

Teachers College To Begin Classes Monday

With a normal registration of approximately 200 students, classes in the Teachers College high school will start Monday. The new principal and director of teacher training is W. H. Morton, formerly superintendent of schools at Beatrice. The high school serves as a laboratory for University students in the Teachers college, and is accredited in all colleges in the North Central association, which embraces the Missouri Valley.

KEEGAN CALLS SUMMER MEDICAL WORK SUCCESS

The full semester summer teaching schedule for senior students at the College of Medicine in Omaha has been pronounced a success by Dean J. Jay Keegan after its first trial this year. Twenty-eight students were enrolled in the summer session, which began May 30 and ended September 17. This schedule allows the senior students to complete their work in February, 1928, instead of June.

College Men say: "Nothing else will do"

We have occasionally made the grave error of offering some other style of suit to a college man. But we found ourselves distinctly out of order. Nothing else would do but this one 3-button style by

Society Brand

It's the prevailing style of the season, done with an air of careless correctness that only the Society Brand cut can give. Straight, full cut; broad shouldered; with high lapels. In rich fabrics—

BEWITCHING!

New! Adorable! Utterly Chic!

Vain, indeed, the attempt to describe these utterly bewitching afternoon frocks! For who can put into words the intangible loveliness of flaring satin, the jaunty twitter of new pleats, the perkiness of bows, and the triumphs that are their necklines?

Who can describe the autumnal gold of chestnut brown, the delight of marron, the warmth of pampie? Full appreciation can only come upon seeing this exquisite collection, and the low prices at which they are being offered.
