ON FRATERNITIES

A week ago today we called attention to the laxness of fraternities in notifying Dr. R. J. Pool of the selection of representatives to the Interfraternity Council.

Yesterday we called Dr. Pool to see how many had replied during the week and he reported that one had sent the desired information since last Wednesday.

It is interesting to note in this connection that "Fraternities" will be the subject of the World Forum discussion this noon.

We would suggest to Prof. Rice that he need not go off of the Nebraska campus for good material for his speech and that he need not look into past history.

And we would suggest to Mr. Rosborough that the usual argument that fraternities foster interest in the University and University life will seem rather feeble in the light of the above facts.

Tonight a meeting has been called of the athletic managers of the various fraternities. It will be interesting to see how the turn-out at that meeting compares with the number who have taken time from their strenuous duties to elect a member to the Interfraternity Council.

A SPORT FOR EVERY GIRL

"A Sport For Every Girl," is the slogan that the Woman's Athletic department of Nebraska has chosen to typify their objective for this year.

In the editorial which appeared in The Daily Nebraskan recently upon women's intercollegiate athletics, it was stated that intercollegiate sports for women are not held at Nebraska, chiefly because that type of competition is too strenuous for women to take part in without danger of physical strain.

Not everyone can become a good football player, it is true, nor can we all play a good game of tennis. But we all are born with capacities to develop, and practice, combined with an interest in some line of athletics, is certain to develop an athlete at least reasonably good if it is given a chance.

What is this value derived from competitive games that Dartmouth is arising from the profit motive. 5. Comparative lack of opportunity for growth or for creative effort.

6. Long hours. 7. Low wages. 8. Injustice of non-recognition of need as a fundamental factor in wage scales.

9. Unsanitary conditions. 10. Class distinctions—lack of dignity and social standing for manual workers.

11. Lack of reasonable recreational facilities, including vacations with pay.

This was, without doubt, a very heroic attempt to set forth the injustices suffered by the working man, but we can't help but wonder how many of those so-called injustices were original with the students and how many of them came from the headquarters of some labor union.

If all of those "injustices" were remedied, we venture to state that most of the lawyers, doctors, professors, and business men in the country would turn laborers, for there is certainly nothing left wanting in that list.

College Press

GO TO CHURCH (Minnesota Daily.)

It may seem a presumption even to offer the suggestion that college students go to Church on Sunday. When one approaches the subject he is treading on ground that has been largely reserved for that much despised class—the "up-jer." But it is in no such sense that we expect to make our appeal that you seek out some church tomorrow nor do we intend to show wherein the usual attitude toward Church attendance is wrong.

Did it ever occur to you, particularly those of you who scoff the suggestion that Church may have some value, that there is something in a religious service which makes a very definite appeal to the aesthetic sense?

All that is quite aside from any cultural or intellectual importance it may have, but it is nevertheless one which has always been a predominant influence in our church attendance. Sacred music, an ennobling formalism and an intelligent sermon, all these in any of the many beautiful edifices which are to be found in these cities—what better surroundings could one ask to spend a quiet hour on that one day in seven which we are expected to turn our thoughts to the more serious things of life.

In this recital civilization of ours there are too few opportunities or should we say that there are too few who have any desire to seek such opportunities—to really be alone with one's thoughts. Attendance at Church has always afforded us one of the rarest of those opportunities and we feel quite intensely that there are many more who would feel the same way if they gave a Church the opportunity to do what is can for them. We realize full well that Church going is entirely a personal matter and what one gets of it depends largely on what one brings to it.

VALUE OF ATHLETICS (Daily Kansan.)

An interesting move was made this year in the realm of colleges and universities when Dartmouth passed a rule requiring all seniors to take part in some kind of competitive athletics three times a week throughout the entire year.

To some persons this may give a new slant to the value of athletics in an educational institution. Here is shown the ideal of getting every man on a team, rather than developing but a few experts, while the others remain onlookers. A differentiation is made between gymnasium work, and genuine sports by designing that they be "competitive" athletics.

Not everyone can become a good football player, it is true, nor can we all play a good game of tennis. But we all are born with capacities to develop, and practice, combined with an interest in some line of athletics, is certain to develop an athlete at least reasonably good if it is given a chance.

What is this value derived from competitive games that Dartmouth is evidently desirous that each of her graduates obtain? In most universities, football and basketball as well as other sports, are activities that a small percentage of the student body take part in for the love of playing the game, and the mass of students attend for the love of watching the game.

In the mass is thus developed a patriotic college spirit, a hero-worship for those who win spectacularly, and probably a college yell. But the members of the active group derive much more lasting value from the game. It is they who learn the spirit of fair play, of clean competition, of rational co-operation with their fellowmen, of wise choice of leaders and a wise following of those leaders in whose hands can be trusted the future of our nation.

Dartmouth has decided that these qualities ought to be developed in all students.

ON WALKING OUT (Daily Kansan.)

Walking out of a theater during the last few minutes of the performance or leaving a convocation before the final speaker concludes his address, are earmarks of a lack of breeding of which no Syracusean should be guilty. Walking out of a game before the Alma Mater is ended not only exhibits utmost discourtesy, but it is an indication of a deplorable lack of a spirit of loyalty to the University.

The number of students who weekly demonstrate their impoliteness is a small one, it is true. But there can be little excuse for the departure of even a few. Attendance at the entire game is not too much to demand of student support once a week. It should not have to be demanded. The student who will leave his seat before the final whistle of the game to "get out of" singing the Alma Mater is not worthy to be called a Syracusean.

MAKING ACTIVITIES COUNT (Daily Kansan.)

"I've gotta' have another activity before meeting tonight. Come on, go to Y. W. C. A. with me."

Consequently, perhaps half the chairs at the meeting, or any other student activity on the Hill, are filled with mere lumps of unregistering flesh.

Of course, these meetings are conducted by students taking an active interest and they participate in them; but what of the others who come and sit, not using a brain cell, not exerting a flicker of intelligence, just creating a vacuum in which to rest their brains and acquiring that last activity so they won't get a black mark from the activities of the fraternity.

The idea of compelling freshmen fraternity women to attend campus activities is good perhaps at its foundation, but it is unwisely enforced.

The pledge has no active interest in many phases of Hill life, and certainly compelling him to sit through an hour of boredom won't aid him. He'll only close his mind the more to the real significance of the organization behind the meeting. He has had it impressed on his mind—not as a force for potential good, but as something that must be endured to get his required activities.

Perhaps it looks well to have all the chairs occupied, but of what use is it when the one who sits there has no purpose other than to complete his list?

Give the pledges modified freedom to choose their phase of Hill activity and follow it with intelligent interest.

University Chess Tournament Planned

Plans for an All-University chess tournament have been completed and it is hoped that arrangements may be made to start the tourney within the next two weeks. As the number of games to be scheduled depends upon the number of entrants, all students who are interested in chess are urged to enroll at the University Y. M. C. A., or with Russell Bannister, Herbert Howe, or Lincoln Frost. The tourney will likely be held at the Y. M. C. A. and will probably have reached completion by the end of the first semester.

Best in any class

To be absolutely truthful, we must admit a Wahl Pen will not get up and make you 8 o'clocks for you. It won't answer the roll call, or take notes all by itself.

But it will go along with you to any class you have, and do a better writing job than any other fountain pen you've ever seen. Hour after hour, it will glide across the pages with an ease that rests your wrist and leaves your mind free to consider what you're writing.

Its iridium-tipped point of solid gold will stand up to the action when the "prof." is talking fast and you just have to "jab 'em down," or it will roll the rounded out sentences when you're building a theme for somebody else to read. This most serviceable and handsome pen comes in a wide variety of materials and styles. In slim, symmetrical cylinders of solid gold or sterling silver, gold-filled or silver-filled, or in red, black, or mottled rubber. For point, you can choose exactly the Wahl nib that suits your writing style: stiff or flexible, fine, medium, stub, oblique, or Wahl Standard Signature.

And, oh, yes! A Wahlful of ink is a bookful of words, whether you're passing an exam or writing out your alibi. Fill up a new one at the Wahl Pen and Eversharp counter and see if it isn't so. $3 to $7 for the silver or rubber $6 and Northward for the gold

STUDENT LABORERS Students at Earham College, Richmond, Indiana, who spent their summer vacations as manual laborers in American industries got together this fall and reported their various experiences. Among other things, they listed the injustices which they believed that they found in modern industries. They are as follows: 1. Lack of democratic relationship—no voice for workers in the management. 2. Insecurity of employment—difficulty for the industrial worker to find a job, seasonal lay-offs and unemployment. 3. Monotony of machine work. 4. Inadequacy of and injustices
