Representatives of the S. S. Kresge Co. will interview students in response to inquiries, Thursday morning, April 15 in Prof. Bullock's office.

ENGINEERS GIVEN CONCRETE COURSE

Special Lectures and Problems Will Be Given by Representative From Lewis Institute

A two week's course in the design and field control of concrete mixtures began Monday night in room 206 of the Mechanical Engineering building, and is open to all persons interested in concrete. The lectures will be presented by Mr. A. N. Anderson, a concrete construction engineer, working in conjunction with the Lewis Institute.

The course is intended not only to give a clearer understanding of the factors which affect the strength and quality, but also to provide practical exercises in the actual designing and proportioning of concrete mixture to meet given strength specifications. No attempt will be made to describe construction methods nor design reinforced concrete structures.

The course is offered by Donald D. Price, district engineer of the Portland Cement company.

Students Unable to Spell Correctly

pecially during the first two years. Perfect scores were made by 178, of whom 61 were freshmen, 47 sophomores, 46 juniors, 27 seniors, and 7 graduates. Between a score of 90 and 99, were placed 762, among whom sophomores ranked highest with 230, and freshmen next with 222. Between 80 and 89 were 339; between 70 and 79, 159; between 60 and 69, 98; and between 50 and 59, 37. Twenty-three made between 40 and 49, while only 9 were down between 10 and 39.

The figures above show that well over half the students made scores over ninety, and only a small percentage dropped below seventy.

In some cases the words were misspelled because they were arranged in close proximity with others of a similar sound but different spelling as in the case of "supersede" and "recede," and "advantageous" and "contagion."

The scores show that there is a steady improvement in ability to spell from the freshman year to the senior. The greatest improvement is in the first year, and the least in the fourth.

Facts learned from the tests will be applied to teaching methods in English in an effort to combat some of the most frequent cases of bad spelling.

Smith Lectures About Religion

born because their feelings are deeply involved.

Duty to Insist
"We have a right, a duty to insist that the younger generation shall be just as free to insist on its beliefs as the old generation has a right to its beliefs."

"It is what you do believe that counts—not what you don't believe; offer something positive along with the negative."

"I'm not very much disturbed or worried about the younger generation—they are unusually level-minded, only they aren't thinking very much or working very hard on the subject of religion."

"The present generation," concluded Dr. Birney, "has it in its own hands to have the kind of religion it wants—if it has interest enough to want to do it."

PARADE DATES SET FOR R. O. T. C. UNIT

Military Department Pointing Toward Annual Inspection; First Review Friday

With the annual federal inspection only a little more than a month away, the Military department has worked out a schedule of four parades, beginning with the one of Friday of this week in honor of the honorary Colonel, and culminating in the one of May 5, which will be honorary to the Lancaester Reserve Officers' association.

The second parade of the series, to be held Wednesday of next week, will be an elaborate review honorary to Chancellor Avery. An escort of colors will precede the review; Pershing Rifles will be the escort company.

The War Department inspection for distinguished rating will be held on May 7.

GEOLOGISTS FIND ELEPHANT FOSSIL

Professor Barbour and Phillip Orr Spend Vacation Excavating Animal's Head

Working under extremely adverse conditions, Dr. Barbour, professor of geology, and Phillip Orr, special student of paleontology, spent their vacation digging up a fossil elephant's head exposed in an irrigation ditch at Lingle, Wyoming.

With daily snow, low temperatures and working in constant danger of a cave-in of the loose gravel composing the soil, Dr. Barbour and Orr finally succeeded in obtaining the specimen which consists of skull, teeth, and tusks. It weighs about a thousand pounds.

This specimen, which is being sent to the museum by freight, is considered one of the most important of recent discoveries in this part of the country.
