and the mile relay.
For the distances, Coach Schulte's runners will undoubtedly be Glen Johnson, Sprague, Chadderton, Hays, and McCartney. The latter two will run the two mile. Johnson will run the mile and the half and Chadderton will probably run the mile, possibly working in both. Sprague will run either the mile or two-mile.
Andrews will back up Stephens in the broad jump. Page in the high jump and Wirsig in the pole vault will probably complete the jumping staff for the trip. In the weights, Ashburn and Hurd will work in the shot put. Durisch and Hurd will throw the discus and Pospisil also probably if he completes some work which at present makes him ineligible. Almy is slated to hurl the javelin. Fleming may make the trip as an extra hurdler and high jumper with a good chance of picking up extra points in the meets.
"Doc" McLean, trainer, Wendell Ames and Allan Wilson, senior student managers, will also make the trip. The team will return to Lincoln Wednesday April 13. Arrangements have been made for the squad to take books on the trip and the men are expected to put in three hours of study a day in order to keep up with their work.

This year was his first year as a varsity performer on the Nebraska mat. The 1928 wrestling leader makes his home at Palmyra and will succeed George Brannigan, who led the Nebraska grapplers through the 1927 season.

NEBRASKA CLOSES DEBATE SEASON

Effect in Parliament
That parliament would be as responsive to popular whims and impulses as to deliberate judgment was Archibald W. Storm's counter-argument to the affirmative case of greater responsibility in popular government. He pointed out that speed does not mean efficiency and that safety not speed, is the rule in our present form of government.
Philip Klutzuk closed the affirmative case by pointing out that modern changes have made conditions very different from those existing in 1787, that the parliamentary system would not mean the abandonment of the supreme court, and the two-party system of this country is ideal for the establishment of the parliamentary system. Mr. Klutzuk was credited with being one of the finest college speakers heard from a debate platform here. Lincoln Frost closed the negative case by showing that parliamentary government was breaking down all over the world.

Wednesday morning THE DAILY NEBRASKAN carried the news that Dean Chatburn had informed a faculty committee that he would favor the suppression of University Night. To me, that was one of the most disheartening things of the week. I wonder how carefully Dean Chatburn thought before he did that. You can't get anywhere, ultimately, by cracking skulls. That's the militaristic philosophy that force is the ultimate power. That philosophy never developed character.

On Jan. 7, 1927 Regent Seymour, of the University of Nebraska, made a most memorable statement, as quoted in the OMAHA WORLD HERALD. "The regents realize the time is opportune, as never before, to make one of the outstanding universities of the country, of this one at Nebraska. They realize that practically all this depends on getting the right chancellor."

Further one: "Mr. Seymour said the business system at the University is the equal of that of any in the land and from now on would be the burden of the regents to make the university as distinctive scholastically. An atmosphere to produce strong and individual character and fearless thinking will be the ideal, he said, adding that he didn't believe in censorship of any kind at a state university."

Those words by Regent Seymour were a confession; they were also words worthy of a real educator.

Dean Chatburn's action on Wednesday was a continuation of the policy which has brought the University of Nebraska almost to the brink of disaster and has created within the faculty an unbelievable situation that baffles description. I wonder if Regent Seymour isn't right about it after all.

According to Thursday's news items the Y. M. C. A. was taking steps to correct a wrong situation, and that before Dean Chatburn acted without inquiry. Wednesday the students protested. That is the way it should be. Let us settle our differences openly, frankly, fearlessly but with understanding.

The next two years the University of Nebraska faces a critical situation. It will be so to speak, on the carpet, before the electorate of the state. Nobody is out to harm the University of Nebraska. Under such conditions it is high time to develop character within our university walls and to cease to be a "prussianized kindergarten." Secretary Hayes and the Y. M. C. A. are to be congratulated for realizing their responsibilities.

There are several other observations that I should have liked to make as, for example, that it is always easier to see the mote in the other fellow's eye. That applies to all concerned in this controversy. But I must cease. I realize that I may have offended again because I have dealt with ideas, irrespective of the title and rank of those who gave vent to them, for, true to the ideals of the youth of the day, I believe that truth and ideas have no age limit and Ph. D. titles.

In closing, Mr. Editor, I want to remind you that you told us at the beginning of the semester that you were going to state no editorial policy. You weren't going to promise anything; you would find out a correct policy by the method of trial and error. I'm awaiting your conclusion with the greatest of interest.

Intermittently yours,
A. H. Jensen.

"Peeping" With The First Robin

Keynoting an advance glimpse of the 1927 stylings

It's going to be an unconventional colorful season, a season of free draping lines, a season of frankly bold fabric tonings. Flannelly materials, tweedy effects, herringboned ideas, color splashed and brightly hued, are bobbing into the wardrobe of the man who takes his dressing with a serious casualness.

Such features have been ably achieved by the designers of

Kirschbaum Clothes

And such features will be found in the newer fabric groupings that have just now made their first bow in our clothing departments.

It takes super-tailoring to style-weave into such fabrics as Sherbrook Shetlands, Mayfairs and Batterseas, studied carelessness of shoulder shaping and back draping combined with the proper sweep of lapel and collar.

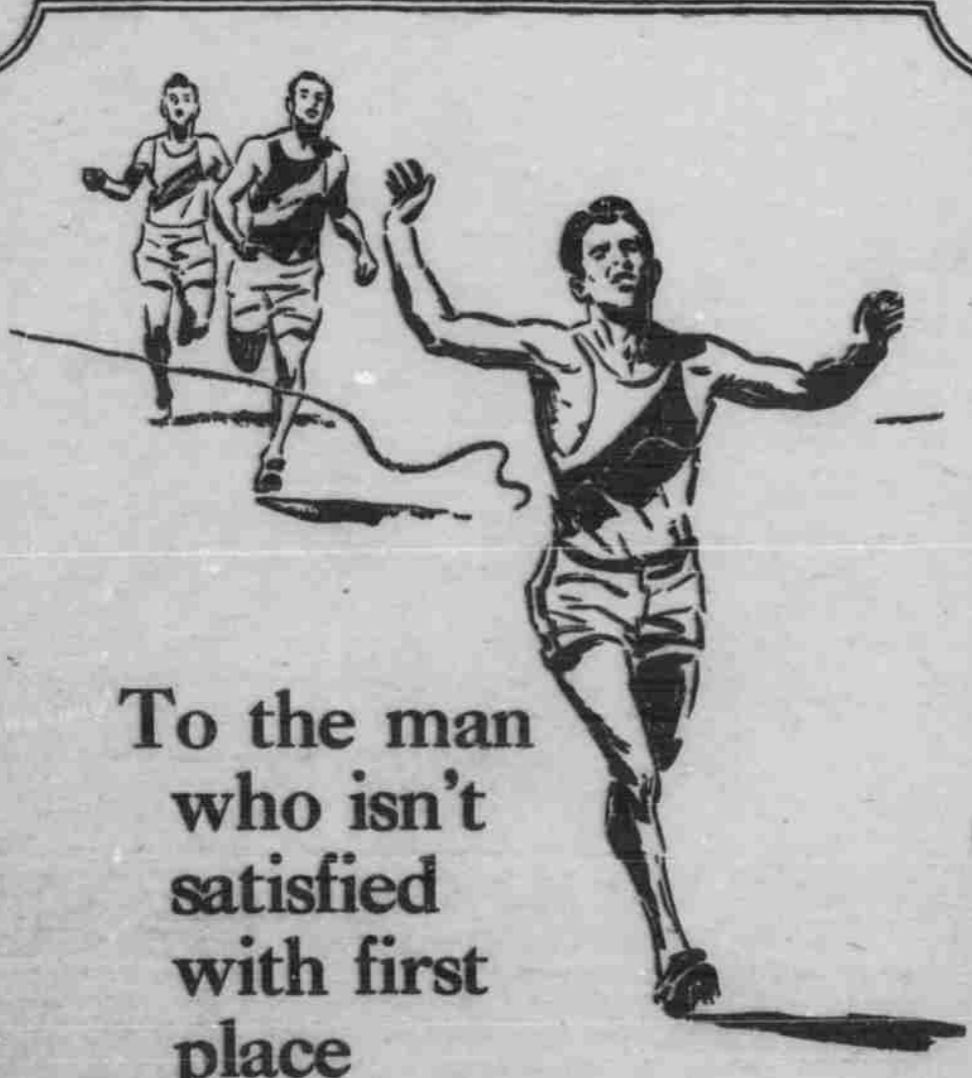

See Regent, College and Clarion, three models that conform to our ideas of what a real suit should be.

To the man who isn't satisfied with first place

THE man who wins a race can't afford to get complacent over it. His next step is to improve on his own running time.

The electrical communication industry in America ranks first in the world, with exceptional facilities for research and constructive work.

But the men in this industry are never satisfied to let it go at that. No process, no matter how satisfactory, by whom devised or how well bulwarked by age, is here immune from challenge.

This dynamic state of mind must appeal mightily to men who are pioneers at heart.
