

Fourteen Huskers Play Last Time

Grange who romped over the country's gridirons for the Illini two years ago. Glenn led the scorers of the Valley and leaves a vacant place in the Husker backfield that will be difficult to fill next season.

Oehlrich Noted for Defense
Arnold Oehlrich, Husker fullback and one of the best defensive men in the conference, is the third back to be lost to the Cornhusker school this season. Oehlrich has completed his three years for Nebraska and during those three seasons he was a tower of strength in the Scarlet backfield. Oehlrich was the man who kept the opposing backs from penetrating the Husker forward wall and backed up the line on plunges. His offensive work and snagging passes was a bright spot in the season's victories.

The last three Husker backs to be lost by graduation this year are: Bill Bronson, quarterback; Don Lindell, quarterback; and "Vic" Beck, halfback. Bill Bronson alternated with Captain "Jug" Brown at the pilot position all season and was named on several All-Valley elevens. His work in the Nebraska backfield was one of the high lights in the 1927 season. Beck and Lindell were both reserve backs and when inserted into the Cornhusker backfield came through with the necessary yardage.

Randels Lost to Line
In the line, Nebraska loses Ray Randels, All-Valley tackle and one of the best linemen in the middle west. Randels was elected captain of the line and his last year on the Husker gridiron gained for him the respect of his teammates and the recognition of football critics throughout the country. Randels is considered one of the best tackles ever turned out at Nebraska and his place in the Nebraska line was a powerhouse on defense this season.

Prosmell and Randels were two of the graduating players who received the highest honor of conference players when they were invited by Coach "Andy" Kerr of Washington and Jefferson, to play on the All-Eastern team. Both accepted the invitation and will feature in the All-East-All-

West game at San Francisco this month.

Lawson and Lee Go
Vint Lawson and Eward Lee, the Nebraska wingmen, are lost next year by graduation. Lee's work all season brought comment from fans and critics alike. His work in the Kaggie game at Manhattan was of the stellar variety and the long pass that he snagged from "Dutch" Witte brought the initial Husker touchdown. Again in the New York game the Scarlet wingman brought the 35,000 Thanksgiving fans to their feet by his sensational and deadly tackling.

Lawson was Lee's mate on the other end of the line and upheld the reputation of his side. Lawson was a great defensive man and he got down on punts and passes in great style. His three years of Husker football are completed and his loss to Nebraska will be a big one.

Lose Five Others
Other members of the scarlet clad Cornhuskers who will be lost by graduation are: Lloyd Grow, center; Clarence Raish, guard; George Shaner, end; Leon Sprague, end; and Bob Whitmore, guard.

Next fall football practice will start again as it has been since back in the dim dark days of the 80's but these fourteen men will not check out suits. They will be out in the busy world in some line of progress and the Nebraska coaching staff will spend long hours of hard and stren-ous work to mould up men to take the place of Prosmell, Brown, Oehlrich, Randels, and many others. But the coming sophomores promise just as much in store for Cornhusker football fans as this year did. The places of these graduating stars will be filled and will be filled by men of sterling ability and Husker fight.

Purple and gold corsages, the proceeds of which go to the Y. W. C. A., are sold to University of Washington women at football games.

FOOTBALL

Nebraska's brilliant record the past season has been one of achievement and glory. The country's greatest coaches have nothing but praise for the "Scarlet Jerseyed Cornhuskers."
I now wish to congratulate our team for their decisive victories. Our coaches had to match their genius with master coaches such as Meehan of N. Y. U., Henry of Missouri, Bachman of Kansas Aggies and Andreas of Syracuse and in all but one of these games won decisive victories.
