Ted James

Ted James played his second year as center on the Husker eleven and is rated by critics as one of the best pivot men in the Missouri Valley conference. He won a place on several All-Valley selections. James is a junior this year and will be back next fall to give the coming sophomores competition for the center position. He makes his home in Greeley, Colorado and is figured to make even a greater name on the gridiron next season.

Cliff Ashburn

Cliff Ashburn, 190-pound Cornhusker wingman who proved his ability on the gridiron this season. Ashburn is one of the best wingmen in the Valley and will be back next fall for the end position. Cliff is big and fast and got down on punts this year to such an extent that Husker punts were very seldom returned to any great amount of yardage. When it comes to snapping passes out of the other Ashburn is under them. Next year will find the big Nebraska end back in the camp of the Cornhuskers.

Avard Lee

Avard Lee, Cornhusker end that will be lost to Nebraska next year. Lee weighs 170 pounds and was the hardest fighting end in the Husker camp. His work in the Kansas Aggie and New York games was of the stellar variety and his services will be greatly missed next fall. Lee was placed on several All-Valley elevens and received honorable mention in All-Western teams. His home is in Edgemont, South Dakota.

Raymond Richards

One of the greatest sophomore prospects Nebraska had this year was Raymond "Big" Richards, 200-pound tackle who won a regular berth in the Scarlet forward wall. Nebraska's line was only penetrated three times during the first three games for a first and ten and it was men like Richards that kept the opposing backs from gaining through the Nebraska line. Richards worked beside Holm in the line and both these men will be back at Nebraska next season. Richards is also the Nebraska kickoff man.

Vint Lawson

Vint Lawson, 170-pound end who graduates this year. Lawson was one of the best defensive ends in the Cornhusker camp and came to Nebraska from Omaha. He earned a letter in football all three years he played with the Scarlet eleven. Competition at the end position was keen all season and Lawson held down his wing position in veteran style all year. He is another line man who will be missed from the Husker camp next season.

Captain John Brown

Captain "Jug" Brown who led the Cornhuskers through one of the most successful seasons on the gridiron. Brown as pilot of the Nebraska eleven was one of the shift-with veteran ability. His work in the Kansas Aggie game at Manhattan was one of the best exhibitions of ball juggling work by the Cornhusker captain in the last few minutes of play. "Jug" played his last year with the Nebraskans, coming to the Husker school from Lincoln high where he had established his name in gridiron circles.

Glenn Presnell

Glenn Presnell, thundering Cornhusker halfback and the outstanding football man in the Missouri Valley conference. Presnell was selected on several All-American elevens and on all the Valley star selections. He was the greatest ground gaining ace ever to play for the Scarlet and Cream. He gained more ground during his last year at Nebraska than the Illinois "Dash," "Red" Grange. Presnell also led the Valley scorers for the season. His vacant place in the Husker backfield will be hard to fill next fall.

Blue Howell

Blue Howell, Presnell's running mate in the Nebraska backfield was another backfield ace of the stellar variety and will be back at the Husker camp next fall. Blue was considered by critics to be the hardest driving back through the line in the Valley conference. He was second in the scoring column and accounted for many Cornhusker touchdowns during the season. Blue comes from Omaha and weighs 185 pounds. His powerhouse drive will be a big asset to Nebraska on the gridiron next year.

"Dutch" Witte

"Dutch" Witte was the scarlet clad back who threw the long forward fling to Lee in the Kansas Aggie game that gave Nebraska its first touchdown. Witte played his first year with Nebraska and was a stellar performer all season. He can run the end and pass in veteran style and will be a big asset to the Hoopmen next fall.

George Shaner

George Shaner, wingman on the Bear eleven is another lineman to be lost to Nebraska next year. Shaner made his letter this season and was a fast end on grabbing forward passes out of the air. He comes from North Platte and has played his three years with the Scarlet eleven.

"Bud" McBride

"Bud" McBride, sophomore halfback who developed into one of the best halves in the Valley this season. He rated high in the scoring column and could always be counted on for gains through the opponent's line or around the wing. McBride played his high school football with Lincoln high and will be back at Nebraska next fall for a halfback berth.

Leroy Lucas

Leroy Lucas, 215-pound tackle and player his second year with the Cornhuskers was number of line coach "Bunny" Oakes' valuable Hoopmen. Lucas showed veteran ability this season in the line and will be back again next fall to fight for Nebraska.

Bob Whitmore

Bob Whitmore, 180-pound Nebraska guard has played his last year for the Scarlet and Cream. Bob made his letter this year and was in the thick of the fight all season. He came to Nebraska from Scottsbluff and has played his three years of Cornhusker football.

Leon Sprague

Leon Sprague, the third Cornhusker wingman to be lost to Nebraska for next year. Sprague was one of the shiftest ends on the Nebraska eleven this season and possessed an unusual ability to snap punts. He weighs 170 pounds and comes from York.
