CORNHUSKER SEEKS HELP IN STUDENT LIFE

Staff Needs Original Stories For Humorous Section Of Yearbook

Students desiring to work on the 1929 Cornhusker student life section are requested to report to the Cornhusker office in University hall basement some time this week. Work has been started on the humor section, and a wide variety of talent is needed, according to William & Mentzer, editor of the year-

The section will be handled in an entirely different manner this year than ever before, those in charge declare. A complete outline of the content of this part has been prepared, and assignments will be given to students who wish to write humorous articles.

In addition to these assignments, any original snapshots or short humorous features will be acceptable. These may be turned in at the Cornhusker office or to William Me Cleery. Persons showing ability along the line of student life preparation may be added to the stu-dent life staff of the 1929 Cornhusker.

More Art Is Planned. More art work will be employed in the humorous portrayal of student affairs this year than last. Cartoons, photographs and sketches will be used in practically every feature of the student life section

"We have an entirely new plan under development," stated William C. Mentzer, editor of the Corn-"The layout for the year book will be unusual, and we hope more entertaining and representa-tive than sections of other years."
