A Last Communication

One of the last written communications from Professor Fogg to Chancellor Samuel Avery, dated from the hospital, May 11, shows his unwearied interest in University duties, and his steadfast characteristic loyalty to his friends and associates. The letter reads:

Lincoln General Hospital
May 11, 1926

Chancellor Samuel Avery:
On the School of Journalism Budget for 1926-1927 (Recommendations.)

1. Maintenance—$200 less than for 1925-1926.
2. Assistance—$200 less than for 1925-26.
3. That the $400 shifted from these funds be added to this recognition of competence and fidelity is evidently due him now.

Trusting that the Chancellor will excuse the formality of this communication, I beg to remain most respectfully,

M. M. FOGG,

Director, School of Journalism.

CHORUS SINGS 'LA VITA NUOVA' SUNDAY

Wolf-Ferrari's Setting of Poem by Dante To Be Presented in the Armory

The New Life (La Vita Nuova) by Dante, and with music by Wolf-Ferrari, will be given Sunday, May 23, at 3:30 o'clock, in the Armory by the University Chorus, under the direction of Carrie B. Raymond. The accompaniment to the chorus will be a piano, organ and string instruments.

The soloists will be Harriet Cruise, soprano, and Herman Decker, baritone. They will be accompanied by the following: Fred Cardin and Bernard Nevin, first violin; Earnest Harrison and Leland Wood, second violin; William T. Quick, viola; Lillian Eiche, violoncello; Mark Pierce, contrabass; Edith Burlingham Ross, organ; Fleda Graham, piano. An introduction will be given by Josephine Indovina.

La Vita Nuova was first presented in this country in 1900. It was then given in New York, under the direction of Frank Damrosch. At the close of its first performance, H. E. Krehbiel wrote the following criticism of La Vita Nuova, which explains its contents:

A Critic's Comment
"Nothing in musical literature is quite like Wolf-Ferrari's setting of portions of Dante's La Vita Nuova. It is so original and extraordinary that a word of elucidation seems necessary.

"Two solo voices are used. The soprano impersonating Dante's Beatrice, who was the inspiration not only of La Vita Nuova, but also of his masterpiece La Divina Comedia. She is heard only in the Prologue and in a single phrase at the end of the work. The baritone is frankly individualized as Dante himself.

"A novelty is introduced—the piano being used as a solo instrument. "The subject of the cantata is the remarkable record which Dante set down of his love—passion experienced at the age of nine years for her: who became the blessed Beatrice of his greater work, The Divina Comedia. The story of this extraordinary passion, its influence and its fruit belong to literary history and psychology. For years Dante sang the praises of this rare maiden, always speaking of her in the third person, seeking nothing but her smile, and plunging into the deepest anguish when the greeting was withheld. At the death of her father, his grief was no less than her own. He dreamed that Beatrice herself was dead, and beheld angels carrying herself to heaven like a little cloud of perfect whiteness.

Will He Do It Again?

All the country will be watching "Gip" Locke today and tomorrow when he will have another authentic opportunity to try for world's records in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. He will also run as anchor man in the 880-yard relay. The track will be in shape. If the weather man gives Locke a chance—but—well, he'll be out running.

SEMI-FINALS PLAYED TODAY 1926 ANNUAL OUT MONDAY

Sig Alphas Meet Pi Kaps, Kappa Sigs Play Phi Deltas in Frat Baseball

DELTA CHI TROUNCED COLOR WORK ATTRACTIVE

Final arrangements have been made for the distribution of the 1926 Cornhusker, which will be placed on sale Monday morning in the southwest room in the basement of the Administration Building.

The dark cover of the book, a symbol of simplicity and dignity, is a work of art. The various subdivision pages have a beautiful border with still-life half-tone inserts appropriate to each division.

The three-color reproductions for the opening sections were made from paintings done especially for the Cornhusker, depicting present University buildings and featuring imaginative scenes of the future campus. Plans for the future campus are announced and explained in a feature section.

Stage effects afford new ideas for the division sheets, which are done in three-color process. A glimpse of a modern theatre with the chief attraction of the evening as its height will be pictured. The stage setting portraying an appropriate University building and characters performing in the limelight will give the keynote to the section following the division sheet.

Larger half-tones than have ever been used in past years will feature the scene section. Some splendid views of campus nooks will be found in this division.

A new and clever idea has been used in writing the campus events. The reader will find himself escorted through these pages by an enthusiastic little personage who explains and illustrates in his queer way the important events of the season.

RELIGION GAINS IN COLLEGES

Small Colleges Stick to Compulsory Chapel, Large Do Not

PRINCETON, N. J., (By New Student Service)—Hundreds of questionnaires found their way to college presidents, busy desks, to the cluttered sanctums of undergraduate editors, to the subdued study of the college minister. Hundreds of fat envelopes drifted back to Princeton where they were opened, classified, tabulated by student officials of the National Student Federation. Thousands of words were boiled down to a press notice. And papers throughout the country report POLL FINDS RELIGION GAINING IN COLLEGES.

Of 315 college presidents questioned 175 opposed compulsory Sunday chapel while 130 approved. Ninety opposed compulsory week-day worship while 225 favored it. Only 42 of the 600 questionnaires to college editors were answered. Of the 42 a majority reported undergraduate sentiment in favor of conditions as they are. Of all the colleges from which replies came and at which compulsion is in effect only four expressed dissatisfaction and desired a change.

Compulsory chapel is most favored in small colleges. It either has never prevailed or was abandoned in the large universities.

DRESS PARADE DRAWS MANY

Sororities and Fraternities Indicate Interest in Round-Up Feature

TWO PRIZES FOR WINNERS

All sororities and eleven fraternities have already expressed a desire to be represented in the fancy dress parade at the Carnival of Fun at the Field House the evening of May 28. Prizes will be given to the man and woman wearing the most beautiful and cleverest costumes.

The fraternities which have chosen their representatives are: Acacia, Alpha Theta Chi, Delta Chi, Delta Sigma Lambda, Farm House, Lambda C Chi, Omega Beta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha.

Other fraternity groups will be in the parade but have not decided on their representatives.

No Restriction on Costume

There is no restriction on the type of the costume which may be worn. Each group is to choose the costume its representative is to appear in. The costume may be comical, beautiful, a character from history, a presentation of a character from a book, a costume peculiar to some nation. In fact it may be anything that the fertile imagination and skill of the group can concoct.

The prizes will be awarded during the evening, after a grand march of all the representatives. Two large pictures have been chosen by the committee as prizes.

The Carnival of Fun will open the Field House as a center of campus activities. It will be one of the biggest and most elaborate affairs during the week of the Fifth Annual Round-up. For the first time since the university was but a one-block campus, the alumni and students will be able to get together in a big mixer.

"Dates" to Be "On Sale."

Unusual care is being taken to make this one of the best affairs of its kind. Properties are being brought from Omaha for the "Streets of Cairo," a peppy and unusual show which will occupy half of the floor space. A special dance floor has been laid which will provide ample room for dancing, from 7:30 to 11:30 o'clock.

The "slave market" will be open several times during the evening for those desiring "dates" for the evening and they may obtain one to suit their individual tastes if they are among the highest bidders.

Twelve sororities which are not holding their alumnae banquets that evening will be in charge of clever and unusual booths. Ventriloquism, photography, "eats," confetti, fortune telling, and all sorts of other interesting fun-making products will be the order of the evening.

Military events, parades, side-shows, and all the attendant noise and pep will be there and in full swing the minute the doors open at 7:30.

Goldstein Heads Silver Serpents

Officers for the coming year were elected at the first meeting of the new Silver Serpents, Thursday evening at Ellen Smith Hall. The next Silver Serpent meeting will be held after the opening of school next fall.

Suggest New Names

Because of the confusion that exists among the names of the various educational institutions in California, new names for the University of California and the Southern Branch of the University of California have been suggested. They are the Berkeley University of California and the Los Angeles University of California.

Park at Washington

A 25-acre park on the ground of the University of Washington is being planted with native trees and shrubs by the students in the University.

Over fifty students, managers and novice track men, spent a good portion of yesterday and will be at work again this morning putting the track in shape. The wise-aces who looked it over yesterday reported it to be in fine shape, fast as the wind. If the weather is fair, the track will be ready to help the fine array of talent go out for new Valley and national intercollegiate records, not to mention the possibility of some new world's records. A corps of A. A. U. timers will be on hand to clock Locke or any others who get out in record or near record time.

Cloudy Weather Predicted

The weather man predicts cloudy and cooler weather for today. All Huskerdom is hoping that that will be the extent of his evil. A fast track and a calm day, they feel, is all that is necessary for Locke to set some new eye-openers for the rest of the country.

When the meet opens this afternoon, the pick of nine Valley schools will be ready to take their marks. Every school is conceded an outside chance of carrying away premier honors. There are so many stars in each event that the points are likely to be split any number of ways.

A typical indication is in the pole-vault. In this, Lancaster of Missouri, Wirsig of Nebraska, Owen of Iowa State, Carter of Kansas Aggies, and Potts of Oklahoma are all recognized as capable of going better than twelve feet six. If Lancaster should take first, a couple of others second and third, and one of the Huskers only fourth, Missouri would get four points the best of Nebraska in the one event which is one of the Huskers' strongest. If the situation should be reversed, Missouri would be a heavy loser and with six men of this caliber anything is likely to happen.

Locke "All Set"

In practically every event, there are six or seven men of the first rank. The lane they draw, the way they happen to be feeling at the moment, the way the wind hits them, any one of many factors might determine the order they place. But fans can be assured of as wonderful a series of races as can be seen anywhere this season.

Captain Locke is raring to go. And all Nebraska is watching, wondering if he will repeat his previous record breaking performances in order that the rest of the country may be more thoroughly convinced that he is, beyond question, the world's fastest sprinter.

Coach Schulte announced last night that Hein would run. His leg is much better. Whether he will be in his old form or not can't be determined until the preliminaries this afternoon.
