Trip to Erin Holds Appeal To McCormack

An interesting story is told of John McCormack, celebrated Irish tenor, who is to make his appearance in the coliseum, Wednesday evening, November 9. The incident was related by Archie Bell, dramatic and musical critic for the Cleveland News.

"When I was calling upon John McCormack yesterday, I was witness when he did a very shocking thing. He threw away $12,000. In these times that seems worse than shocking—almost monstrous, in fact. Instead of that, it was Irish sentimentality; and when that is to be considered, money, any amount of it, doesn't count.

"A telegram arrived offering $12,000 for a concert around the Christmas and New Year's holiday. What about it? asked his manager.

Wants To Go To Ireland

"No! There was not even an argument about it. Then McCormack explained to me. I'm going to Ireland for Christmas—that's why. I'm going to light big fires in those fireplaces at Moore Abbey (his estate outside of Dublin) and spend the holidays with my family and friends

LERNER CAST FOR LEAD

"Liliom," Molnar's dramatic comedy of Budapest, will be presented by the University players November 10, 11, 12, in the Temple theater. This is the second season production, and will be one of the most elaborate, in both stage settings and acting, that the players have yet attempted, under the direction of Miss H. Alice Howell, and Herbert Yenne, Zolley Lerner will play "Liliom."

The play was first presented for a full year in New York first by the Theater Guild at the Garrick theater, later at the Fulton theater; both places, it drew great crowds, and attracted a great deal of comment on its unusual and original plot and daring type of sets and unusual stage effects.

'Liliom' Is A Tough

The main character of the play is "Liliom," a Budapest tough and shiftless ne'er-do-well. The play moves from a Hungarian carnival through a lonely park rendezvous. There is even a glimpse of life beyond, in Heaven and Purgatory. The wonderful originality and freshness of Molnar's mastery in handling his theme has injected a subtle and facile humor in the work that captivates as well as amazes his audiences.

Mr. Dwight Kirsch, scenic director has been working for almost a year on the sets for "Liliom." Offering as it does an unusual diversity of stage arrangements, the play as presented here will delight its patrons with new and beautiful sets, especially designed for "Liliom," which means 'roughneck' in Hungarian. The sets for the scenes in the after-worlds are especially striking.

Season tickets will admit to "Liliom." Special student matinees will be Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock; Saturday matinee for the public at the same time. Evening performances start promptly at 8 o'clock.
