

MEMORIAL UNION IS NEW AMES BUILDING

New Hall for General Utility of Students Is Opened With Dinner

AMES, Sept. 25.—The new Memorial Union building at Iowa State college was first used by students and faculty yesterday, when dinner was served in the Iowa State commons, on the ground floor

A SHOW FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY!

Bring Them All! See the Live, Trained Animals!

Esther Ralston

"SAWDUST PARADISE" A Paramount Picture

VAUDEVILLE

"ODDITIES OF THE JUNGLE" See the Elephant "Black Bottom"

See the Only Trained Zebra

TYLER & ST. CLAIRE In "Xylophonic Conversation"

BERTRAND & RALSTON In "Over and Back"

"ART and RHYTHM RAJAHS"

Now INCOLN HEAD Now

You Are Not So Sophisticated You Can't Be Startled By

Medicine Shows

JOAN CRAWFORD

ORPHEUM

Now NOW

DUNCAN SISTERS

TOPSY and EVA

THE TERRIBLE PEOPLE

COLONIAL

MATS. 10c-15c; NITE, 10c-25c

of the seven story building. The Commons, which has cafeteria service, will have at one end a long soda bar and grill, open at all hours. The other dining rooms will be open in about two weeks, according to H. E. Pride, alumni secretary in charge of the Union.

With the opening of the Commons, the Maple, campus tea-room, was closed. Miss Mabel Anderson, who has been in charge of the Maples, has charge of the same work in the Union. The College Inn, campus cafeteria, closed last spring.

Reservations for luncheons and dinners during the coming school year have already been made. A 600-plate dinner will be served Nov. 1 at the time of the dedication of the new dairy building.

On Oct. 13, Great Hall in the Union will be used for the annual "Ag" Carnival. On Nov. 10, and 11, it will house the annual Horticultural show. On Nov. 15, reservations have been made by President R. M. Hughes for the meeting of the American Association of Governing Boards. Delegates will be housed in the building.

It is probable that Marion Talley will make the Union her headquarters when she appears here for the first number of the Artist Concert Series on Oct. 24.

AWGWN COPY GOES TO PRINTERS MONDAY

Continued from Page 1. Those working under Charles W. Wahlquist, business manager, are: Stanley Day and John Lindbeck, assistant business managers; William Irons, circulation manager; and Marshall Ingram, Lee Daniels, Edwin Faulkner, and Bob Finn, assistants.

Veterans Reappear Bill T. McCleery will reappear in the "Frosh" number with one of his feature stories, "Chester the Request Is Sent Out For Football Ushers R. O. T. C. cadets wishing to act as ushers for the home football games should sign up for positions at once at the Student Activities office, according to a statement issued by that office yesterday. Admittance to the games will be the compensation for the work. All ushers will be required to appear in R. O. T. C. uniforms for duty.

Court Jester. One of Henry Brainerd's favorite poems will have a place in the initial number. Other high-spots of the magazine will include the style section portraying a bevy of pretty Nebraska co-eds in the latest fall modes; the theater review; a series of book reviews by Virginia Faulkner; and a new and different frontpiece by Margaret Kettinger.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

FRESHMEN ARE INITIATED INTO STUDENT BODY

Continued from Page 1. "Some 2000 of you have come to further your education. You are traveling the road of new experiences. You have broken new ties. You are seeking new friendships. You come to enlarge your capacity for work, to fit yourselves for new positions in life, to acquire creative power through new sources of knowledge."

He continued to say that students do not place enough value upon their time. "Do not over-specialize your first weeks in college," he went on. "Picture shows, like the poor, will always be with you." The Chancellor's address was short; he closed by saying that his freshman audience was in a school where there are opportunities for culture, inspiration, and new creative power. Students should take advantage of them.

Thompson Gives Warning Dean T. J. Thompson, Dean of Student Affairs next spoke to the freshman class of the University. "If you have come here," he emphasized, "because it is the popular thing to do or because you believe it will bring you social prestige, you will find the going rather rough and thorny. If one can judge from past experience, it is true that some years ago a professor connected with one of our eastern colleges published a study of the salaries of college graduates, high school graduates and non-college persons by which he proposed to show that each day's schooling has its intrinsic value in dollars and cents. These figures are very misleading and are founded on a fallacy, for they do not take into account the personal qualities..."

Success Depends on Individual Dean Thompson emphasized that success or failure in life depended upon the individual, rather than upon the official letters and degrees which follow his name.

Dean R. Leland, university pastor of the Presbyterian church spoke for a few minutes on the value of religious contacts in college life. He invited, on the behalf of his colleagues, every student to call on the University pastor of his religious denomination. He told where these men might be found.

"By the time we hit Missouri," predicted Coach Ernest Bear, Nebraska's football mentor, in his talk to the freshmen, "you will understand what this mythical thing called Cornhusker Spirit is. He went on to say that any team needs support and encouragement more after a defeat than after a victory. Nebraska is no exception, and the well-known Nebraska asked for the ardent support of each new student in the University.

Howell Is Introduced Nebraska's football captain, "Blue" Howell and Elmer Holm

Those Parties Call for a lot of planning. Drop in at George's and receive an inspiration from the Favors and Decorations on display.

Part now, hundreds of Masks, Horns, Whistles and Decorations to wear.

Remember, we print quality Menus for those Formals a little later.

George Bros. 1213 N STREET

Request Is Sent Out For Football Ushers R. O. T. C. cadets wishing to act as ushers for the home football games should sign up for positions at once at the Student Activities office, according to a statement issued by that office yesterday. Admittance to the games will be the compensation for the work. All ushers will be required to appear in R. O. T. C. uniforms for duty.

Court Jester. One of Henry Brainerd's favorite poems will have a place in the initial number. Other high-spots of the magazine will include the style section portraying a bevy of pretty Nebraska co-eds in the latest fall modes; the theater review; a series of book reviews by Virginia Faulkner; and a new and different frontpiece by Margaret Kettinger.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

FRESHMEN ARE INITIATED INTO STUDENT BODY

Continued from Page 1. "Some 2000 of you have come to further your education. You are traveling the road of new experiences. You have broken new ties. You are seeking new friendships. You come to enlarge your capacity for work, to fit yourselves for new positions in life, to acquire creative power through new sources of knowledge."

He continued to say that students do not place enough value upon their time. "Do not over-specialize your first weeks in college," he went on. "Picture shows, like the poor, will always be with you." The Chancellor's address was short; he closed by saying that his freshman audience was in a school where there are opportunities for culture, inspiration, and new creative power. Students should take advantage of them.

Thompson Gives Warning Dean T. J. Thompson, Dean of Student Affairs next spoke to the freshman class of the University. "If you have come here," he emphasized, "because it is the popular thing to do or because you believe it will bring you social prestige, you will find the going rather rough and thorny. If one can judge from past experience, it is true that some years ago a professor connected with one of our eastern colleges published a study of the salaries of college graduates, high school graduates and non-college persons by which he proposed to show that each day's schooling has its intrinsic value in dollars and cents. These figures are very misleading and are founded on a fallacy, for they do not take into account the personal qualities..."

Success Depends on Individual Dean Thompson emphasized that success or failure in life depended upon the individual, rather than upon the official letters and degrees which follow his name.

Dean R. Leland, university pastor of the Presbyterian church spoke for a few minutes on the value of religious contacts in college life. He invited, on the behalf of his colleagues, every student to call on the University pastor of his religious denomination. He told where these men might be found.

"By the time we hit Missouri," predicted Coach Ernest Bear, Nebraska's football mentor, in his talk to the freshmen, "you will understand what this mythical thing called Cornhusker Spirit is. He went on to say that any team needs support and encouragement more after a defeat than after a victory. Nebraska is no exception, and the well-known Nebraska asked for the ardent support of each new student in the University.

Howell Is Introduced Nebraska's football captain, "Blue" Howell and Elmer Holm

Those Parties Call for a lot of planning. Drop in at George's and receive an inspiration from the Favors and Decorations on display.

Part now, hundreds of Masks, Horns, Whistles and Decorations to wear.

Remember, we print quality Menus for those Formals a little later.

George Bros. 1213 N STREET

Request Is Sent Out For Football Ushers R. O. T. C. cadets wishing to act as ushers for the home football games should sign up for positions at once at the Student Activities office, according to a statement issued by that office yesterday. Admittance to the games will be the compensation for the work. All ushers will be required to appear in R. O. T. C. uniforms for duty.

Court Jester. One of Henry Brainerd's favorite poems will have a place in the initial number. Other high-spots of the magazine will include the style section portraying a bevy of pretty Nebraska co-eds in the latest fall modes; the theater review; a series of book reviews by Virginia Faulkner; and a new and different frontpiece by Margaret Kettinger.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

FRESHMEN ARE INITIATED INTO STUDENT BODY

Continued from Page 1. "Some 2000 of you have come to further your education. You are traveling the road of new experiences. You have broken new ties. You are seeking new friendships. You come to enlarge your capacity for work, to fit yourselves for new positions in life, to acquire creative power through new sources of knowledge."

He continued to say that students do not place enough value upon their time. "Do not over-specialize your first weeks in college," he went on. "Picture shows, like the poor, will always be with you." The Chancellor's address was short; he closed by saying that his freshman audience was in a school where there are opportunities for culture, inspiration, and new creative power. Students should take advantage of them.

Thompson Gives Warning Dean T. J. Thompson, Dean of Student Affairs next spoke to the freshman class of the University. "If you have come here," he emphasized, "because it is the popular thing to do or because you believe it will bring you social prestige, you will find the going rather rough and thorny. If one can judge from past experience, it is true that some years ago a professor connected with one of our eastern colleges published a study of the salaries of college graduates, high school graduates and non-college persons by which he proposed to show that each day's schooling has its intrinsic value in dollars and cents. These figures are very misleading and are founded on a fallacy, for they do not take into account the personal qualities..."

Success Depends on Individual Dean Thompson emphasized that success or failure in life depended upon the individual, rather than upon the official letters and degrees which follow his name.

Dean R. Leland, university pastor of the Presbyterian church spoke for a few minutes on the value of religious contacts in college life. He invited, on the behalf of his colleagues, every student to call on the University pastor of his religious denomination. He told where these men might be found.

"By the time we hit Missouri," predicted Coach Ernest Bear, Nebraska's football mentor, in his talk to the freshmen, "you will understand what this mythical thing called Cornhusker Spirit is. He went on to say that any team needs support and encouragement more after a defeat than after a victory. Nebraska is no exception, and the well-known Nebraska asked for the ardent support of each new student in the University.

Howell Is Introduced Nebraska's football captain, "Blue" Howell and Elmer Holm

Those Parties Call for a lot of planning. Drop in at George's and receive an inspiration from the Favors and Decorations on display.

Part now, hundreds of Masks, Horns, Whistles and Decorations to wear.

Remember, we print quality Menus for those Formals a little later.

George Bros. 1213 N STREET

Request Is Sent Out For Football Ushers R. O. T. C. cadets wishing to act as ushers for the home football games should sign up for positions at once at the Student Activities office, according to a statement issued by that office yesterday. Admittance to the games will be the compensation for the work. All ushers will be required to appear in R. O. T. C. uniforms for duty.

Court Jester. One of Henry Brainerd's favorite poems will have a place in the initial number. Other high-spots of the magazine will include the style section portraying a bevy of pretty Nebraska co-eds in the latest fall modes; the theater review; a series of book reviews by Virginia Faulkner; and a new and different frontpiece by Margaret Kettinger.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

FRESHMEN ARE INITIATED INTO STUDENT BODY

Continued from Page 1. "Some 2000 of you have come to further your education. You are traveling the road of new experiences. You have broken new ties. You are seeking new friendships. You come to enlarge your capacity for work, to fit yourselves for new positions in life, to acquire creative power through new sources of knowledge."

He continued to say that students do not place enough value upon their time. "Do not over-specialize your first weeks in college," he went on. "Picture shows, like the poor, will always be with you." The Chancellor's address was short; he closed by saying that his freshman audience was in a school where there are opportunities for culture, inspiration, and new creative power. Students should take advantage of them.

Thompson Gives Warning Dean T. J. Thompson, Dean of Student Affairs next spoke to the freshman class of the University. "If you have come here," he emphasized, "because it is the popular thing to do or because you believe it will bring you social prestige, you will find the going rather rough and thorny. If one can judge from past experience, it is true that some years ago a professor connected with one of our eastern colleges published a study of the salaries of college graduates, high school graduates and non-college persons by which he proposed to show that each day's schooling has its intrinsic value in dollars and cents. These figures are very misleading and are founded on a fallacy, for they do not take into account the personal qualities..."

Success Depends on Individual Dean Thompson emphasized that success or failure in life depended upon the individual, rather than upon the official letters and degrees which follow his name.

Dean R. Leland, university pastor of the Presbyterian church spoke for a few minutes on the value of religious contacts in college life. He invited, on the behalf of his colleagues, every student to call on the University pastor of his religious denomination. He told where these men might be found.

"By the time we hit Missouri," predicted Coach Ernest Bear, Nebraska's football mentor, in his talk to the freshmen, "you will understand what this mythical thing called Cornhusker Spirit is. He went on to say that any team needs support and encouragement more after a defeat than after a victory. Nebraska is no exception, and the well-known Nebraska asked for the ardent support of each new student in the University.

Howell Is Introduced Nebraska's football captain, "Blue" Howell and Elmer Holm

Those Parties Call for a lot of planning. Drop in at George's and receive an inspiration from the Favors and Decorations on display.

Part now, hundreds of Masks, Horns, Whistles and Decorations to wear.

Remember, we print quality Menus for those Formals a little later.

George Bros. 1213 N STREET

Request Is Sent Out For Football Ushers R. O. T. C. cadets wishing to act as ushers for the home football games should sign up for positions at once at the Student Activities office, according to a statement issued by that office yesterday. Admittance to the games will be the compensation for the work. All ushers will be required to appear in R. O. T. C. uniforms for duty.

Court Jester. One of Henry Brainerd's favorite poems will have a place in the initial number. Other high-spots of the magazine will include the style section portraying a bevy of pretty Nebraska co-eds in the latest fall modes; the theater review; a series of book reviews by Virginia Faulkner; and a new and different frontpiece by Margaret Kettinger.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

FRESHMEN ARE INITIATED INTO STUDENT BODY

Continued from Page 1. "Some 2000 of you have come to further your education. You are traveling the road of new experiences. You have broken new ties. You are seeking new friendships. You come to enlarge your capacity for work, to fit yourselves for new positions in life, to acquire creative power through new sources of knowledge."

He continued to say that students do not place enough value upon their time. "Do not over-specialize your first weeks in college," he went on. "Picture shows, like the poor, will always be with you." The Chancellor's address was short; he closed by saying that his freshman audience was in a school where there are opportunities for culture, inspiration, and new creative power. Students should take advantage of them.

Thompson Gives Warning Dean T. J. Thompson, Dean of Student Affairs next spoke to the freshman class of the University. "If you have come here," he emphasized, "because it is the popular thing to do or because you believe it will bring you social prestige, you will find the going rather rough and thorny. If one can judge from past experience, it is true that some years ago a professor connected with one of our eastern colleges published a study of the salaries of college graduates, high school graduates and non-college persons by which he proposed to show that each day's schooling has its intrinsic value in dollars and cents. These figures are very misleading and are founded on a fallacy, for they do not take into account the personal qualities..."

Success Depends on Individual Dean Thompson emphasized that success or failure in life depended upon the individual, rather than upon the official letters and degrees which follow his name.

Dean R. Leland, university pastor of the Presbyterian church spoke for a few minutes on the value of religious contacts in college life. He invited, on the behalf of his colleagues, every student to call on the University pastor of his religious denomination. He told where these men might be found.

"By the time we hit Missouri," predicted Coach Ernest Bear, Nebraska's football mentor, in his talk to the freshmen, "you will understand what this mythical thing called Cornhusker Spirit is. He went on to say that any team needs support and encouragement more after a defeat than after a victory. Nebraska is no exception, and the well-known Nebraska asked for the ardent support of each new student in the University.

Howell Is Introduced Nebraska's football captain, "Blue" Howell and Elmer Holm

Those Parties Call for a lot of planning. Drop in at George's and receive an inspiration from the Favors and Decorations on display.

Part now, hundreds of Masks, Horns, Whistles and Decorations to wear.

Remember, we print quality Menus for those Formals a little later.

George Bros. 1213 N STREET

Request Is Sent Out For Football Ushers R. O. T. C. cadets wishing to act as ushers for the home football games should sign up for positions at once at the Student Activities office, according to a statement issued by that office yesterday. Admittance to the games will be the compensation for the work. All ushers will be required to appear in R. O. T. C. uniforms for duty.

Court Jester. One of Henry Brainerd's favorite poems will have a place in the initial number. Other high-spots of the magazine will include the style section portraying a bevy of pretty Nebraska co-eds in the latest fall modes; the theater review; a series of book reviews by Virginia Faulkner; and a new and different frontpiece by Margaret Kettinger.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

FRESHMEN ARE INITIATED INTO STUDENT BODY

Continued from Page 1. "Some 2000 of you have come to further your education. You are traveling the road of new experiences. You have broken new ties. You are seeking new friendships. You come to enlarge your capacity for work, to fit yourselves for new positions in life, to acquire creative power through new sources of knowledge."

He continued to say that students do not place enough value upon their time. "Do not over-specialize your first weeks in college," he went on. "Picture shows, like the poor, will always be with you." The Chancellor's address was short; he closed by saying that his freshman audience was in a school where there are opportunities for culture, inspiration, and new creative power. Students should take advantage of them.

Thompson Gives Warning Dean T. J. Thompson, Dean of Student Affairs next spoke to the freshman class of the University. "If you have come here," he emphasized, "because it is the popular thing to do or because you believe it will bring you social prestige, you will find the going rather rough and thorny. If one can judge from past experience, it is true that some years ago a professor connected with one of our eastern colleges published a study of the salaries of college graduates, high school graduates and non-college persons by which he proposed to show that each day's schooling has its intrinsic value in dollars and cents. These figures are very misleading and are founded on a fallacy, for they do not take into account the personal qualities..."

Success Depends on Individual Dean Thompson emphasized that success or failure in life depended upon the individual, rather than upon the official letters and degrees which follow his name.

Dean R. Leland, university pastor of the Presbyterian church spoke for a few minutes on the value of religious contacts in college life. He invited, on the behalf of his colleagues, every student to call on the University pastor of his religious denomination. He told where these men might be found.

"By the time we hit Missouri," predicted Coach Ernest Bear, Nebraska's football mentor, in his talk to the freshmen, "you will understand what this mythical thing called Cornhusker Spirit is. He went on to say that any team needs support and encouragement more after a defeat than after a victory. Nebraska is no exception, and the well-known Nebraska asked for the ardent support of each new student in the University.

Howell Is Introduced Nebraska's football captain, "Blue" Howell and Elmer Holm

Those Parties Call for a lot of planning. Drop in at George's and receive an inspiration from the Favors and Decorations on display.

Part now, hundreds of Masks, Horns, Whistles and Decorations to wear.

Remember, we print quality Menus for those Formals a little later.

George Bros. 1213 N STREET

Request Is Sent Out For Football Ushers R. O. T. C. cadets wishing to act as ushers for the home football games should sign up for positions at once at the Student Activities office, according to a statement issued by that office yesterday. Admittance to the games will be the compensation for the work. All ushers will be required to appear in R. O. T. C. uniforms for duty.

Court Jester. One of Henry Brainerd's favorite poems will have a place in the initial number. Other high-spots of the magazine will include the style section portraying a bevy of pretty Nebraska co-eds in the latest fall modes; the theater review; a series of book reviews by Virginia Faulkner; and a new and different frontpiece by Margaret Kettinger.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

Those who are responsible for the short jokes and poems to be printed in the October issue are: Marguerite Danielson, Lee Daniels, Katherine Howard, Audrey Bears, Squay Case, Douglas Timmerman, Lasselie Gilman, Ray Coffey, John McKnight, George Thomas, and Warren Chiles.

FRESHMEN ARE INITIATED INTO STUDENT BODY

Continued from Page 1. "Some 2000 of you have come to further your education. You are traveling the road of new experiences. You have broken new ties. You are seeking new friendships. You come to enlarge your capacity for work, to fit yourselves for new positions in life, to acquire creative power through new sources of knowledge."

He continued to say that students do not place enough value upon their time. "Do not over-specialize your first weeks in college," he went on. "Picture shows, like the poor, will always be with you." The Chancellor's address was short; he closed by saying that his freshman audience was in a school where there are opportunities for culture, inspiration, and new creative power. Students should take advantage of them.

Thompson Gives Warning Dean T. J. Thompson, Dean of Student Affairs next spoke to the freshman class of the University. "If you have come here," he emphasized, "because it is the popular thing to do or because you believe it will bring you social prestige, you will find the going rather rough and thorny. If one can judge from past experience, it is true that some years ago a professor connected with one of our eastern colleges published a study of the salaries of college graduates, high school graduates and non-college persons by which he proposed to show that each day's schooling has its intrinsic value in dollars and cents. These figures are very misleading and are founded on a fallacy, for they do not take into account the personal qualities..."

Success Depends on Individual Dean Thompson emphasized that success or failure in life depended upon the individual, rather than upon the official letters and degrees which follow his name.

Dean R. Leland, university pastor of the Presbyterian church spoke for a few minutes on the value of religious contacts in college life. He invited, on the behalf of his colleagues, every student to call on the University pastor of his religious denomination. He told where these men might be found.

"By the time we hit Missouri," predicted Coach Ernest Bear, Nebraska's football mentor, in his talk to the freshmen, "you will understand what this mythical thing called Cornhusker Spirit is. He went on to say that any team needs support and encouragement more after a defeat than after a victory. Nebraska is no exception, and the well-known Nebraska asked for the ardent support of each new student in the University.

Howell Is Introduced Nebraska's football captain, "Blue" Howell and Elmer Holm

Those Parties Call for a lot of planning. Drop in at George's and receive an inspiration from the Favors and Decorations on display.

Part now, hundreds of Masks, Horns, Whistles and Decorations to wear.

Remember, we print quality Menus for those Formals a little later.

George Bros. 1213 N STREET

MEMORIAL UNION IS NEW AMES BUILDING. New Hall for General Utility of Students Is Opened With Dinner.

A SHOW FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY! Bring Them All! See the Live, Trained Animals! Esther Ralston. "SAWDUST PARADISE" A Paramount Picture.

VAUDEVILLE "ODDITIES OF THE JUNGLE" See the Elephant "Black Bottom" See the Only Trained Zebra.

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS Are Opening Next Monday Night with The Spider.

<