"People consider the drug store about as any other store," Mr. Porter pointed out, "and it is our business to make people know the difference. We should bring out the professional side by giving first aid and immediate relief. We have a trust to perform and if we make a mistake we are liable to kill some one. When a customer pays an enormous price for fifteen cents worth of medicine he is paying something for responsibility."

Mr. Porter told of the general progress drug stores have made in a business way, emphasizing the importance of (Continued on Page Three.)

Engineers and Law Students Stage Riot Over Destruction of Dirigible

Something very near to a riot and closely resembling a "free for all" was staged by the engineer and law students on the second floor of the Law building Wednesday morning after 11 o'clock classes had started. Dean Foster of the College of Law, interrupted, and was of the opinion that fresh air and blue skies were more in fitting with such demonstrations. The encounter continued to rage between the Library and the Law building a few seconds later as the result of an attempt on the part of the Engineers to avenge the burning and wholesale destruction of their dirigible, the E27, placed in front of the Administration building to advertise Engineers' Week, while they were at convocation.

"It seems like the Engineers and the Law never did get along some way," was the remark of John Peterson, janitor of the Law school who has held that post for some time as he looked out of the window of the building.

"Lots of Noise" was the way the janitor described the incident occurring between the two buildings. He believes, however, that the Engineers' must be Engineers in the true sense of the word as he was at a complete loss to understand how they managed to put the large sign on the Law building advertising Engineers' Week which was torn from its heights by the Law students early Wednesday morning.

A quart of gasoline purchased at the filling station immediately across from the Law building and a match was all that was needed to start the much advertised balloon in flames and the largest class fight in years. The wire holding the dirigible in position was loosened letting it fall to the ground where holes were poked in it with sticks and the fire encouraged.

Most of the Engineers' ring this attack on their balloon were at convocation. As soon as convocation was over a large number of them went to the Law College but found little resistance there because most of the lawyers were in classes.
