning on it in the light of disillusion and doubt. His best stories, "The Seven That Were Hanged," and "The Red Laugh," are terrible in their intensity and his plays, "The Life of Man," and "He Who Gets Slapped," are pessimistic symbolism of a strain that is almost too sad even for Russia. It is said that the performance of "The Life of Man," in its sinister gloom caused many suicides among the students of Leningrad."

Seats may be reserved at the R. P. Curtice Music store. The admission fee to the play will remain as usual, seventy-five cents for the evening, and fifty cents for the matinee.

SOCIAL WORK IS TOPIC OF STUDY

Prof. Cameron Observes Similar Problems in All Northern Nebraska Counties

(University News Service)

Similar social problems of health, dependency, delinquency, and recreation were observed in practically all of the northern counties of Nebraska, through which Miss Anna M. Cameron, University of Nebraska Extension Division instructor in social work, made a three-week lecture and conference tour in February.

In some counties one problem was more acute than another. Miss Cameron returned last week, and is now compiling a report of her investigations which will be broadcast March 9 and 19, and published later for general distribution.

Sixteen counties in the sixth district were surveyed on the tour which was made for the three-fold purpose of collecting information regarding general social conditions and the local resources for handling the problems; of finding ways in which the University Extension Division, the State department of public welfare, the state conference of social workers, and other agencies can direct local efforts for more effective service; and of organizing informal committees for the state bureau of child welfare.

One of the most common problems is the boarding situation produced by the consolidated high schools in big counties where many of the students' homes are as far as thirty and forty miles away. Unsupervised boarding conditions, Miss Cameron found, created serious problems. The communities are alive to the problem and are trying to solve it.

At Bassett a county-owned dormitory for twenty girls has been operated for the past five years as an experiment.

Supervise Case-Work Family case-work is being adequately handled in Dodge county, where Miss Laura Rhone, former secretary of the Red Cross, has been engaged by the county supervisors to investigate thoroughly all families which receive aid from the county to find out if additional service can be rendered the destitute family which will help it get back on its feet.

Miss Rhone is also adult probation officer so that practically all the social work of the county is cleared through the same office in Fremont.

This centralization, Miss Cameron thinks, takes poor relief out of the realm of mere financial aid and enables the worker to solve the family problems and families to aid themselves. In Iowa many counties have such full-time workers. Dodge county is the only one in Nebraska. As is the case of the dormitory at Bassett, other counties feel the need of the work but are not yet quite ready to undertake it.

University Art Club Presents Its Third Annual Exhibit in Library

N Men and Helpers In Tourney Meet Tonight

All Displayed Work Shows Wider Variety of Talent; Alumni and Active Members of Organization Represented in Collection

The third annual exhibit of the Art Club of the University of Nebraska is being given this week at the Art Gallery, on the second floor of the Library. The exhibition will last until March 14.

The works displayed, which were all done by active or alumni members of the University Art Club, shows a wider variety of talent than previous exhibits. There are examples of illustrations, posters, lettering, applied design, interior decorating, composition, china painting, modelling, craftwork, and photographs, done in charcoal, pen and ink, water colors, and oil.

The sixty active members of the Art Club are all represented in the collection. Since its purpose is merely to display the talent of the students, there are no prizes offered for the best exhibits.

The Art Club is an honorary organization for students in the Fine Arts College. Membership is based on scholastic standing and the votes of the active members. The purpose of the club is to further work in Fine Arts in the University.

Child Tells How Father Killed Boa Constrictor to Save Trainer's Life

Another coincidence in the history of the great tree boa constrictor, displayed at the head of the stairway on the fourth floor of the Museum, occurred last Friday afternoon, March 5, according to Frederick Collins, assistant curator at the Museum.

When Mr. Collins asked a large party of school children who were visiting the museum that afternoon, if any of them knew the story about that boa constrictor, one of the small boys told the story in an unusually authoritative manner, which was explained when he said, "And then my father stepped into the cage and strangled the snake." Mr. Collins thinks it was a real coincidence that the son of the man who killed this boa constrictor, and from whom the museum purchased it, should chance to be in this party of children whom he asked about the snake.

TEAM FOR VALLEY MEET NOT PICKED

Results of Try-Outs Not Up to the Usual Standard, Due to Wet Track

Coach Schulte has not picked the team that will represent Nebraska at the Missouri Valley indoor meet to be held at Ames March 12 and 13, but should make his choice early this week based upon the try-outs held last Thursday.

The results of the try-outs did not come up to the usual performances of the team but may have been due to the wet track. This was especially true in the distance runs.

Nebraska's chances of again winning the indoor meet are as bright as any other school in the valley and much brighter than some of them. Missouri, winner of the outdoor title, will present a well balanced team while Kansas and Ames will be very strong in the distance runs. Nebraska should capture the dashes and place well to the front in the other events. The high jump is the Huskers weakness and it is a hard one to cover up.

The team is in the very best of shape and strengthened by the return of Ed Weir, who has been sick for the past two weeks. The new members of the team, Wyatt, Davenport, Searls, and Johnson, have been performing in excellent style this year, and are another reason for Nebraska placing in the foreground at the meet.

WEATHER FORECAST

Tuesday: Fair and warmer.

Weather Conditions

The center of the cold weather is now over the upper Mississippi valley with zero temperatures in eastern Minnesota, and temperatures below normal through the Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and the eastern part of the country. It is getting warmer in the upper Missouri valley and the Mountain states. Light snow is falling in the Ohio valley and the Lake region, and moderately heavy rain has fallen in the Atlantic states. It is generally clear in the western half of the country.
