Drill Question
 Makes Advances

the same as those presented by the Board of Regents. It is to be noted that the officers in support of military training spoke only for themselves. They were not representing any agency or organization.
 Public Debt To be Prepared
 It is the belief of these officers that it is a debt to the public to be prepared. Besides this, there are national obligations to be met, the agreements of the National Defense Act, the sources of opposition to be considered, and the question of whether or not the report of the opposition is just.
 The New State, published in Lincoln, states its editorial policy: "A nonpartisan, independent newspaper devoted to the common good." In submitting the question to its readers in the form of an initiative petition the paper says:
 "As the situation now is at the University, a boy cannot be graduated unless he first takes at least two years of military training. There is no sense in connecting military training with education. A man ought to be allowed to take military training if he wants to, but it should not be forced on him in times of peace. A man can be educated without having learned how to jab a bayonet into some other person's throat. There is no excuse for compulsory military training at the University, and the compulsory feature should be abolished. We ask our readers to read the article on this subject in this issue."

Sorenson's Article
 The article, written by Sorenson, follows:
 "Since the Declaration of Independence it has been a symbol of American liberty that in time of peace no young man may be conscripted against his will.
 "But what about the boys in the land grant colleges, like the University of Nebraska? This sacred freedom from compulsory military service is suspended as to them. A boy may not graduate from the University, supported by the taxes of the people of the state, unless he can show proficiency in the art of killing. He may not know how to spell or punctuate correctly but he must know how to use a bayonet. If our country is in so grave danger of invasion as to justify conscription of the student, why not have compulsory military training of all young men? Why discriminate against the few who seek an education? If we are to have war it is not logical to feed first to the cannon those trained for leadership. That is waste of the money spent for their training, and biological insanity.
 "The Morrill Act of Congress under which the University receives federal funds requires that the subject of military tactics be a part of the curriculum but not that military drill be compulsory. The University of Wisconsin has abolished compulsory military drill but still receives money under the Morrill Act. So far as the law is concerned the Board of Regents has authority to make drill optional.
 Military Training Elective
 "In these colleges and universities military training is elective: Baylor, Dallas, Texas; Boston University, (College of Liberal Arts); Denison, Granville, O.; Harvard; John Hopkins; Leland Stanford, Jr.; Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.; Princeton; University of Buffalo; Syracuse, University of Chicago; University of Kansas; University of Michigan; University of Pennsylvania; University of Pittsburgh; University of Porto Rico; University of Utah; University of Wisconsin; Washington, St. Louis; Western Reserve, Cleveland; Yale.
 "Again, the course in military training emphasizes wrong ideals of international relations.

Abolition of War
 "All honor to the American soldiers and war heroes of the past. They served their country. But some day there will arise men and women who by their courage to break with tradition and by their faith in moral values will bring about the abolition of war. They too will serve their country. But they will not be military-minded; they will succeed because of a new and fresh approach to the problem. Those boys whose plastic minds have been shaped by militaristic propaganda are barred at the outset from aspiring to this lead. Who knows but that the psychology of and the teaching that goes with compulsory military service is undermining the faith of youths who might otherwise become world peace leaders. Is there a greater educational crime than to tax the people to unfit their sons for that leadership?"

Initiative Petition
 The object of the initiative petition is given as being "To abolish compulsory military training and to make the same optional in the University of Nebraska. The petition as printed in The New State is worded as follows:
 "We, the undersigned, legal voters of the State of Nebraska, and the County of _____, being severally qualified to sign this petition, respectfully demand that the following proposed measure shall be submitted to the voters of the state of Nebraska for their approval or rejection at the regular general election to be held on the second day of November, 1926."
 The proposed measure reads, "Military drill and instruction in military tactics shall not be a prerequisite for graduation from the University of Nebraska. Courses in military training shall be maintained but shall be elective only, and the taking of such courses shall be optional with each student."

Full Instructions
 The publication also contains full instructions to circulators of the petitions and explains that all legal voters may sign the petition, but that the circulator may only secure the signatures of voters residing in his county. The number of signatures which is needed is given as seven per cent of all the voters of the state or approximately 35,000.
 The article which is contributed by the Rev. Charles M. Shepherd follows:
 "Allow me to express my high appreciation of the illuminating statements of recent date, by Chancellor Avery and Regent John R. Webster, and also the appeal from the Board of Regents, on "Compulsory military training in our State University."
 Favors Required Training
 "For years I have been most heartily in favor of such training, and never more so than since the 'World War', with its revelation of the patriotic fervor deep in the hearts of the waiting thousands, and of the splendid service given by them as they came marching forth from these institutions, in the hour of the nation's need.
 "Even their partial preparation, rendering them of far higher immediate value, as they passed into our training camps.
 "And I believe that no thinker can persistently study the fine physical, educational, moral, and disciplinary effect of such preliminary preparation, with its recognition of

 of the Animal Husbandry Department at Oklahoma A. and M. as the judge. Prof. Blizzard coached the judging team which took first place at the International judging contest at Chicago last fall. He is also well known as a judge of live stock, having been in the large shows from coast to coast. He was judge of the Herefords in the recent Denver stock show.
 The contest is staged by members of the Block and Bridle club under the supervision of Prof. Derrick, and with the cooperation of the Animal Husbandry Department. It is of great value to Animal Husbandry students who expect to compete for places on the Nebraska judging teams in their junior and senior years. It is also of benefit to the vocational education students; they will have to train judging teams when they go out in the state as Smith-Hughes instructors.

 Special arrangements have been made to have all students excused who have Saturday morning classes. Those entering the contest are asked to register at the Animal Husbandry office and pay the twenty-five cents entrance fee.

the obligation of the citizen to the state, and obedience to its authority, without becoming enthusiastic for such training.

Consider Valley Forge
 "Neither can one give careful consideration to the history of Valley Forge, of Bladensburg, nor recall again the funeral trains from the camps at Chickamauga, without reaching very definite conclusions, and with these conclusions favorable to a reasonable up to date preparedness, in armament, in military training, and in sanitary precautions, for the events and concomitants of possible or impending war.
 "Such preparedness forbids against war itself, against unnecessary delay in necessitated military movement, either for attack or for defense, against the waste of strength and life from the progress of preventable disease."
