

TOMORROW IS BALLOTING DAY FOR STUDENTS

9 O'clock Classes Will Decide Leading Question of Day By Straw Vote

LIST INCLUDES FIFTEEN Choice of President for United States, and Other Data Is Requested

Who are you voting for? The question of the day will be decided Wednesday morning when all students in 9 o'clock classes will cast their ballots for their presidential candidates.

Fifteen candidates for the nomination for President of the United States are entered on the Primary preference ballots.

Besides the vote for the presidential candidate, the following data will be asked for on the ballot; the party affiliation of the student's father, that of his mother, the student's major study, and his classification in the University.

A resume is being run in The Daily Nebraskan of the fifteen candidates for the presidency.

Test Reveals Odd Concepts Of Volstead

Volstead reminds some people of "a religious type of temperance," Harvard calls up pictures of snobishness and fur coats, and Darwin suggests "bunk," according to the results of a "stereotype test" given recently to a history class of Prof. Roy E. Cochran.

The "stereotype test" is supposed to bring out the mental associations different individuals have for the same word or idea.

One student thought of his grandfather when the word Republican was given, another set down "the more honorable party."

Volstead reminded students of bootleggers, beer bottles, criminals, and Zion City. Other associations as set down in Professor Cochran's test:

Taxes—Yellow cabs, a burden, money; Mexico—a boiling pot, war; Smith—beer, cough drops; Bolshevism—red whiskers and bombs, long-haired men; Uncle Sam—protector of the world, mail boxes; Race—horses, negro, Roland Locke; Borah—bushy hair; Opera—high hats.

DAILY NEBRASKAN Inquiring Reporter

Comes to life for a day with queries on the Varsity Party asked at random on the campus.

Question: "What do you think about the Varsity parties?" Charles Bruce, '28, Lincoln. "I think it's a great idea—having the party out at Ag college this Saturday. Its new and different and that makes a good party."

Ralph Pray, '30, Loup City. "The Varsity parties have been great this year and I think the idea of University Night is fine."

Warren J. Ayres, '29, Lincoln. "It's going to be the only party in town Saturday night and with the Collegians playing it ought to be a good party."

Ruth Palmer, '28, Lincoln. "Varsity parties have the University student's party and for University students only. The committee has worked on a party for Saturday night to be given at the Ag college to take the place of University night and I think it will be a peppy party."

Robert D. Wallace, '28, Casper, Wyo. "The Varsity party has been put on good parties all year and I don't think the "Spring Frolic" Saturday night will be any exception. With no University night, the party should be a success."

Leon D. Larimer, '30, Lincoln. "Hardly any parties in town Saturday night but the Varsity's "Spring Frolic," it should be a big success."

Premier Italian Basso

Virgilio Lazzari, who is a member of the Chicago Civic Opera company, will appear in 'Il Trovatore' at the University of Nebraska coliseum, Thursday, March 29.

Chancellor Burnett Will Speak at Western Points

While on a short trip to the western part of the state, Chancellor E. A. Burnett will address the University club at the Chamber of Commerce in McCook Wednesday noon on the subject, "The University of Nebraska." He will talk Thursday noon at North Platte on the same subject to members of the Alumni Association.

LAZZARI WILL SING IN OPERA

Italian Basso Will Play One Of Leads in 'Il Trovatore', Coming Production

Virgilio Lazzari, premier Italian basso of the Chicago Civic Opera company, who is a member of the Chicago Civic Opera company, is considered the "iron man" of the organization. He will sing one of the "leads" in "Il Trovatore" when the Chicago company appears at the University of Nebraska coliseum, Thursday, March 29.

Signor Lazzari knows and has sung a mere matter of ninety-eight different operas. If he were notified at noon today that he was to sing any one of the ninety-eight tonight, he would present himself at the usual hour prepared to give one of the sterling performances for which he is noted.

Lazzari's deep, mellow voice has been included in the Chicago roster since 1918 and he is a favorite at Ravinia, where he sings in the summer season, and on tour. But his value as a grand opera artist is not known exclusively to the United States.

He stepped from operetta to grand opera in 1913, making his debut in "La Gioconda" at the Colon theater, the famous opera in Buenos Ayres. The public there and elsewhere that had been won to him in light opera followed him in his circuit of the grand opera theaters.

Varsity Dance Substitutes For Uni Night

"So we'll just have a varsity dance instead," was not a statement made by the faculty committee but it might have been. In fact the probability that some such assertion was made is quite strong—now that a varsity party has been scheduled to take the place of University Night Saturday evening.

Everyone was all set for University Night Saturday, but the faculty committee upset the dope by rejecting the skits. That open date had to be filled because the people that had University Night dates had to take them some place, so a big old varsity dance was planned.

Of course everyone was expecting a large crowd at University Night, but look at the crowds that attend Varsity Dances. They move around, thus covering more territory. The party will not be held in the Coliseum this time. Some good customers complained that they couldn't hear the music in the corners, so the party will be held in some building at the Ag College.

The party promises to be excellent—it will have to be or people will be disappointed. "I'll see you at the Varsity Dance," as the saying goes. But the trouble is there are such crowds you never can recognize anybody. Oh what's the use!

Martin Is Appointed To Accounting Society

'RESEARCH' IS DISCUSSED BY G. A. WENDT

Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi Sponsor Talk by Scientist in Morrill Hall

RELATES HIS EXPERIENCES 'World Is Oversold on Value Of Research and Undersold On Its Cost'

"The world is oversold on the value of research and undersold on its cost," declared Dr. Gerald A. Wendt, director of Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, last night at the annual Phi Beta Kappa-Sigma Xi meeting in the Morrill Hall auditorium.

"There is too much propaganda and excitement in chemistry as to what research will do. I am most interested in the progress of research and its human aspect, although many do not know or understand the meaning of research. Some believe that there is no scale of values in science, that it shows no love or personality. These people often confuse research with science."

Before a crowd which filled half of the Morrill Hall auditorium, Doctor Wendt told about his experiences and the relationships he has had with science. With his humor ever appearing.

NATIVE NEBRASKANS GRANTED AWARDS

Two scholars who are natives of Nebraska are included in the list of seventy-five scholars, artists and scientists from twenty different states whose appointments to Fellowships for study abroad during the coming year are announced today by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation.

The Foundation was established in 1925 by former United States Senator and Mrs. Simon Guggenheim in memory of a son who died on April 26, 1922. The Fellowships granted are for the purpose of assisting outstanding young American scholars, artists, and scientists to pursue research and creative work abroad.

Dr. Donald Grove Barnes, Professor of History at the University of Oregon, Eugene, Oregon, is one of the native Nebraskans whose brilliant scholarship has been recognized by the grant of a Fellowship for the coming year.

Dr. Glenn Arthur Hughes, assistant professor of English and Dramatic Art at the University of Washington, Seattle, Washington, is the other native Nebraska to be granted a Fellowship for the coming year.

Dr. Barnes was graduated from the University of Nebraska, with the degree of A. B. in 1915 and received the degrees of M. A. and Ph. D. from Harvard University in 1917 and 1924 respectively.

Dr. Glenn Arthur Hughes, assistant professor of English and Dramatic Art at the University of Washington, Seattle, Washington, is the other native Nebraska to be granted a Fellowship for the coming year.

He was born at Cozad, Nebraska, in 1894. He will go to England to make a study of the Imagist and related movements in poetry, with the cooperation of the principal poets involved.

Nebraskan Is Fourth In National Contest

Miss Arline N. Turnbull, '28, Lincoln, was recently announced as one of ten winners in a contest conducted for amateur ad-writers by the Parker Pen company of Janesville, Wisconsin.

College students all over America participated in this contest, the three highest winning cash prizes and the remaining seven were given a choice of Parker Duofold pens. Miss Turnbull won fourth place in the contest. She is a member of Delta Zeta sorority.

March 24 is Deadline For Auggan Material

More copy is needed for the Spring number of the Auggan, according to Alan C. McIntosh, editor. Contributors are asked to prepare their copy this week and hand it in before Saturday night. No copy will be accepted after March 24. Material depicting spring conditions will be given careful consideration.

'UNUSUALLY WARM' SAYS WEATHER MAN

Professor Blair Comments on Peculiar Climate for First Half of Month

"Unusually warm" replied Professor T. A. Blair, of the department of meteorology, yesterday when asked as to the weather for the first half of March.

Although there has been no exceptionally hot days the weather has averaged six degrees warmer per day than normal. Only two days, the fourth and fifth, were below the average and then the mercury did not fall to any great depth.

'In Like a Lamb'

March, usually a month of blustery winds, changing temperatures and sudden storms has changed its routine and given us an example of almost perfect weather so far. The traditional "in like a lamb and out like a lion" proverb may hold true but only the future may reveal that.

Another unusual feature of the first half of the month is the small amount of precipitation. Half of the month has passed with only twenty hundredths of an inch of moisture to aid the growth of vegetation. This is quite exceptional for this time of year although no damage has been done as yet.

"Moisture will be needed in a few weeks" stated Mr. Blair, "or the country will suffer."

Borah, Ritchie, and Underwood, Are Reviewed As Possibilities for 1928 Presidential Nominees

Editor's Note: Below are reprinted condensations of three articles from the Christian Science Monitor reviewing possible 1928 presidential candidates. These are being presented preparatory to the "straw vote" to be taken in all 9 o'clock classes Wednesday morning by The Daily Nebraskan with the cooperation of the political science department. Results of the poll will be forwarded to The Independent as part of a national college and university poll.

ALBERT C. RITCHIE

By J. FREDERICK ESSARY Washington Correspondent, Baltimore Sun It was no political accident that Albert C. Ritchie should have broken all precedents by achieving re-election as Governor of Maryland in 1923, nor was it a political phenomenon that he should compound the fracture by achieving a third term in 1928.

The admirable thing about Senator Underwood, say his admirers, is that he puts what he conceives to be the best interests of the country and of the world above politics.

OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD

Senator Underwood was born at Louisville, Kentucky, May 6, 1862, entered practice of law in 1884 and has since been practicing at Birmingham, Alabama. He has been in Congress since the 54th Congress, first in the House, then in the Senate.

He was an active leader in both, and was the leader of the democratic party in the Senate until 1924 when he resigned the position of party leadership.

The admirable thing about Senator Underwood, say his admirers, is that he puts what he conceives to be the best interests of the country and of the world above politics. He ably supported President Wilson's efforts to build a new world order on the basis of good understanding and American active participation, in world helpfulness.

Platform As to Mr. Underwood's stand in the matter, may we say, of platform: (1) Prohibition. Mr. Underwood speaks: "It is the law now, and in (Continued on Page 2.)"

CHARLES E. BORAH

By ROBERT S. ALLEN Member of Washington Bureau of The Christian Science Monitor For a man like Mr. Borah, the presidency must have a tremendous fascination. With his long and varied experience in national affairs, his deep insight into government, his exhaustive knowledge of history, his rare talent for public address, his mental and physical vigor and confidence, and his profound faith in the fundamental integrity and patriotism (Continued on Page 2.)"
