

Gertrude Ederle Finds Diversion At Military Ball at Penn State College

State College, Pa.—(Intercollegiate Press and Penn State Collegian)—This is an age of specialization and champions, beyond all others, are expected to keep within their assigned bounds.

Gertrude Ederle, however, has a mind of her own in regard to such matters and Friday night varied her extended vaudeville tour with diversion entirely new to her. She went dancing in collegiate surroundings.

Greeted at the door of her dressing room shortly before her performance at the Richlieu theater in Bellefonte, on Friday afternoon by three unabashed Penn State students, the popular channel victor was not kept long in doubt as to the reason for the call.

"Hello, Trudy," smiled one young man, "we just came over to invite you to the big dance at the college tonight."

"That'll be great!" exclaimed Miss Ederle, and forthwith her manager, A. J. Clarke, self-styled as an international theatrical manager from England, was informed of her plans.

All previous arrangements were cast aside, and after introducing her two girl companions, Ethel and Marion Baker, of California, Gertrude dismissed the three suitors for her attention and proceeded to dress for her appearance on the stage. Suddenly she struck her head from behind the partly closed door and called to the retreating students, "Don't get any publicity going, I won't have it. If there's anything I hate it's publicity."

As the clock in Old Main tower struck ten-thirty Gertrude Ederle accompanied by her two diving assistants entered the bedecked armory with the escorts and Manager Clarke trailing behind as rear guard.

Whitey Kaufman and his band was holding the undivided attention of some four hundred couples. But gradually a buzz spread around the floor.

"There's Gertrude Ederle!" "My, but isn't she small!" "Yeah, but she's got a greater chest expansion than Jack Dempsey, think of that."

The low heels tapped along the floor unheeding. The modest brown silk dress swished becomingly. All manner of signals, ostentatious and covert, were ignored as the trio of heroes ran the gauntlet of sighs, attention-drawing coughs and admiring eyes.

At intermission Miss Ederle had been accepted as one of the party to such a degree that her passing on the dance floor failed to elicit comment from any of the swaying couples.

"I'm glad they've forgotten me, or gotten used to me, or whatever they have done," confided the avoider of publicity to a companion in the booth.

"When this tour of ours is over I'm going to teach school. Either that or manage a tank somewhere. Why I might even become a co-ed here."

But then she laughed, and the male contingent leaned back in their chairs.

The Penn State Military Ball was a success, for three young men.

Carnival Program Nears Completion

scheduled to start promptly at 7 o'clock Friday evening with the championship inter-fraternity basketball game between the Kappa Sigma and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternities. This will represent the final in the basketball tournament which has been going on for some time.

Following the opening cage tilt in rapid succession will come other intramural athletics. The floor of the Coliseum has been converted into a veritable "three-ring-circus", the first ring being a twelve-lap mile track; the second a boxing and wrestling ring; and the third a basketball court. Relays will be an important feature of the Carnival. There will be interfraternity relays, and relays between companies of the R. O. T. C. A special item on the program, and one which is causing considerable comment, is the Inter-sorority Relay.

Exhibition work will be done by varsity and freshman track men. It will consist of pole-vauling, high jumping and dashes. "Chief" Elkins will demonstrate skill in high-jumping.

Clowns Will Entertain

According to James Lewis, a sufficient number of athletic features have been provided, and a systematic program arranged so that there will be no delays from 7 until 10 o'clock, when the dancing begins. Among the special entertainment features are "Bill" Fleming's clowns. According to Fleming they will enter in every athletic event, and also in the clogging contest which is being arranged by "Bud" McBride. The clowns will be the general fun-makers of the evening and will keep everyone in a good humor. The clowns will present a number of skits which Fleming guarantees will be something entirely different from anything ever seen around the University. These acts will be kept secret until Friday evening.

Invitations have been sent to a number of prominent persons in the University and in Lincoln. Among those to whom invitations to serve as patrons and patronesses have been sent are Mr. and Mrs. Adam McMullen; Mr. and Mrs. S. R. McKelvie; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Burnett; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thompson; the deans of the colleges in the University, and the members of the Board of Regents. A complete list of those who have accepted will be published in Friday's Daily Nebraskan, which will serve as a program at the Husker Intramural Carnival.

Audrey Beales led the meeting. The Industrial Experiment is held to give a selected group of college girls who expect to enter social work an opportunity to understand, if possible, the factors in the lives of factory girls which make them react to conditions in the way they do.

"When we seek to understand others, we feel that we are understood better, and in this Industrial Experiment one feels a very positive gain in losing that little feeling of being misunderstood," began Miss Shallcross.

"The first three days of the experiment were spent in deciding what sort of jobs we would try to get, how we would study conditions in the factories, and in getting acquainted with the city and with each other," she continued. Last summer there were fourteen girls at the experiment from colleges as far east as Mount Holyoke and as far west as the University of Kansas.

"A factory girl's conversation takes in just as wide a variety of topics as any college girl's conversation does," she speaker asserted, "religion, the boy friend, and even evolution.

"Religion to the working girl is almost nothing more than mere mockery, and consists entirely in going to church where one is very likely to be turned out of a rented pew."

Factory employees feel that it is the industrial population who send students to college, and that a student's college life is just four easy years of escape from the cold reality of a job.

"Transoms above two show windows furnished the only ventilation in the large room in which we worked," Miss Shallcross stated, "and as a result the ventilation and the air were terrible. We had to rush and hurry all day long in order to complete the work that was given to us each day, and new patterns that seemed so interesting when we first worked with them became dreadfully monotonous when we had worked on three, four, or even ten dozen of the same pattern all day long."

Miss Shallcross lived in a working girls' home a few blocks from the hat factory in which she worked and shared an attic room on the third floor with three other working girls, who become interesting companions.

"When we realize that the factory girl is not a type, but a real and individual personality, we will be better able to understand her," Miss Shallcross concluded.

Any girls who are interested in the experiment may consult Miss Appleby in Ellen Smith Hall. She can give more detailed information concerning requirements, purposes and opportunities of the work.

ning when the Husker meets the Jayhawkers. At present it looks as if Ennor Kellogg, a brother of Coach John Kellogg, will represent Nebraska for he has beaten every one in his class in the tryouts for the 115 pound class. In the 125 pound class Max Karrer has defeated Aubrey Hurren and Kenneth Mallette who were competing for the varsity position.

A week from Saturday evening Feb. 11, Nebraska will go to Norman to engage the Oklahoma University team in the wrestling matches. Oklahoma has just defeated Oklahoma A. and M., winning three out of four matches.

On the return trip the wrestlers will meet the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan, Monday evening, February 13.

PHI SIGS WILL PLAY A.G.R. IN LAST GAME

Class B Basket Tourney Narrows Down; Pi Kaps, Sig Alphas Are Conquered

The Greek Class B basket tourney went into the final round when Alpha Gamma Rho won 20-13 from Pi Kappa Alpha and Phi Sigma Kappa took Sigma Alpha Epsilon to a 20-12 cleaning in the semi-final round last night.

All teams were quite evenly matched. The Phi Sig game centered around Trively who scored 18 of the 20 points. The Sig Alpha scores were evenly divided, with McBride as the main cog. Both teams entered the game with determination but the Sig Alpha team came out from under a 12-2 lead at the half in good shape, but at the close of the game they lacked the final punch to win.

The Alpha Gamma Rho's led throughout the game though the score was close at times. Presnell played a nice game, dribbling through and feinting past the guards many times to score. The Pi Kappa Alpha team was handicapped by the smallness of several of their men, which made good passing difficult. Both teams tried hard, evidenced by the half score, 8-6.

LINDELL PARTY HOUSE

Talk in athletic circles around the Nebraska campus is all devoted to one subject these days—and that—the proposed Nebraska-Army football battle for next year. It is just talk but it has reached such an extent that it looks as if the big game will be realized.

Cornhusker followers in the national capitol are pushing hard for the game and government authorities in Washington favor the idea of a Cornhusker-Army game for 1928. The event will probably not be held in Lincoln because the Army graders have their traveling schedule filled. Army has never traveled farther than the Mississippi, Chicago being their longest trek.

Well anyway it is going to be a big boost for Nebraska and the Missouri Valley. It will be the first time in history that a Valley school has met the Cadets and stands a chance of bringing the West Point football team to Memorial Stadium in 1929 for a return game.

But this is the season of the court game and as it is played in the Missouri Valley Conference. Yes, Oklahoma is still leading the pack by a large margin and from the outlook of things the tall Sooners will continue.

Vic Holt the tall Sooner pivot man has swung into the lead for individual honors in the scoring column, taking the lead from "Ab" Wright, Sooner Aggie forward. Holt is one of the outstanding basketball players in the conference and is playing his last year with the Oklahoma.

Lloyd Hahn of Nebraska is setting a dizzy pace back in New York with his continued string of victories prior to the Olympic tryouts. Hahn is the star middle distance runner of the country and looks like the best bet for the Olympic team this year in the middle distances.

"Chief" Elkins is the second Nebraska man who has been mentioned favorably for a place on the Olympic team. Elkins was mentioned on the All-American selection by Daniel Ferris, A. A. U. secretary and treasurer.

Nebraska succeeded in taking the count from Iowa State in the Coliseum Saturday night. This makes two victories for the Husker quintet in seven starts, putting the Scarlet in eighth place in the 1928 Valley basket race. Kansas, champions on the court last season are in the same boat with Nebraska this year and are going through anything but a successful season on the hardwood.

The Jayhawkers have dropped three games in seven starts and are down in the second division. Oklahoma and Missouri are leading the race. The Sooners have a clear slate of eight straight victories and Mizou has lost but one game and that to the Huskers.

Holt and Wright of Oklahoma and Oklahoma Aggies are having a big race for individual honors in the scoring column. Wright, a sophomore at Stillwater jumped into the lead early in the season and startled followers of the court game by his sensational playing. Within the last few games Holt has taken the lead and has a total of 102 points to the 96 for Wright.

W. F. Richardson, Co. Supt. of Dixon Co., Nebr., was a visitor at the Extension department Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Richardson is in Lincoln attending the state meeting of the County Superintendent's Association.

NIGHT CLASSES OF UNIVERSITY BEGIN

Courses in Varied Fields Offered To Those Who Cannot Go to School During Day

Night classes offered by the University Extension Division are beginning this week Jan. 30—Febr. 4. According to A. A. Reed, Director of the Extension Division, there was an encouraging number in attendance at the following classes that met on Monday night: American History, Advanced Accounting, Money and Banking, Mechanical Drawing, Public Speaking, Drawing, Beginning French and Beginning Spanish.

Nineteenth Century Literature, an English course offered by Mr. R. B. Wilcox, will be divided into two divisions if there is a call for a graduate course.

Two courses are being offered in the field of Education. They are graduate courses, but provisions will be made for undergraduate divisions if there is a sufficient demand. Mr. C. C. Wiedemann teaches Problems in Character Education; Advanced Psychology will be taught by Mr. D. A. Worcester.

The night classes offer instructions for those who are unable to attend during the day. All courses give residence credit, but some may be carried without credit. A registration fee of one dollar is paid by each student not already registered for University work this semester. The tuition fee in most courses is three dollars a credit hour.

ANNUAL ART EXHIBIT OPENS FEBRUARY 15

Local Paintings And Chicago Art Institute Display Will Be Included in Exhibition

The annual exhibition of the Nebraska Art association will open in Morrill hall February 15.

The collection on display will include the fall exhibit of the Chicago Art Institute and will be supplemented by representative local painters.

During the exhibition the School of Fine Arts will exhibit for the first time the Gregg collection of etchings, presented to the school by Will C. Gregg of Hackensack, N. J., a former student of the University. Other features will be an exhibit of Rockwood pottery in the corridors, and a collection of cartoons.

Neihardt Will Judge Creighton U. Poetry

Omaha, Nebr., Jan. 31—John G. Neihardt, poet laureate of Nebraska and book editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will act as sole judge in the poetry section of the writing contest to be conducted by "Shadows", the Creighton University literary magazine. The contest will be open to all Creighton students and cash prizes totalling sixty dollars will be at stake.

Franklin J. Vogt, winner of the last year's short story contest, and Miss Kathryn Southard, winner of the poetry competition, are among the entries this year.

Olmstead Visits Campus Recently

G. D. Olmstead, '22, now supervisor of the Aluminum Cooking

Utensil Company, was a recent caller at the College of Business Administration.

While in university Mr. Olmstead sold aluminum ware for the Wear-Ever Company. Mr. Olmstead's company employs a great many college men—in fact, prefers them. He plans to take a number of college students for a special campaign during the summer.

Madison, Wis.—(IP)—A survey held by a sociology student at the University of Wisconsin has shown that Japanese instructors are the least popular of all nationalities on the faculty.

New Haven, Conn.—(IP)—The Yale Daily News, advertising itself as the oldest daily college paper in the United States, is to celebrate its fiftieth anniversary this week.
