

TILE IS PLACED ON FIRST FLOOR WALLS

Chocolate Colored Sections Are Laid As Construction of Andrews Hall Continues

Chocolate colored tile, laid in sections six inches square, is being put on the walls of the long corridor on the first floor of Andrews hall this week. The tile extends from the floor to a height of about three and one-half feet on the wall, producing a pleasing color combination with the pure white sand finish plastering of the vaulted corridor.

The tile is mortared on the walls in sections and a cohesive mortar will be used to join the sections. The outer foyer of the building will also be given this tile finish, as will the corridor on the second floor and the hall on the third floor.

Plasterers Busy

Plasterers have been pressing the work of finishing the rooms during the past week, and have been held up only by the plumbers who have not finished installing the fixtures. On the third floor plasterers have been setting on the first coat of plaster. Metal lath has not been installed in all the rooms as yet.

The outer wall on the west side has received the finishing touches of the masons. Last week the mortar was set in between the sections of the Bedford plasterers. They are now working on the north wall. The Bedford stone work about the main entrance of the building is being put in, workmen setting the huge pieces of Bedford flanking the steps.

Youth Must Have Love!

If Youth but knew; if age but could. And so the young Princess turns from her elderly husband to fall, a passionate and helpless creature, into the trembling arms of her husband's brother.

Two fallen leaves drifting in the wind, torn from the shelter and safety of a sturdy home; facing inevitable discovery with the consciousness that no matter what the penalty shall be—"Youth Must Have Love."

There, in a line or two, you have the basic motive of D. W. Griffith's newest, finest and most beautiful achievement.

a member of Alpha Zeta, Pershing Rifles, Scabbard and Blade, and Delta Sigma Pi, is assistant editor on the Cornhusker Countryman, and a member of several judging teams. Arthur Hauke, Wood River, was manager of this year's fair.

Austin Goth, who will act as treasurer, is chancellor of Alpha Zeta for the coming year. He was high man of the Nebraska Dairy judging team this year. Anton Frolik, '28, De Witt, was treasurer of this year's fair. Clarence Bartlett was a member of the Junior Fair board and general chairman of the exhibits this year. He is a member of Alpha Zeta and has been a member of several judging teams. He was treasurer of the Ag club last year.

The secretary's position will be held by Marjorie Brinton. She is president of the Y. W. C. A. at the College of Agriculture for the coming year, contributing editor of the Cornhusker Countryman, and reporter on The Daily Nebraskan. Mildred Hawley was a member of the Junior Fair board, general chairman of the pageant, and is some economics editor of the Cornhusker Countryman. Besides the Fair board, Helen Suchy was also elected president of the Home Ec club for the coming year. The other officers for this club are Ruth White, vice-president and Georgia Wilcox, treasurer.

The largest competition was in evidence for the Senior Fair board where each of the five contestants drew an exceptionally large number of votes. Several of the men for Ag club offices ran without competition. Although an unusually large number of votes was cast among the boys, a rather small number of girls voted.

denunciation of the idea that college students are not of the very finest type of American manhood and womanhood. Men who have been in institutions of learning for years stated to me without hesitation that young people of today are not different than those of twenty-five years ago, but in general seemed more interested in the bigger, better, and finer things of life.

"The University of Nebraska Arts college has for a year and a half been studying curricula and only this year proposed a degree with distinction which may be elected by any of its students.

"There was also a variance of opinion at the conference in regard to housemothers for fraternities and sororities. Dean Nicholson of Minnesota stated that 'housemothers are as inevitable as anything could possibly be,' while Dean Heckel of Missouri opposed him in his stand on the subject."

Several Men Speak

Dean Thompson was one of the leaders in the discussions of the curriculum, and the methods for creating special opportunities for gifted students. Some of the main speakers of the conference were Dean Clark, of Illinois; Dean Reinow, of Iowa State; Dean J. G. Clark, of New Mexico; Dean Earl J. Miller, of Southern California; Dean Doyle, of George Washington university; J. A. Bursley, of Michigan; Dean A. C. Zumbunneur of Southern Methodist university and Dean W. E. Alderman of Beloit.

According to Dean Thompson, Dean Miller, of Southern California, discussed extra-curricular activities from a statistical point of view. His investigation seemed to show that students engaged in extra curricular activities did slightly better work than those not engaged in activities. Dean Doyle of George Washington university, stressed the idea that for students there should be no censorship recognized through publications, but they should be made to realize the responsibility in publishing news. There was a general discussion of "razz sheets" which are not conducive to the best interests of college students.
