R.O.T.C. BAND ADMITS 28 MEN BY TRYOUTS

Quick Lists Appointments; Says Some May Be Omitted Later

Twenty-eight new members have been appointed to the University R. O. T. C. band, it was announced Saturday by Prof. W. T. Quick, director of the organization, who conducted tryouts last week for all student musicians wishing to enter the band.

These appointments are tentative and subject to the approval of the military department. Due to the fact that the band's membership is limited to 80, and that more veterans than are expected back may return this year, some of the appointments may, of necessity, be cancelled.

If, however, a few more cadet musicians are needed, further appointments will be made later.

Owing to the limited membership of the R. O. T. C. band, much good material was turned down this year, Director Quick said. He is subject of the approval of the military department. Due to the fact that the band's membership is limited to 80, and that more veterans than are expected back may return this year, some of the appointments may, of necessity, be cancelled.

Fifty-three of last year's R. O. T. C. band members will be present at the first meeting of the year last week. The bandmen will start drilling next Tuesday in preparation for the football season.

The new members and their home towns:

Wesley Hunsfield, Aurora, H. S. Stevens, Lincoln; William G. S. Stevens, Lincoln; William G. S. Stevens, Lincoln.

APPOINTMENTS IN R. O. T. C. MADE IN ABOUT 2 WEEKS

Appointments of commissions in the department of military science for the R. O. T. C. unit at the University of Nebraska will not be made for two weeks, Lieut. Col. F. R. Jewett said Saturday.

This is due largely to the fact that students taking advanced drill are still changing their registration. Others who did register for the advanced course are not returning to school. So that no additions or changes in appointments will be necessary, Colonel Jewett is deferring announcing the commissions, he said.

Registration Falls 32 Below Record for First of Last Term

Total registration at the university for the first semester of the 1929-30 term, according to the registrar's office, reached 5,442 Thursday night, 32 students short of the record made for the first semester of the 1928-29 term. Thursday, not regularly scheduled as a registration day for new students, netted 794 students paying fees, as against 930 for the third day of registration last year.

While the enrollment for the first semester this year has fallen short by thirty-two students from the enrollment figure set last year, additional registrations are expected to bring the total enrollment figures for this year above that of last year. Graduate student registrations, late students and few stragglers remaining from the rush of this year will net more than the 5,442 registrants of Thursday night. College of medicine and school of nursing enrollment are not included in the figures that have been released.

Publications Staff Positions Open for More Applications

Five o'clock Wednesday, Sept. 25, has been set as a final deadline for all applications for the offices of business manager of the Awgwan, university humor publication, and assistant business manager of The Daily Nebraskan. Application may be registered until this time in the school of journalism office, University hall 104.

Necessity for the call for applications for these two offices was caused by the fact that John Lindbeck, newly appointed business manager of the Awgwan, did not return to school this fall and Nathan S. Levy resigned from his post of assistant business manager of the Nebraskan. Application blanks are available in the journalism office.

'U' Hall Is Sixty Years Old Monday; Structure Much Altered Since 1868

Brass Band Imported From Omaha for Cornerstone Laying; Dance Lasting to Four in Morning Held.

(By MARGARET TINLEY)

University hall will celebrate its sixtieth birthday Monday, Oct. 22, 1868. The corner stone was laid for this, the first building of the University of Nebraska. No formal birthday exercises are to be held tomorrow, but the building has been given a coat of paint throughout the inside this summer.

A brass band was imported from Omaha for the laying of the cornerstone and there were merry makings at a banquet and dance. According to a history of the event by Professor Caldwell, the exercises were in charge of the Masonic order. Tradition has it that the dance lasted from 10 p. m. to 4 a. m.

"U" hall has gone through many changes since it was completed on Jan. 6, 1871, and opened to the twenty students of the university in September of the same year. It was then a four story

DEATH COMES TO ENGBERG AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Former Executive Dean Has Suffered Ill Health for Three Years.

URGED TO LEAVE WORK

'He Will Be Greatly Missed In University Life,' Says Burnett.

Funeral of Dr. Carl C. Engberg will be held at the Mine Congregational church, in charge of the Rev. Ervine Inglis. Burial is to be at Exeter, Neb.

Dr. Carl C. Engberg, who has been connected with the University of Nebraska for the past thirty-seven years, died in his building with a tower surrounded by a huge fence. A picture of it labeled "The University of Nebraska" is shown on a map of Lincoln as it was in 1872 which is in the basement of the city library.

Originally the building cost $140,000. It was built in what was supposed to be "Franco-Italian" style of architecture. The white stone trimming of the old red brick building is native sand stone.

Even in 1871, its first year of existence, there was quite a bit of discussion as to the safety of the building. In 1877 the board of regents decided to do away with the building but later reconsidered and it was only repaired. The foundation was changed, the north wing remodeled, and the superstructure reinforced with steel anchors to keep the walls in place.

It was in 1925 that the tower and three top stories were removed and the lower floor alone remains to celebrate its sixtieth anniversary now. This was left in order to provide needed classroom and office space. When the old building does have to be torn down the university plans to erect a memorial on the spot.

THURSDAY SET FOR GREEN CAP DEADLINE

Freshmen Men Must Buy Class Headgear by Initiation Day.

GIRLS TO BUY BUTTONS

Freshman initiation next Thursday, Sept. 26, has been set as the deadline for freshmen not yet wearing green caps to purchase such ornamental headgear, according to Eldred "Bub" Larson, president of the innocents society which sponsored the sale of the caps. All freshmen should be wearing the caps by this time, however, stated Larson, since they were placed on sale during registration, the first of the week.

Freshmen girls will also wear green buttons this year as they have in the past, according to Edna Schrick, vice president of Mortar Board society which sponsors the wearing of the buttons by freshman girls. Uniformed members of the Tassels, girls pep organization, will be present at freshman initiation Thursday morning and will give freshman girls green and white cards that may be redeemed for buttons at Rudge and Guelzler.

The Tassels will also present copies of the Nebraska girls' creed to the new women students. Members of the Tassels will be stationed every half hour or hour at the Rudge and Guelzler store Thursday afternoon, Friday and Saturday to give out the buttons.

In commenting on the wearing of the green caps, Larson stated that it was not meant to be a penalty but rather a tradition dating back many years. Freshmen should be proud to wear their caps, he stated.

The olympics have been abolished this year but freshmen will probably continue to wear their caps until Thanksgiving. The olympics, formerly an annual conflict between freshmen and sophomores occurring about a week before Thanksgiving, have always here-tofore determined how long freshmen should wear their caps.

WOMEN MAY OBTAIN BOOKLET ON SPORTS

All Girls Urged to Take Part in Intramural Sports Program.

A new booklet on girls' sports has been issued this year by the Women's Athletic association. It is printed in an attractive form, and may be obtained at the gymnasium free of charge.

Instruction on how to enter sports is given. Every university woman is eligible to enter any of the intramural tournaments of W. A. A. This may be done through an intramural representative, or by handing in the name to the intramural office, room 200 in the women's gymnasium. From notice to expert, freshman to senior, all are included in the intramural sports program.

The sports calendar for this year is more extensive than it ever has been before. In the fall, from September to December, speedball, tennis, hiking, Nebraska ball, rifle, basketball, hockey and horse-back riding will be offered. Bowling, basketball, indoor golf, and dancing will take place during the winter months. Events in baseball, deck tennis, golf, archery, swimming, and dancing will be held from March to June.

A short description of each sport is given in the sports booklet. Names of the W. A. A. officers, and members of the intramural council, which is comprised of representatives of sorority houses and dormitories, are included. The sport board for this year is also included.

The new W. A. A. point system may be found at the back of the book. A Nebraska "N" may be won through the earning of these points.

Intramurals of W. A. A. extend an invitation to every woman on the campus, and especially to the new freshman, according to the faculty adviser, Miss Isabel Lee, Miss Miriam Wagner and Miss Clairie McDonald.

Margaret Ward was editor of the booklet, assisted by Virginia Faulkner, associate editor; Margaret Day, business manager; Marie Havlicek, art, and Miss Mary Olesen, faculty adviser.

The miniature fair was constructed as one of the projects in the kindergarten-primary display at the teachers college.

UNIVERSITY PRESENTS HISTORIC PHOTOPLAYS

Extension Division Gives History Credits in Picture Course.

The university extension division is distributing Yale university's Chronicles of America Photo-plays this year to high schools, civic and patriotic organizations, and will also show them to the university students during the winter.

Attendance at the different picture shows, some reference work and taking appropriate examinations grants credit, provided registration is made at the office of the extension division.

Fraternities Get 606 Men And Sororities Take 354 Women.

SOME LISTS ARE LONG

Twenty-Nine Go Alpha Sig; Kappas Pledge Group of Twenty-Seven.

Approximately 960 students, nearly one-third of the freshman class of the university, today are wearing pledge buttons of some Greek-letter organization on the campus. Of this number 606 are men and 354 women. The number pledged is about the same as the last two or three years.

Lists of pledges which appear on inside pages of The Nebraskan today were submitted by each of the thirty-eight fraternities and twenty-one sororities connected with the university.

Leading the fraternities in number of pledges is Alpha Sigma Phi with twenty-nine. Second is Sigma Phi Epsilon with twenty-five. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Sigma hold third with twenty-four men each. With only five pledges, Sigma Phi Sigma is at the bottom of the fraternities in number of
