INVESTIGATION IN STUDENT CAR ISSUE PROCEEDS

GATHER DATA SINCE FALL

Tabulations Show That Bulk Of Automobiles Bear Lancaster Plate

Editor's Note:
The question of student ownership and operation of automobiles has been an important topic of current student discussion. The following interview with Dr. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, is published to show the present status of the investigation of the automobile situation.

Investigation of the problem of student ownership and operation of automobiles will be continued during the present semester, Dr. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, announced Thursday. The recently prepared report of the faculty committee to the Board of Regents indicated that sufficient investigation had not yet been made to warrant recommendations for action.

Gathering of information concerning the automobile problem has been carried on since the middle of the fall. After the Board of Regents' pronouncement last fall that restrictions should be placed on student cars, following an investigation of the situation on the Nebraska campus. Dean Thompson and Prof. E. F. Schramm, chairman of the Interfraternity Council, were appointed by Acting Chancellor Burnett to conduct the investigation.

Study of the campus car situation showed that the bulk of the automobiles on the campus were Lancaster county cars. During second semester registration, a check was made on the number of cars operated by students. 1294 students indicated that they operated cars. Seven hundred and sixty-five of these were owned by Lincoln residents and 529 by persons outside of Lincoln.

Parking A Local Problem
That the bulk of the parking problem is a local problem was indicated by a survey made by the dean of student affairs as to the number of cars parked in and around the University, and on both sides of R street from Tenth street to Fourteenth street.

The survey was made three mornings of final examination week for the first semester, when it was believed the maximum number of cars would be present. It was also made at 9 o'clock, in the belief that that would be the peak hour for number of cars.

Out of 432 cars in this area, the first day of the check, 348 bore Lancaster county tags, 65 were Nebraska cars outside of Lancaster county and 19 were out-of-state cars. This was on Wednesday, January 18. The next day, there were 429 cars parked, 335 of which were Lancaster county cars, 80, other Nebraska cars, and 14 from out of the state. Friday's report showed a total of 413 parked cars of which 330 were from Lancaster county, 68 from other parts of the state and 15 from outside the state. These figures include cars belonging to faculty and employees, as well as students.

Rumor Selects 'Dark Horse' As New May Queen

Supposition Says That Co-Ed Political Dope Bucket Is Kicked Over

Rumor has it that the "dope" was upset in the May Queen election yesterday, and although it was not a card game apparently everything was not according to Hoyle.

For years the thirteen of Mortar Board have kept the Queen of Ivy day within their circle and groups whose crests loomed on the fair lady's breast, years after have pointed to her picture on the mantle with never ceasing pride.

Not so with this year's queen, the campus rumor says, for although sorority groups turned out in large numbers to cast their votes for their choices, a non-sorority, non-Mortar Board woman, it is said, will walk the plank to the holy of holies to have the garland of ivy placed upon her head.

Something Wrong
If this is the case for the first time in the history of Mortar Board a non-member will hold the honored place. Women may not have their (Continued on Page 2)

SUB-COMMITTEE ON STUDENT ACTIVITIES GIVES APPROVAL

Green Goblins, Mystic Fish, Iron Sphinx, Xi Delta, Vikings, Silver Serpents, and Valkyrie, Will Not Exist After June 1; Innocents and Mortar Board Survive

SORORITIES MAY ENTER DRIVES AS RECOMMENDED

Additional Provisional Ruling Allows Card Parties to Be Held in Residential Buildings on Campus and Subject To Similar Rules of Other Functions

By Paul Nelson

Recommendation of the student council to abolish all class and inter-class honorary societies with the exception of Innocents and Mortar Board was unanimously approved by the committee on student activities yesterday afternoon. The only alteration in the recommendation made by the committee was that it include Valkyrie as one of the organizations to be abolished. The abolition will become effective June 1, 1928, according to Miss Amanda Heppner, secretary of the committee on student organizations.

A further change in the rules governing organizations and social functions allows card parties to be held on the campus. They may not be held in any campus buildings except residential buildings and are subject to the same rules that govern other parties.

Alumni organizations and Mother's clubs may hold card parties in organization houses on week day afternoons.

The recommendation concerning honoraries had been referred to a sub-committee composed of Professor Rankin, Professor Engberg and Miss Heppner. The sub-committee submitted the following report to the committee:

"Your sub-committee recommends that all class and inter-class societies be abolished, except Innocents and Mortar Board. This is in accordance with the recommendation of the student council except that it includes Valkyrie which appears to your sub-committee to be sufficiently similar to the other organizations which are being abolished to make its omission by us discriminatory. The organizations whose abolition is here by recommended are known as Green Goblins, Mystic Fish, Iron Sphinx, Xi Delta, Vikings, Silver Serpents and Valkyrie."

Provision Made
If the abolition of honorary societies proves detrimental to the carrying out of student activities, the committee will consider requests for their reinstatement or any other plan that students may recommend, according to Miss Heppner. The committee approved of sororities taking part in drives as recommended by the student council. Innocents and Mortar Board may appoint any one they wish to help them in handling campus activities and drives, in the opinion of the committee.

It is the opinion of the committee, according to Miss Heppner's statement, that the abolition of class and inter-class honorary societies will give class officers an opportunity to function. It is felt that they have had no chance to do anything because of the abundance of organizations for taking care of campus activities.

Little Defense
The sub-committee held two meetings in which representatives of the honorary societies under consideration were permitted to appear and submit reports to justify their continued existence. Many of them failed to send representatives and there was little opposition on the part of the organizations. Valkyrie representatives felt that their organization should not be abolished because it was not an honorary, but the committee held that it had no more right to existence than any other inter-class society.

The recommendation as amended will be returned to the student council for its approval before the final abolition of the organizations is put into effect.

BLAR-EYED PLEDGES EXHIBIT EFFECTS OF PROBATION EXPEDITIONS AND STUNTS

Uncanny Noises, Scared Neophytes, and Fleeing Black Cats, Signify That Fraternities Are Setting Freshmen to Tasks.

The battle is on! The fight for life, liberty, death, or "what have you," started on its first lap last evening, and freshmen have acquired that thoughtless, woe-begotten expression that screams out in thunderous tones—"Probation is on!"

In some instances the joyous and gala events began Thursday morning, and the campus was dotted here and there with chauffeurs, door-men, tobacco salesmen, and other miscellaneous looking characters, to say nothing of those who appeared deaf and dumb, especially to our fair co-eds.

In several classes, instructors were forced to keep a watchful eye on those who slunk in their chairs and slept ever so peacefully until they were brought back to the realization that it was class they were attending.

Lincoln After Midnight
Lincoln streets, all during last night were dotted with hurrying and scurrying individuals who appeared to have no definite destination in view but it could be plainly seen that they were going some place. Those who were questioned replied nothing and those who had black cats, pigeons, dogs, sparrows, and other articles beyond enumeration, carried (Continued on Page 3.)

Russian Students at Washington Are Glad to Study After Life of Turmoil

Seattle, Wash. —(IP)—Exiles from the nation of their birth, men who fought under the flags of the "White Armies" to retain the old regime in Russia—and lost, to be driven out of their native land by the victorious "Reds", this is the background of turmoil and havoc of those who make up the bulk of the Russian students at the University of Washington, according to the University of Washington Daily.

"I think all of us like Washington," explains Vadim Pan, who recently arrived in Seattle after graduating from a Russian-Chinese school in the Chinese town to which hundreds of exiles from the "Red regime" fled. "To many of us, Washington personifies quiet, independence, a chance to study after years of excitement, flights and hurried exile."

Revolution Interfered With Students
They were Russians and they were dreamers. The revolution interfered with their studies and so they joined in the attempt to put it down. With the victory of the "Red" came death or flight.

The majority of the fifty Russian students at Washington are in engineering. This field is chosen, they explain, because difficulties with the American language do not form as great an obstacle as in the other schools.

The first group of Russian students came over from the Orient about five years ago. These students found things strange and new and had little help in getting used to the new environment. The later students, however, have the way paved for them by those who have gone before, and find things easier.

Practically all of the Russian students are working their own way. The Russian students Association in New York lends a hand by making them loans, to be paid up after the students graduate.
