IVY DAY POEM

The fair ones grace
The wreathed place
Where ivy tendrils cool are creeping;
The years are sped,
The paths we tread
Blend for a single reaping;
We crown the May,
We greet the day
Of life begun, new harvest bringing;
White petals fall,
Brave voices call
Hail and farewell—hoping,
singing.

HUNT DELIVERS IVY DAY SPEECH

Senior in College of Arts and Sciences Speaks on Needs of University

SUGGESTS NEW METHODS

Annual Ivy day oration was given for the 1928 Round-Up week by Evert M. Hunt, Lincoln, senior in the College of Arts and Sciences. Mr. Hunt's oration was delivered from the platform erected for Ivy day in the area north of the Administration building. The oration, "Nebraska's Most Important Investment," was transmitted through loudspeakers to the crowd that had gathered for events scheduled for the afternoon of Ivy day.

Evert Hunt emphasized to his listeners the fact that the University of Nebraska is, in reality, Nebraska's most important investment. Those who are trained in this institution will be fitted for the positions at the head of this state only as well as the instructors can train them, he said. It is, therefore, requisite that satisfactory and eligible professors be engaged.

Reviews Statistics

Mr. Hunt reviewed statistics to show that Nebraska has less resources at hand than many institutions whose enrollment is much smaller. The Ivy day orator impressed those present at the traditional talk with the importance of the University. (Continued on Page 2.)

New Features Are Added to Joint 'Y' Conference at Estes Park Next Month

"Association Hour" and "Post Conference Retreat" will be new features of the joint conference of the student Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. of the Rocky Mountain region, to be held June 6 to 10 at Estes Park, Colorado. Over four hundred students and faculty members from colleges and universities in the region will attend.

During "Association Hour" students will gather in groups according to the size of the college or university they attended to discuss the problems of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. on their campuses and also to work out a means of solving these problems. It is believed by those making plans for the conference, that, by dividing the students according to the size of the institution attended, more real benefit will be gained because of the similarity of problems on campuses of relative sizes.

The "Post Conference Retreat" was planned because of the need felt by a number of students at the close of the conference in 1927, for a short time after the conference in which to think over the ten days' experience and to reflect upon what it could mean to them in changed ac- (Continued on Page 3.)
