1000 EXPECTED AT UNION CELEBRATION

Society Organized in 1876 To Hold Semi-Centennial Gathering Here on Saturday

Nearly a thousand alumni are expected to attend the semi-centennial jubilee of the Union society on October 8 and 9. The following program has been planned: Open house is to be held all day October 8 in the club room in the Temple; both alumni and active members will attend the Missouri game in a bloc; and a banquet will be given Saturday evening, October 9, at the Hotel Cornhusker.

Union supplanted the old Adelphean society in 1876, which was established in 1872. The Adelpheans took its members from the college classes, while the Palladians drew their members from the sub-freshmen classes. In 1876 both of these societies broke up. Shortly after Union was organized having as members those who had been Adelpheans, drawing its members, however, from both classes.
