bate the idea of winning decisions is more and more minimized," stated Professor White, varsity debate coach. "It is discovered that students are no more likely to attend debates when decisions for a particular team are being promised than they are, on the average, to attend other forum debates judged by the entire audiences on the merits of the subjects themselves."

Participants in Debate

The debate at Auburn has been requested, and promises to be well attended. Archie S. McMillan, named as one of the Nebraska three, is a graduate of Lincoln High school where he debated for three years. He is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Journalism. This is McMillan's first debate for the University of Nebraska.

Frank B. Morrison entered the University of Nebraska College of Law last September from the Kansas Agricultural College, a three season debater from the Kansas school. He was a championship orator in two contests, holding the degree of distinction in both debate and oratory in Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic society. Last year Mr. Morrison was a member of the Kansas Aggies team which debated the McNary-Haugen question against the University of Nebraska. This will be his third debate against the University of Kansas.

Joseph Ginsburg, who debated last month at Beatrice against Kansas Agricultural College, is a freshman in the College of Law. He was graduated from the Ponca High school, having taken an active part in forensic activities in that school.

Debaters Will Meet Colorado

On the same evening two students will uphold the negative on the Nicaraguan question against Drake University at the Technical High school at Omaha.

The debate at Auburn is one of a number of Nebraska debates that are being held out of Lincoln at towns requesting them, and promising interested audiences. The debate will be of the open forum type; no judge decision will be given, the audience voting as to whether or not their minds have been changed on the subject debated. This method of debate judging is considered more conducive to thought in the audience. A time will be given when persons desiring may express opinions on the subject.

1928 Year Book Contains Snap Shots

(Continued from Page 1) has been so planned as to work out a most clever piece of art work, critics in examining the work have declared. Space has been left on each side of the panel for the name and for other comment that the editors of this section may decide to use. In case the space is to be left vacant some colorful art work will be included in this division.

Stock to be used will be similar to that used throughout the pages of the book. A Della Robbia opening sheet will be included.

Work on other divisions of the book is well underway. The sorority and fraternity panels have been sent to the engravers. Organization pictures are still being arranged and will be in the hands of the engravers possibly within the next few weeks.

Editors of the student life section have planned some unique ideas to be carried out, which will make the section interesting and full of life, yet will be truly representative of Nebraska. They are asking all students who may have any student life material to hand it to them within the next few days. The staff members have been picked and personally informed of their election but will not be publically named until a later date.

Sales for the book have gone far beyond expectations of the business staff. A large number of subscriptions from individuals both alumni and non-alumni of the university have been received. Campus subscriptions have been larger than usual.

Manilla Girl Requests Nebraskan Subscription

Professor Gayle C. Walker of the School of Journalism, received a letter Saturday from Miss Frances P. Boomer, '27, requesting a subscription for The Daily Nebraskan.

Miss Boomer was graduated from the University of Nebraska last spring, having taken work in the School of Journalism. She is now an instructor of English in a high school in Manilla, Philippine Islands.
