

STAGE SET FOR GIRL'S ANNUAL COSTUME PARTY

Begins at 7:30 Tonight in Armory; Grand March at 8 O'clock

THREE PRIZES OFFERED
Prettiest, Funniest, and Most Original Dresses Will Be Announced

Tonight in the old Armory, is the Girl's Cornhusker party, the annual frolic for all University women. This year the plans are more elaborate, and the evening will be crowded with entertainment.

The party begins promptly at 7:30 o'clock, when dancing will start, to the music of the Merry-makers, an orchestra composed entirely of women. The grand march, when all the costumes are displayed, will begin at 8 o'clock, and the judges will then award the prizes. There are three prizes, given on the basis of the prettiest, the funniest, and the most original costumes. The skits then follow, and after this, the rest of the evening will be given over to dancing.

Mystic Fish, which will give the first skit, will present a song and dance review. There will be a clever chorus, and some specialty features, Jane Glennon singing, and Lucile Bair and Jeannette Dean dancing.

Tassel Stunt
Next is the Tassel's stunt, which is called "What's Wrong with this Picture?" The scene is laid in a photographer's studio, when he is taking pictures of various advertisements. Included in these are well known ads, such as brands of baby food, famous tonics, tooth paste, and similar subjects. Ruch Clendenin is the photographer, and Joyce Adair and Helen Aach are in charge.

The Xi Delta stunt, Romeo and Juliet, is next. There will be no stage properties during this act, as various girls will represent the necessary pieces of furniture. The skit will be in pantomime, and is a modern love story, adapted by Annie Brackett. Betty Thornton is Juliet, Faith McManus, Romeo, and Laura Margaret Raines reads the interpretation.

Serenade Skit
The final skit is that of Silver Serpent, "Ye Fraternity Serenade." This first part is a serenade in the olden years, with the characters in old-fashioned costumes. They will sing a few old fashioned songs. The second part is the present time in the University. The night is after a formal, and the boys appear, to sing to their dates. At the first notes, the girls are seen in a window, hairs in braids, and ready for bed. The serenade ends when they sing several well known fraternity sweatshirt songs. Beth Paffenrath is in charge.

The committee which will judge the costumes is made up of Miss Clara Wilson, Miss Mabel Lee, and Mrs. E. W. Lantz. The admission to the party will be 25 cents. If there is any surplus, it will go to the fund for a co-operative house, which is being sponsored by the A. W. S. council.

Everyone is urged to come, and to dress in any sort of costume desired. The party will be over by 9:30 o'clock.

Profits From Football Assure Extensive Intramural Program

By Jack Elliott

Among the minor sports made possible by the profits of football games, intramural sports this year will rank high in interest. Acting Director of Athletics Herbert Gish has outlined a comprehensive schedule. The first contests held under the new system were the interfraternity cross-country runs.

The present standing of the intramural contest finds Theta Chi fraternity in first place with a total of 75 points. Only one event in the Greek race has been run off, and that is the cross-country race, in which the Theta Chis won first. Second place was won by Farm House, giving them a total of sixty points. Third was won by Tau Kappa Epsilon, fourth by Mu Sigma, and fifth by Alpha Sigma Phi.

Thirty points were awarded to each fraternity for entering the cross country, and those who did not place have a score of thirty points. This will be the scheme of working the intramurals for the coming year. In basketball there will be fifty points awarded for entering, and a hundred points for the winner, thus giving the winner one hundred and fifty points. The same will be used in mid-winter track and in baseball, the winner receiving one hundred and fifty points, fifty for entering.

35 for Wrestling
In the intramural sports, thirty-

BAND MEMBER RELATES TRIP

Seattle Game, Broadcasting, Parades, Entertainment, Are Described

ENGBERG MEETS TRAIN

By Leon Larimer

A dress parade in Seattle, a radio broadcasting program at station KOMO in that city, entertainment for the band by Nebraska alumni associations of two cities, and a parade in Hastings on the way home were only a few of the many things done by the University R. O. T. C. band while on the recent football trip to Seattle.

The band took thirty members in full uniform on the trip and played at practically every stop made by the team. At Sheridan, Wyo., there was a large crowd awaiting the arrival of the special train. At Sand Point, Idaho, where the team worked out, the band was out en masse demonstrating a little of that Nebraska spirit for which the University is well known. At Seattle the band paraded in full uniform Tuesday afternoon and that evening took part in a rally held by the University of Washington. The next day they played for the Nebraska Alumni association banquet which was held on the University of Washington campus.

This banquet was attended by Dean and Mrs. Carl Engberg of the University of Nebraska, and also by Charles Borg, an old Nebraska football captain. After the banquet the band played for the all-university smoker which was attended by representatives of thirteen universities. Then the band broadcasted from radio station KOMO, Seattle.

Busy Day

Thanksgiving Day proved to be a busy one. The band paraded on the field before the game, and between the halves made their well-known "N" which they have been making at all games this year. A "W" was made in honor of the Washington team. The Washington band also made an "N" between halves and paraded. Prof. William T. Quick, director of the R. O. T. C. band, in commenting on the University of Washington's musical organization said, "The Washington band was certainly a fine one. They played well, and in their new uniforms of blue and gold, presented a very good appearance."

After the game, the Nebraska bandmen were the guests of the Nebraska athletic department at a Thanksgiving dinner at the Olympic hotel where the Cornhusker team stopped, and after the dinner played in the lobby of the hotel.

When the special train arrived in Portland Friday afternoon, there were cars awaiting at the station, and everyone was taken for a sight-seeing trip down the Columbia river drive. (Continued on Page Two.)

Which Will Be 1927 Captain?

Glenn Presnell

John Brown

Ray Randels

Glenn Presnell, '28, DeWitt, has been selected as a probable leader of the 1927 squad because of his outstanding playing in the backfield. Besides his consistent ground-gaining ability, Glenn has a pleasing personality that affords him the friendship of every member on the team.

Another backfield man whose playing has merited due consideration for leadership of next season's squad is John Brown, '28, of Lincoln. In his first year of competition, his generalship on the field drew favorable comment from coaches and football fans.

The outstanding qualification of Ray Randels, '28, Anthony, Kan., for leadership of the team is his ability to talk to the players and urge them to greater effort during the game. The reaction of the team to his encouragements or bits of advice was as noticeable as his achievements in the tackle position.

Freshman Grid Squad Finishes Active Season

QUALITY OF PLAY WITH KAGGIES COMMENDABLE

By Douglas Timmerman

The 1926 Varsity men have received the honors which they richly deserved and have laid aside their football togs until the spring practice. The yearling gridsters have likewise turned in their uniforms and have resumed studies with the pleasant ring of praise in their ears.

Those who were faithful will be awarded numerals for this season's work. They comprised a freshman team which ranked high among those of the past. Meeting the Varsity at every available time, they played the game of "put and take" with admirable persistence.

In their one official appearance before the football public, on November 6 against the Kansas Aggie freshmen, they displayed form and quality which stamped them as real contenders for regular berths on the Varsity in 1927.

Another Game

Efforts to secure another contest for the youngsters next year were made at the annual meeting of athletic directors in Des Moines, December 4. Nothing definite resulted, however, and the matter was put aside until the spring convocation. Meanwhile, those interested are hoping for at least one freshman game to supplement the five Varsity contests.

Stars on the team were numerous and colorful. Coached by "Choppy" Rhodes and Harold Hutchinson, both former Varsity men, they swiftly developed from a mob to a precision football machine. This was in evidence during the junior Wildcat game, when the yearlings proceeded

ORR LECTURES WORLD FORUM

Discusses Student Council Meeting at Ann Arbor And Arts College

That the biggest educational problem of the day is how to keep the student interested, was the opinion expressed by Douglas Orr, former University student who is now attending Swarthmore, in his talk before the World Forum Wednesday noon at the Grand Hotel.

He opened his talk by discussing the National Student Federation of America's conference which he had recently attended at Ann Arbor, and which will meet here next year.

Liberal Education

He then told of the students' report on the arts college published last year. He said he felt now that he could get a liberal education here as well as in the East. To do so, he said, he would take about twelve hours, get permission to attend valuable lectures, and read intensively and extensively on the side. He reiterated his belief that the arts college should aid in developing a student's ability to think and should furnish him with a suitable background in the various fields of learning.

Wisconsin Theater Seats 500

The theater in the new addition to Bascom hall at the University of Wisconsin will seat 500.

104,625 See Husker Games This Season

More than 104,000 persons watched the 1926 Cornhusker football team battle through the season. The exact number, 104,625, compares very favorably with a record of 101,000 last year. Of this number, 66,747 watched the Cornhuskers and the freshmen on the home gridiron.

The University of Washington game played at Seattle heads the list with the largest attendance on the Huskers schedule, with over 20,000 persons watching the Huskers and Huskies. The Missouri game played on Nebraska's gridiron is second on the list with over 16,000 people watching the Missouri victory.

Profitable Freshman Game

Nebraska made the only profitable showing in the freshman games of the Valley when about 3,100 persons witnessed the freshmen of Nebraska and Kansas Aggies battle at Nebraska.

|-------------------------------------|--------|
| University of Washington at Seattle | 20,469 |

Varsity Cheerleaders of 1926

"Dutch" Weymuller

"Nick" Amos

"Chic" Dox

One of the very important factors that makes for a winning football team is the quality of the school spirit that is backing the team. Nebraska is noted throughout the country for the wonderful spirit that it possesses, and the success of the Cornhuskers in the athletic world has been due, in no small measure to this school spirit.

Nebraskans have been fortunate in having such good cheerleaders. To be a cheerleader is an honor indeed, and these men have given evidence of their ability and loyalty to the school. They never let the spirit of the school falter whether the team is winning or losing. In the Kansas Aggie and New York games when the team was fighting the elements as well as its opponents, the cheerleaders kept the enthusiasm up to a fever pitch. No one will ever forget the Kansas Aggie game when the cheerleaders forgot their soggy fannels and shirking blazers and kept the team assured that the student body was backing them to the limit.

Nebraska's head cheerleader is Nick Amos. "Nick" is a graduate of Omaha Central, where he also served as cheerleader. Amos was appointed a Varsity cheerleader his freshman year in school which is unusual. This is his third year as cheerleader. His work has been particularly fine, and he has done everything in his power to back the team. In order to assure some organized support, "Nick" was sent to Washington with the team. With his assistants, Amos has very capably directed the student body in their support of the team.

The second Varsity cheerleader is "Chic" Dox, also a former Central High man. "Chic" served as freshman cheerleader last year, and his work was so good that he was appointed this year to the Varsity position. He shows real ability, and has given great promise of what he can do in his third year.

The third member of the squad is "Dutch" Weymuller, also from Omaha. Dutch served as freshman cheerleader with Dox, and is now in his first year as Varsity cheerleader. "Dutch" has a world of pep and is on the go all the time.

Nebraska's freshman cheerleaders are: James Hamilton, George Gregory, Howard Kennedy, and Cleo Lechliter.

Hamilton is head of the squad of freshman cheerleaders. He is the man who kept the stands amused by his acrobatic stunts. George Gregory is serving as freshman cheerleader and is also from Omaha. "Brick" Kennedy is the freshman that helped to keep things going. He is also an Omaha man.

Cleo Lechliter, the fourth member of the squad, hails from Auburn, where he served as cheerleader in high school.

NEBRASKA HONORS TEAM AT ANNUAL BANQUET TONIGHT

Between 800 and 1,000 Men Expected at Scottish Rite Temple for Occasion When Students Pay Homage To Members of 1926 Football Squad

NAMING OF STINER'S SUCCESSOR WILL BE CLIMAX

Governor McMullen, Chancellor Avery, Coach Bearg, and Stiner Among Speakers; Junior Chamber of Commerce And Lincoln Business Men Will Be Present

The Cornhusker banquet, the annual tribute which Nebraska gives to her football team, will be held tonight in the Scottish Rite Temple at 6 o'clock. It is expected that between 800 and 1,000 persons will be present.

The event of the banquet, to which Cornhusker supporters look with interest, is the announcement of the election of next season's football captain. Captain "Lonnie" Stiner will retire from his place and the leader of next year's eleven will take the position awarded him because of his qualities as a star player and a leader of men.

Omaha Alumni Entertain Cornhuskers and Coaches

Cornhusker football players who saw service on the 1926 eleven and coaches were guests of alumni in Omaha yesterday evening at the University Club.

Omaha was proud of the showing made by the athletes from their city this season. The five Omahans: "Blue" Howell, Elmer Holm, Vint Lawson, Wally Marrow and Leroy Lucas, were all important cogs in this season's machine. Howell, Marrow, and Lawson are graduates of Central, and Holm and Lucas played at Technical high school.

The speakers on the program are: Chancellor Avery, Mr. Omenson of Omaha, Governor Adam McMullen, Coach E. E. Bearg, John (Choppy) Rhodes, and "Lonnie" Stiner.

Entertainment for the banquet will be offered by Harriet Cruise Kemmer, Ed Ellington, and Gale Grubb. Moving pictures showing Roland Locke breaking the world's record in the 220-yard dash will be a feature.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce will have a representation at the banquet. Lincoln business men have shown their desire to attend. The fraternities will be well represented, some of them attending in an entire body.

Tickets Available
It is still possible to obtain tickets. They will be on sale at the Scottish Rite temple tonight before the banquet.

The first Cornhusker banquet was given in 1898. This affair was arranged and financed by the team members themselves and given in a restaurant at 13 and O Streets. In 1902 the banquet was given in the Lincoln Hotel. Since the earlier days, it has grown in importance until it is one of the foremost celebrations of the year at Nebraska. Since the building of the Scottish Rite temple the event has been held there.

XMAS PARTY IS SATURDAY

Last Varsity Dance Before Holidays Has Novel Decorations

The Christmas Varsity party will be held Saturday night in the Coliseum, the main feature of which will be the giving of gifts during intermission. Following last year's custom tickets with numbers will be given at the door, the duplications of which are to be used for the drawing. Successive numbers will be drawn from the box and those people holding them will publicly receive and open the gifts given them.

Christmas Tree

A large Christmas tree will be placed in the center of the floor and the other decorations will center around it. The orchestra stand, on the center of the west side, will be massed with red and green as will also the refreshment counters, one on either side of the floor.

The Yuletide designs have been carried out even farther than the decorations, according to Oscar Norling, one of the joint chairmen of the refreshment committee. Green punch, with red cherries will be served with wafers during the evening. Christmas numbers will be added to the program in order to complete the spirit.

Football Has Greater Effect on Students than on Team--Decided

Editor's Note: Glen Buck, president of the Nebraska Student Council, and Ruth Palmer, a member, were the Nebraska delegates at the International Student Council convention last week at Ann Arbor. This is the third of a series of articles which they will write for The Daily Nebraskan.

That the effect of intercollegiate football upon the undergraduate body is a far more important matter than its effect upon the members of the team, was the consensus of opinion of the athletic committee at the National Students' Federation of America convention held at Ann Arbor, Mich., December 2, 3, and 4. The players are relatively few; the undergraduate body affected by the game is enormously large.

M. A. Cheek of Harvard University, and formerly captain of a "Crimson" football team, was chairman of the athletic committee and led the discussions concerning common problems in college athletics. He was assisted by A. S. Dashiell, a graduate of Princeton, and now on the editorial staff of Scribner's Magazine. Mr. Dashiell has written a number of articles concerning athletics for Scribner's Magazine that have excited considerable interest in colleges throughout the country.

The committee also included such men as George Guttormsen, captain of the University of Washington football team, the student athletic manager of the University of Oregon, a member of the West Virginia 1926 football team, and other students interested in athletics from colleges and universities in many parts of the United States.

Resolution

A resolution was passed by this committee recommending that every college and university require each candidate for an athletic team to sign a pledge upon his entrance into collegiate athletics to the effect that he will not become professional until his class has graduated. Several eastern colleges and universities have received considerable criticism because their football players have quit school immediately after the football season to become members of professional teams. The signing of a pledge would be only a moral obligation upon the athlete, and if he wished to break his promise to his school, he would be able to do so.

The feeling of the committee regarding post-season games was that contests staged only for commercial interests, as the annual game played at Pasadena in connection with the Tournament of Roses, should be forbidden. Another example of a contest promoted for commercial interests only is the suggested Army-Navy game to be played at Philadelphia. If this game is played, its main purpose will likely be to make up some of the deficit of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

Post-Season Games

The committee approved of post-season games when conditions are such that the contest will promote a better feeling between two institutions and when a championship can be decided without seriously interfering with the regular season. (Continued on Page Two.)
