

HUSKERS RANK HIGH IN VALLEY

Nebraska Cagers Place Fourth In Final Standings of Past Season

JAYHAWKS FIRST AGAIN

The Cornhusker basketball team ranks fourth in the final Valley standings of this year. Together with Missouri they broke even in the season's schedule.

A review of the past season shows the Nebraska cagers to have had a strong defense but an erratic offense. In several games the Huskers flashed a speedy brand of basketball and looked as good as the best in the Valley.

All But One Back Next Year With every one of the squad except Beerle back next year prospects appear bright. After two years as a substitute Beerle began to find himself and in the closing games of this year his playing was fast.

Clark Smaha and Jug Brown were the only consistent scorers for the Huskers. Smaha finished in a tie for fifth place in the final standings. He was invariably high-point man for the Scarlet and Cream.

The superiority of Kansas' offense is shown by the fact that the first three scorers in the Valley were Kansas men. Petersen, Kansas, led in scoring with seventy-four field goals and fourteen free throws, in eighteen games. Smaha made fifty baskets and fifteen free tosses in fourteen games.

IN THE VALLEY

One good point in favor of the abolishment of baseball is the fact that no great interest was taken in the sport. As a result, the game was a benefit to the minority and the some $5,000 dollars sunk in the national pastime gave no great returns to any large number of players. The crowds were small.

But why the lack of interest in the game? Is it not a national sport, followed by more people than even football? It is certain that the miller never hopes to get flour from the mill is no grain is put in and there can be no interest in baseball as long as there is a change of coaches every season, and a group of incompetent baseball coaches at that, which has been the case at Nebraska in past years. It is a winning team which creates interest and followers of a sport.

This week 341 teams and 3,000 athletes from out in the state of Nebraska will be the guests of the university while attending the basketball tourney. It is the task of every student to help these boys, and show them the things they will be interested in seeing.

They are preparing to come to university some time no doubt. If that is the case, it is up to each one of us to point out the advantages of Nebraska university to these high school lads. Nebraska should be their school just as it is yours or mine, because their parents are paying taxes which have created and made it possible. The advantages of Nebraska should be theirs. It is their right. So while they are the guests, make them feel at home, but also tell them about Nebraska.

ed Nebraska held a one point advantage. Ames won this match with a decision and this put them in the lead with one point advantage. Ames won the meet when Lawrence defeated Tuning in the heavyweight class with a time advantage of 9:07.

Nebraska will go to the Missouri Valley meet at the Oklahoma A. & M. College at Stillwater this week. The meet will last for three days, starting on Thursday.

Next Match Doubtful

The result of the meet will largely depend on the way the points are split. It will probably be between Ames, Oklahoma A. & M., and Nebraska. If Ames only sends a part of their team the meet will probably go to Oklahoma, Dr. Clapp remarked.

The summary of the Ames meet is as follows:

115 pound class—Meyers (Ames) defeated Blore (Nebraska) by a decision with a time advantage of 3:23.

125 pound class—Bovey (Ames) defeated Weber (Nebraska) by time advantage of 8:30.

135 pound class—Kellogg (Nebraska) defeated Schmidt (Ames) by a referee's decision in an extra period bout.

145 pound class—Skinner (Nebraska) threw Woodhull (Ames) in a final extra period with half nelson and body lock.

158 pound class—Wold (Ames) and Brannigan (Nebraska) drew after two extra periods.

175 pound class—Prouty (Ames) defeated Highley (Nebraska) by a time advantage of 9:07.

Heavyweight class—Lawrence of Ames defeated Tuning of Nebraska with a time advantage of 2:07.

VALLEY MEET UNCERTAIN

The wrestling team lost a very close match to Iowa State College at Ames Saturday night by a score of 9 1/2 to 13 1/2. Ames clinched the meet with four decisions while Nebraska won a fall and one decision. "The team didn't wrestle as well as they have been during the two previous weeks or they would have won the meet," Dr. Clapp stated.
