TWENTY REPORT TO COACH BLACK

Varsity Basketball Starts With Work on Short Passing And Free Throws

Varsity basketball under the regime of Coach Black found twenty men going through the practice session Thursday afternoon.

Short passing tactics and free-throw tossing received the bulk of attention. Dribbling and footwork tactics were stressed during the last half hour of practice. Elliott, Othmer and Olson, regulars from last year's quintet, were busy showing the other candidates how it was done.

Coach Black had a small group of freshmen tossing baskets at the east end of the Coliseum. Several Lincoln high school products were suited up and with about ten others from out in the state formed the nucleus for this season's yearling team. Kimball, rangy center, looks like fine material for a future Varsity pivot man.

At the close of the football season, several basketball regulars will be ready to devote their time to the indoor pastimes.

BEARG PLANS TO WORK RESERVES AGAINST IOWANS

Bronson Or Peaker Slated to Start As Quarterback In Saturday Tilt

PASSING GAME EXPECTED

Howell and Brown Suffering From Injuries Received In Tiger Clash

The Grinnell-Nebraska game at Memorial Stadium field Saturday will be handled by Coach Bearg's reserves according to word received from the Husker mentor last night.

Bill Bronson will be calling signals against the Pioneer eleven and Bearg has a combination of two different backfields that he intends to use against the Iowa invaders, but the starting backfield is not known. The backfield material the Nebraska coach is considering is "Dutch" Witte for one of the halfback positions, with "Bud" McBride, Harold Peaker, Clair Sloan or Victor Beck for the remaining three positions in the Husker backfield.

Seconds Show Up Well

The second string has been showing up in the practice sessions and handles the passing attack that the Husker coaches are drilling in like a team of veterans. Two touchdowns were scored on the Varsity eleven Wednesday evening during the practice scrimmage.

With either Sloan or Witte in the Husker backfield the punting department is considerably strengthened. Sloan and Witte are both consistent punters and Sloan is developing into a good pass heater for the reserves. Bearg has shifted "Bud" McBride to quarter. The Lincoln high school star was barking signals for the second string backs last night on the practice field and may appear in the new role as quarter in the Husker-Pioneer game Saturday.

Peaker Works At Quarter

Harold Peaker was also in the quarterback position last night during practice and will be in Saturday's game. Passing will be one of the main offensive cogs in Bearg's Scarlet machine against the Grinnell eleven. The Iowa team will also have a passing attack to launch against the Nebraskans.

"Blue" Howell, who has been carrying a bad side injury since the Iowa State game is showing rapid improvement and may see service in the game this week. Bearg does not intend to use many of his regular eleven but plans to save them for the crucial clash with Syracuse, October 29. Captain "Jug" Brown will be the second backfield man who will not play Saturday against Grinnell. The Husker captain received an injured back in the Tiger game and the coaching staff will give him a complete rest before the eastern game.

Earl Johnson will not handle the Grinnell-Nebraska game but the job as referee will be handled by Pete Welch of Des Moines.

PLANS STARTED FOR 'TRADITION' AWGWAN

Work on Second Issue Gets Under Way As Sales of First Progress; All May Contribute

With the first number of the Awgwan selling steadily, plans are rapidly going forward for the second or "Traditions Number," Munro Kezer, editor, announced Thursday. Hal F. Childs, business manager, announced Thursday that subscriptions to the Awgwan may be taken at the Awgwan office in the basement of U Hall.

"If you have a pet idea on traditions, bring it down," Munro Kezer said yesterday. He intimated that the pot was boiling and that contributors could begin to turn in their copy. Nebraska traditions have been a pet subject of attack both pro and con in recent years. The next number of the Awgwan will attempt to gather all the humor surrounding Nebraska traditions into its pages.

Cartoon copy should be in by October 20, the editor announces. Other copy should be in by October 24 at the latest, with most of it needed in before the twentieth. Any students in the University are eligible to contribute to the Awgwan.

Former Instructor Visits Campus
Dr. Luella Gettys, former Political Science instructor at Nebraska and now on the Political Science staff at Chicago University, visited the campus during the past week.

100 Percent Increase
An increase of 100 percent in the enrollment for journalism courses at the University of Texas has been reported.

Students Get Game Returns On Grid-Graph

To give the students a graphic representation of football games played away from home, students in the college of engineering at the University of South Dakota have devised and built an electric scoreboard or "grid-graph" which gives a realistic picture of the game that almost equals seeing it in person.

Telegraphic returns of the game are received direct from the field by the operators of the grid-graph and then flashed upon the board.
