SOLONS ARE HUNTING HEATING PLANT SITE

Burnett and Burr Go With Legislators on Tour of Inspection

Various proposed sites for the joint University and state capital heating plant were inspected Sunday by members of the finance committee of the lower house in the state legislature together with Chancellor E. A. Burnett and W. W. Burr, dean of the College of Agriculture.

Possibility that the appropriations for the University recommended by Governor Weaver in his budget message might be raised by the amount of $325,000 was seen in the inspection by the finance committee. Governor Weaver failed to make provision for this in his budget message.

Estimates Cost at $525,000

The total cost of the plant is estimated to about $525,000. The state capitol's portion of the expense of building the plant is placed at $210,000 leaving $315,000 for the University's share. The capitol's share of the cost will come out of the capitol levy but the legislature will have to make a special appropriation for the University share. The finance committee is inspecting the proposed sites in preparing to get the big appropriation bill out on the floor of the house.

The two proposed sites are the site of the present University heating plant and a plot of ground out on North Fourteenth street. The latter site has good truckage facilities.

DR. E. STANLEY JONES DISCUSSES RELIGIONS

Noted Missionary Expresses Belief That Others Cater To Christianity

VISUALIZES HINDU FAITH

Christianity's impact on the Hindu religion, and its effect on the religion and culture of ancient Greece, was explained by Dr. E. Stanley Jones at a special luncheon for the ministers of Lincoln and the faculty members of colleges and universities of the community, held at the chamber of commerce Monday noon.

"The highest Hindu conception of a god is one who withdraws himself most completely from the world, having no direct part in it, either for good or for evil. The ideal man, according to the Indians, the one who followed most closely this conception of a god," was the theme of his talk.

"The persuasive influence of Christianity has led them to look upon the ideal man as one who serves, and they are therefore turning toward Jesus' conception of God as a loving, serving, Heavenly Father," he concluded.

Traces Other Beliefs

Describing the changing attitude of the non-Christians toward Christianity, Doctor Jones traced its rise to the top of the religions of today. The first attitude assumed by those outside Christianity was one of derision and contempt. Then came the period of active opposition.

Twenty Youths Of Marysville Inspect Campus

"Wow! I am all tired out I never walked so much in all my life." This is an example of an utterance of one of a number of Marysville high school boys visiting the city campus yesterday and today.

The party, a class in vocational agriculture, is taking an inspection trip and general sight seeing tour of the university campus. This morning they are at the agricultural college campus and will be especially interested in the dairy department and in stock judging.

Three Boys Win Contest

Three of the boys were on the winning team in the national stock judging contest at Memphis, Tennessee. They are: Harold Fuhrer, Harold Wassenberg, and Raymond Cohorst.

Monday morning the party inspected the factory of the Chase plow company of Lincoln. They had luncheon at the chamber of commerce as the guests of the chamber's agricultural committee, with Prof. H. J. Gramlich in charge. In the afternoon they inspected the engineering buildings on the campus.

Pause At Dental College

Later they paused at the College of Dentistry, where, both with the idea in mind that a farmer should not be a farmer entirely, later they stopped at Morrill hall to view the fossils wonderfully. P. G. Collins took charge of the class.

The boys, twenty in number, are championed by R. W. Russell, vocational guidance instructor at Marysville high school, and G. H. Chase also of Marysville.

Thrill-Seeking Mongrels Visit Quiet Sanctum

Too much learning makes a wise man dull, some philosopher once said while taking a dose of his own medicine. Too much learning reacts upon dogs with a hilarious effect it seems.

Two of them, a big, white, smooth haired one and a small, grey haired, fuzzy one, sedately entered the library, having no doubt read the sign on the front of the building. Proceeding in an orderly fashion to the further end of the room where the card catalogue is found they must have proceeded to look up some such topic as dog biscuits.

Whether or not they found what they sought cannot be determined, but at least something amused them. They laughed out loud. Oral recitations were not in order at the time, unfortunately. The two dogs who thought learning would benefit them, the big one and the small one, were ejected by the janitor. That's what comes from knowing too much.

LAW ALUMNI STRIVE TO RAISE LOAN FUND

Sponsors of Plan Ask All Graduates to Donate Small Amounts

Alumni of the Nebraska College of Law are creating a loan fund for law students. A drive is being made among the alumni to raise $2,000 in small individual subscriptions of from one to ten dollars.

Over $400 has been raised already. The committee in charge of raising the funds is composed of C. M. Skiles of Lincoln, Judge Quentin Chase of Stanton and Luke Cheney of McCook.

A number of loan funds have been created through the chancellor's office, donated mostly in the amounts of $100 or over. The law college plan for creating a loan fund is unique in that the sponsors are asking for only small subscriptions. All of the alumni of the Law College of Nebraska are being asked to give.

DOLLAR TICKETS FOR 'FAUST' SELL RAPIDLY

One Thousand Pasteboards Are Sold to Patrons Monday Morning

WORKMEN FIX COLISEUM

More than 1,000 tickets for the Chicago Civic Opera company's presentation of Gonou's "Faust" Thursday evening were sold Monday in the 41-sections of the Coliseum.

The latest reports from John K. Selleck's office show that the seats in these sections were still selling fast Monday afternoon, so that the 1,000 sold in the morning would be nearly the entire number sold during all of the day. These balcony seats are on sale at the College Book Store.

Good Seats Remain

There will be only a limited number of general admission tickets on sale. These will consist of the entire back balcony. These seats give an excellent view of the stage and the acoustics are equally good, assuring patrons of a good view of the scenes and an excellent reception of the vocal and orchestral music, according to the statement made by Mr. Selleck, who is treasurer for the Lincoln guarantors.

The exhibits of the Greater Lincoln Exhibition which was held in the Coliseum last week, were all removed over the week-end, and carpenters started to work immediately to work on the raised floor necessary for the opera immediately. Improved plans for raising the elevation of the floor, so that the audience can all see the stage, call for a false floor, making it necessary to cover three-quarters of the Coliseum.

Assignments for articles for the Farmers' Fair number of the Cornhusker Countryman have now been given by editor, Nelson Jodon. A dozen feature articles are being planned, together with number of shorter accounts of the fair.

Most of the issue will be given over to various angles of the fair. The 1929 Farmers' Fair will be organized approximately along the same lines as last year's. The usual parade will start the day off and the pageant will follow. The pageant will be featured in the Farmers' Fair number of the Countryman.

The spice of variety will be added in the day's events by an inter-society riding contest and a polo game, a new and feature addition this year to the fair's curriculum. Such events will be adequately described in a special article in the Countryman. The deadline of all contributions to the number has been set at March 25.

HONOR FRATERNITIES ARRANGE FOR DINNER

Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi Officers Prepare Joint Program

SIR PARES WILL SPEAK

Alumni members of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi will hold a reunion dinner Monday, March 25, at 5 o'clock, according to Phi Beta Kappa officers in charge. This will be the first combined reunion of the two organizations since their founding at Nebraska in 1898 and 1897 respectively. Members of both fraternities foresee many favorable results from such a reunion.

The guest of honor for the dinner will be Sir Bernard Pares, an internationally known scholar, who has been engaged to appear as speaker the same evening in a lecture sponsored by the two fraternities. In addition, the guest list will include Chancellor and Mrs. Burnett, Regent and Mrs. Earl Cline and Col. and Mrs. Frank D. Eager, who will represent the chamber of commerce.

All members of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi living in the vicinity of Lincoln, whether initiated by the local chapters or not, are invited to attend. Invitations have been mailed to all members whose addresses are known, and those who are not reached directly are advised to communicate at once with Prof. John Hicks or Prof. Emma N. Anderson, secretaries of the organizations.

Ditch Diggers Plow Through Parade Ground

There was a parade across the drill field. Not a parade of uniformed cadets but of machines of iron and steel looking like the dinosaurs which may have crossed this same ground millions of years ago. All at once, directly in front of the north door of Social Sciences hall a monster moving slowly and ponderously crawled out of the big ditch and headed west. It turned, however, as soon as it had clambored out, and directed its steel frame to the northeast.

Leaving behind it wide tracks deep in the ground like those of the prehistoric monsters it resembled, this machine took its ponderous way across the field. When it came to the piles of dirt alongside where a ditch had been dug and covered over again, it put down its snout and rooted it into the ground.

Has Destructive Motion

This mouthful of dirt deposited to one side with the deliberate motion of an unthinking, ruthless monster bent upon destruction. Then it turned its head and, lowering it, again bit into the ground. This same operation was repeated several times until the path was clear ahead. Again it moved forward with that relentless movement that stops for nothing.

Seeming to search the ground about with eagle eyes that gleamed with blood, the monster turned its body and crept south. Apparently finding what it wanted, it stopped and pushed the cruel jaws into the yellow dirt and repeated the motions it had gone through in clearing a path over the top of the ditch when it crossed. Looking like the monsters in the moving picture adapted from Conan Doyle's "Lost World," this ancestor of the rulers of the Mesozoic age earnestly bent to its task, until it should again go on parade with its grotesque form rising in the air.

He will also speak this evening at St. Paul's church on "The Cross Section of a Day."

Doctor Jones spoke last evening at St. Paul's Methodist church on the subject, "Between Two Kingdoms." He stated that the ultimate object of every living thing is life. "Life," he said, "is divided into five kingdoms—they are the mineral kingdom, the vegetable kingdom, the animal kingdom, the kingdom of man, and surpassing all, the kingdom of God.

Man is Above Animal

"Man is between two kingdoms, the animal and the spiritual." Doctor Jones differentiated between these two kingdoms in their fundamental bases. The kingdom of animals is material and based on the survival of the fittest. The kingdom of God is above the physical. "Man's discovery," the speaker stated, "is proven by the great tragedy of late years, for the past
