

Dean Ferguson Explains Work Of Engineers

Students Must Start at Bottom of Ladder in Profession

SALARIES ARE LOW

Editor's note: The article following is the fourth of a series that will cover at the colleges of the University. The theme of the series is based upon the conditions in various fields that college graduates must face their first year out of school.

In a certain sense, a student graduating from the College of Engineering must start at the "bottom of the ladder" and work up, according to the opinion of O. J. Ferguson, dean of the college.

"The student has a momentum to begin with, however, and so his progress is more rapid than the uneducated person's. If a firm did not think the recent graduate would progress out of the low level upon which they started him they would never hire him."

The immediate outlook for a young man upon graduating from the College of Engineering always means taking a minor position with some engineering organization where there is an opportunity for working up in the staff, according to Dean Ferguson.

Demand is Heavy

"We find that there is a very heavy demand at present for men who can advance in a large organization to a position of technical and administrative responsibility. A great many organizations which hire new graduates have definite training courses for a year or two. They look upon newcomers as their future leaders.

"Most of the engineering organizations have more high class positions than they have candidates to fill them. These organizations are very definitely on the outlook for men whom they can train to those positions. They build upon the college education which a graduate has."

Situations arising from impatience and a lack of personality are the most difficult in the life of a recent graduate of the College of Engineering, according to the dean. It is his opinion that the recent graduate fails to appreciate the value of a good personality, thinking instead that technical knowledge is all that is necessary.

Combine Theory With Practice

"After a student has finished with the fundamental training he should have, we believe in giving him laboratory work not to teach him all that he should know but to serve as a label of contact between the fundamental theory and

COUNCIL ELECTS RALPH RAIKES AS NEW PRESIDENT

McChesney, Ayres, White Are Officers of Group For Next Year

LANTZ IS REELECTED

Kezer Outlines Work Done During Present Year On Campus

Four hold-over members of the old Student Council were elected officers in the new Council which met for the first time Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock in the Temple. The officers elected were Ralph Raikes, president; Helen McChesney, vice-president; Joyce Ayres, treasurer, and Ruth White, secretary. Prof. E. W. Lantz was re-elected faculty adviser.

Eldred Larson, outgoing president of the body, opened the meeting and acted as temporary chairman until the new officers could be elected. The other three officers of the old Council, Marjorie Sturdevant, vice-president; Munro Kezer, treasurer, and Maurine Drayton secretary, assisted in the organization of the new council.

New Members Learn Powers

The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint the new members of the Council with the accomplishments and powers of the organization, outline a course for future action and to elect permanent officers. Munro Kezer gave a brief account of the Student Council in the present year.

Kezer pointed out the fact that the Student Council, while it has accomplished a great deal in the last two or three years, has done so only through its capacity as an advisory body. Any final action must be approved by the University Senate.

Traffic congestion and parking problems were things that the Student Council tried to meet both last year and during the present term. Although important concessions have been made the problem is not yet solved, according to Kezer.

Privileges Granted

In social activities the Student Council has been granted several privileges by the faculty. Among these are the control of the Junior-Senior prom, control over subscription dances, extension of 12:15 rule on special nights, appointment of Varsity Party committee and the regulation of orchestra rates.

Some of the financial problems and difficulties of the Council were

ZOOLOGISTS GET BIG SURPRISE IN MONK'S ARRIVAL

Supposedly Dead Specimen Creates Sensation in Bessey Hall

A live young monkey, instead of an embalmed one was sent by mistake to the department of zoology recently and has been providing much entertainment for the occupants of Bessey hall.

Chained to a table in room 223, he became over-bored with curiosity and upset things in general. After loosening a large blotter, he pulled to the floor everything except a lamp from the desk of R. Dorothy Swartz. Being especially adept with his hands and teeth, he destroyed all nut cups and decorations remaining from the Phi Sigma initiation banquet.

He left over-friendly girls with bleeding fingers and torn hose. He gave up trying to smoke a lighted cigarette he had stolen and ate the tobacco. Since he did not trust those who lead him about, he carefully held the chain with one hand to prevent it from choking him.

Monk Taken Away

Finally it was considered best to remove him to a cage in the basement. There he sits, crying and waiting for food. He is especially fond of salted nuts and apples. To risk no chance of losing any food he hastily crams it into his mouth and stores it in a pouch for later consumption.

What is to be his fate is not certain. The New York importer was to have sent him to Chicago to be embalmed in order that John Bauman, graduate student, could use the specimen in the study of muscle strength in ape. Now that he has come here alive, the department of zoology dislikes to part with him.

FACULTY PICNIC WILL TAKE PLACE IN PARK

University Instructors Plan Social Outing for This Afternoon

Unmarried instructors and assistants will enjoy themselves at a picnic in the Auto club park this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The picnic will be held in the park rain or shine. More than a hundred are planning to attend.

Supper is scheduled for 6:15, and sixty cents will be collected from each person present in order to defray the expense of the food.

All those needing transportation to the park or have room in their cars for extra passengers are asked to communicate with M. R. Heutenes, in the department of mathematics or Mary Olsson of the department of physical education as soon as possible. If faculty members are unable to do this and have no way of getting to the affair they are asked to gather in front of Grant Memorial hall at 4:30 and means of transportation will be provided for them.

Clifford B. Scott, 36, a graduate of Nebraska in 1917, died at Omaha yesterday morning following an operation for abscess of the brain performed Sunday. Mr. Scott was a prominent lawyer at O'Neill and was well known in musical and club circles while in the University.

He was a member of the Kosmet Klub and wrote the score for "The Easy Mark" produced by the Klub in 1915. He was also a member of the dramatic club, band, glee club, Sigma Delta Chi, journalistic fraternity, and Sigma Phi Epsilon, social fraternity. Schooner Is Out With Remodeled Magazine Cover

Nebraska's Literary Effort Grets Subscribers With New Appearance

Nebraska's literary effort, the Prairie Schooner greets subscribers in its spring issue with slightly remodeled cover, probably the last of the typographical ravages that the magazine will undergo for some time. In content as well as in appearance, the current issue is regarded by the editors as one of the best they have so far been able to produce.

The position of favor has been given to "The Nebraska State Capital," a poem by Rosemunde E. Richards. Although critics may say that Miss Richards should have pointed out the various defects of the building she was apparently too busy pointing out the strength and beauty of it, members of the staff opine.

1929 YEARBOOK TO BE RELEASED NEXT WEDNESDAY

Business Staff Will Place Sale Booths on Main Campus Corners

PRICE IS FIVE DOLLARS

First Copies of Book Have Arrived at Office for Final Inspection

1929 Cornhuskers will be released on the campus at 9 o'clock next Wednesday morning, according to a statement made by the business manager of the Nebraska yearbook yesterday. At this time persons who have reserved books may obtain them at the Cornhusker office in the south basement of University hall.

Booths will be placed in front of Social Sciences and Andrews hall Wednesday morning. Members of the Cornhusker staff will be in charge of these booths, and will have a limited number of books for sale at that time. The price will be five dollars, as announced in the fall.

First Copies Received

First copies of the 1929 yearbook have been received at the Cornhusker office, and the staff promise an exceptionally complete publication. Numerous new and unusual features have been worked out in the 1929 Cornhusker, under the direction of William C. Metzger, editor, and Bruce H. Thomas, business manager.

Work began on the yearbook early in the fall, and the staff has been busy with its production since that time. The last part of the book to be completed was the student life section, which was sent to the printers about two weeks ago. It was not considered possible to get the Cornhusker out before the latter part of May, but concentrated efforts on the part of staff members have made possible its release on Wednesday, May 22.

No information has been given by Mr. Metzger in regard to the content of his publication. Art work and layouts in the 1929 Cornhusker are reported to carry out a distinctive modernistic theme. This is used in cover, division sheets, and special features.

Snapshots are used in large numbers throughout the entire book. Especially is this true of the student life section, in which campus events are pictured and explained in the style and mechanical arrangement of a popular weekly magazine.

Clifford B. Scott Dies At Omaha Hospital

Mr. Scott, graduate of the University with the class of 1917, who died at the Methodist hospital in Omaha Tuesday morning. He has been practicing law at O'Neill for the past nine years and was a prominent figure in state legal circles.

FUN MAGAZINE WILL BE RELEASED TODAY

Staff Completes Final Issue Of Awgwan Featuring June Graduates

"Bye, Bye" number of the Awgwan will be off the press late today and be on sale at all newsstands Thursday morning, according to the editorial staff of the comic monthly. Featuring the graduation theme, many cartoons and articles will make the final issue of the year one of the best according to the editor.

A full page cartoon of graduating seniors is the contribution of Florence Seward. The identity of the various personages is hinted at by something in their school careers that made them outstanding.

"Low Life" is One Feature

"Low Life" by Bill McCleery is a mock story of destiny and is entertaining by its depressive atmosphere. LaSelle Gilman and Phil Blake have also turned in interesting stories for the May issue.

An unusually large number of contributors has made this issue an exceptional one according to Douglas Timmerman, editor. Several new members desire to serve on next year's Awgwan staff.

Holyoke Writes Poem

Frances Holyoke and a poem about "Hil" furnish another worthy feature of the magazine. Short quibs by Roger Robinson and Elmont Waite add a lot to the gaiety of this issue.

Robert Bundy, C. Powell, Arch Powell, LaSelle Gilman, Florence Seward, Milton Reynolds, Roger Robinson are the art contributors for the May issue. Arch Powell has drawn a clever three color cover for the "Bye Bye" number.

Henry Brainerd, Phil Blake, William Darragh, Paul Gallup, Helen Whitmore and Mercedes Wochner have, in addition to those named above, turned in considerable copy this month.

Gregg Enlarges Art Collection In Morrill Hall

Director Paul H. Grumann of the School of Fine Arts has just received word in a letter from Will C. Gregg of Hackensack, New Jersey, that he is sending three paintings to be added to the Gregg collection of paintings and etchings, now in the art galleries in Morrill hall.

One of these paintings is by Ogden M. Pleissner, the winner of the first prize of the National Art club convention. The second painting received second prize in the same exhibition, and is by Adrian Lamb. The third picture is an older painting entitled "Salome," which Mr. Gregg has had in his private collection for some years.

Mr. Gregg presented a beautiful painting called "Cloudland," by Henry W. Parson, very recently. Some years ago he contributed a painting of Venice by F. W. Cook, eminent English artist. Mr. Gregg is building up a collection of etchings, to which he contributes numbers from time to time.

Dean H. G. James Is Dinner Honor Guest

Dean Herman C. James, who will retire at the end of this semester as head of the college of Arts and Sciences, was honored at a meeting of the Faculty Men's Dinner club at the University club last night. The program was composed of short and informal speeches.

"Because," said Dean O. J. Ferguson, chairman of the program committee, "We didn't want to give him a formal send-off." The list of speakers included Chancellor E. A. Burnett, Dean H. H. Foster, Dean J. E. LeRoissignol and Dean James. R. D. Scott and Earl Fullbrook assisted Dean Ferguson on the program committee.
