"Arms and the Man" is a satire on love and war treated in such a manner as to provide a great deal of comedy, according to recent theatrical reports, and is considered by such to be caustic enough to prove sufficiently interesting. The New York production recently finished a year's run on Broadway and is now touring the United States.

Play Is Outstanding
In regard to "Arms and the Man" written by Mr. Shaw, Mr. Lerner declared that Shaw stands alone as our greatest modern humorist and satirist. Total expenditures for salaries and wages was $1,743,407.40, and for operation and maintenance $1,124,279.50. Count Ilya Tolstoy, second son of Leo Tolstoy, Russia's great writer and philosopher, told the story of the life of his father at a university convocation in the Temple theater Tuesday morning before the largest crowd that has assembled in that building this season. Many stood in the aisles and along the passages, while others, less fortunate, were unable to force their way through the doors, and had to go away without hearing the address.

This talk was part of a tour of the United States that Count Tolstoy is making commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the birth of his father. It had been announced beforehand that the talk Tuesday would be upon the subject "Russia Before and Since Bolshevism," but Prof. Paul H. Grummann, in presenting the count, said that the temptation to ask him to speak of his father had been too great to resist, and that the count would only touch briefly upon the Russian political problem.

Chancellor Burnett Makes
Known Receipt of Gift
From Banker

Annual Sum Provided
A gift of $100 per year to help worthy students at the University of Nebraska was announced during Christmas vacation by Chancellor E. A. Burnett. The gift, which came as a form of Christmas present to some student, is one of the three recent donations being used to establish 100 scholarships of $100 each to be awarded each year to needy young men and women. Few such scholarships are available at the University of Nebraska according to Chancellor Burnett who welcomed the gift.

The donor, a Nebraska banker and University graduate, wrote in sending the money, "enclosed herewith is a check for $100 and I authorize you to draw on me every year for a like amount, at any time during the year that is convenient for you." He added that "I would prefer that you do not mention my name in connection with this contribution."

In speaking of the gift, Chancellor Burnett said this morning that there are more students having a struggle to secure an education today than there have ever been in the history of the institution. The number of scholarships, fellow-
