Authorities tell us that it's as easy to be style right as ridiculously wrong. Knowing this we hesitate to offer new ideas unless told us by our stylists in style centers. So when we say that such a thing is right you can bet your bottom dollar that it is right.

Our stylist tells us that neckwear should not be worn with a large knot. Eastern schools, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan are wearing them smaller.

The well dressed Nebraska man wears pastel colored shirts with harmonizing plain colored neckwear. Green is very smart as is London Lavender, Sand, Tree Blue and Smoke.

And listen-when you see the smart greys and tans we're showing it won't be long 'for you have one. Never before have styles been so typically nonchalant; coats broad shoulder'd and snug at the hips—long flowing lines that are it. Soft roll lapels to the second button, trousers fairly wide. Stylists tell us they are what they're wearing at Princeton, Dartmouth and Yale.
