BALL THROWERS PULL AWAY FOR IOWA CONTESTS

Friday night over Drake, Nebraska's second appointment with the Bulldogs in Des Moines has been given plenty of consideration by Coach Black. Their appearance here could hardly be indicative of their strength when a review of their record of the year is made. Besides taking the strong Missouri clan into camp in a most decisive fashion, they played the strong Washington university to two extra periods before dropping the decision.

The third clash of the series at Columbia will be a true test of Husker ability. Missouri, who is having a nip and tuck battle with Oklahoma for top honors in the Big Six, can not make any slips in the closing laps of the race without disaster.

HERE AND THERE

Chapel Hill, N. C.—(IP)—The University of North Carolina will have next year the first college daily newspaper in the southern states east of Texas. Students at the university voted almost five to one in favor of turning the Tar Heel, now published tri-weekly, into a daily sheet. It was also decided to do away with the Carolina Magazine in its present form, and to print it as a literary supplement to the Tar Heel.

Washington, Feb. 17.—(IP)—The influenza epidemic, which closed the majority of colleges and universities while it was prevalent in this country early in the winter, and is now taking a high death rate in Europe, is likely to return to this country again before spring, according to Surgeon General Cummings of the public health service who issued a warning to Americans to allow no let down in the vigilance against the disease.

President-Elect Hoover is credited with twenty-six college degrees. This is nine more than is credited to any other person listed in the American "Who's Who." Mrs. Hoover, a college graduate, follows another college graduate as "First Lady of the Land." Mrs. Coolidge is an alumnus of the University of Vermont. There have been very few college graduates among the thirty mistresses of the white house.

Minneapolis, Minn.—(IP)—Two University of Minnesota students will continue in school in spite of financial handicaps, as a result of action taken by the board of regents. The board will give the two men their tuition in recognition of their determination and scholastic ability. One of the men is blind, and the other has only one leg.

Eugene, Ore.—(IP)—Money for the purchase of a radio for the University of Oregon infirmary was secured recently when the juniors held a "shine day." Some two thousand "shine" tickets were sold with which the holders obtained shoe shines, given by the juniors. Men with boots were required to buy two tickets. Others had to buy only one. Four shoe shine stands were operated throughout the day.

After the war when the constitution was drawn up, Washington was viewed by all as the logical man for president. He was elected unanimously and took the oath in New York before congress April 30, 1789—an even 140 years ago. He died ten years later on December 14, 1799, at the age of sixty-seven. Washington has been criticized and even flayed openly in recent years. He has been knocked off the pedestal of saint-like reverence with which he was formerly regarded. But in humanizing Washington, critics have failed to show those noble characteristics that made him the leading figure in the history of the United States. Criticized of Late Perhaps he didn't have the intellectual brilliance of Jefferson or Hamilton, but he had more genius and ability to lead than they. And always America and the whole world will admire him for his unselfish devotion to duty, his unrelenting courage, his eternal hopefulness despite defeat, his strong will, his insight into human character, his abiding faith in God and the people of the United States, his absolute integrity and the purity in his motives.

PLEDGING BILL ADVANCES FOR THIRD READING

(Continued from Page 1.) Fraternity and non-sorority students say cannot be ended in any other way. Representative Chet Wynne of Omaha, was especially vociferous in his opposition to the bill. Wynne is head football coach at Creighton university in Omaha. He began his remarks by stating that he had been connected with a university for ten years and felt himself well qualified to speak on the subject. "This measure," he said "is aimed at the destruction of secret organization. The legislature should no more attempt to regulate matter of this kind any more than to make out the course of study. The dean of men and the dean of women are fully capable of taking care of the students." "You talk about these sororities," said Representative Johnson of Gordon. "Those are the places where the girls smoke cigars and fill their bodies with nicotine. This kind of citizens will make" Representative Van Kirk of Lincoln paid tribute to the fraternities and sororities of Nebraska because of their stability as evidenced by the beautiful homes they are erecting. An amendment to lay the bill over until Friday afternoon was defeated by the anti-fraternity men. Representative Hunt of Otoe county made the motion for indefinite postponement which was defeated.

(Continued from Page 1.) Commission that is at present reviewing the position of the principal museums of Great Britain, what was done by his museum with duplicate specimens. His reply was of great interest and is well worth remembering. He said, "In natural history there are no duplicates." That is the reason according to Mr. Collins for museums having so many different specimens of the same thing. Naturalists must have many of these in order to compare them. In the museum in London which is primarily used by the medical profession there are seven thousand human skulls. An interesting item of news in relation to this was cited by Mr. Collins. "A discussion has arisen as to the origin of one of these seven thousand skulls. In the year 1869 a gentleman presented to the museum a skull without a lower jaw, and a thigh bone believed by him to be those of Lord Darnley. Darnley was the young husband of Mary Queen of Scots, the father of James the first of England and progenitor of all the Stuart dynasty. Darnley was murdered on February, 1567 before he was twenty-two years old.

"His remains lay outside of Edinburgh for about a hundred years when it was disturbed during some alterations of the Royal vault. All that is known of it today are the relics in the Royal College of Surgeons. The authenticity of these remains has been doubted and from time to time discussions have come up regarding it. They have the bones out again and are re-measuring them and trying to prove or disprove the story that they belong to Darnley. Mr. Collins closed his talk by saying, "Of course here in Morrill Hall we receive and are grateful for all sorts of presents but really I am not sorry to miss the handling of the skulls of murdered princes as a part of my duties."
