Checking the Wolves.

TO ERADICATE the heretofore seemingly necessary evil of crowding the door of the coliseum at the time when student football tickets were on sale, the athletic department of the university has evolved a new system which it hopes to put into practice this fall. The plan, as announced, calls for complete revision of the old method, systemizing the distribution so that all will be served equally and satisfactorily.

The haphazard, first here, first served means of selling tickets always proved to be nothing short of a menace. Those students, backed by experiences of former years, who "knew the ropes" and were able to use this knowledge to advantage, were naturally the first to receive tickets. Others, less cognizant of the difficulties involved in the operation, were forced to take their places in the rear of the line, much to their disappointment.

There has never been any justification for the "grand rush." One seat in the student section is as good as another and the price for all is the same except those in the cheering section. Veritably the entire plat consists of the choicest places in the stadium. This can be made plain by the fact that of the 16,000 seats on the east side, there are never more than 4,500 secured by students. The exact boundary of the section extends from the first to the twenty-seventh row and from the twenty-five yard line on the north to the twenty-five yard line on the south.

Hence it is all a matter of avoiding the inevitable storming of the doors. This, we are confident, can be rectified by the new plan. It will make no difference who gets there first; he or she may be the last to receive the seat assignment. Each identification card together with the money, either in check or currency, will have a number and be placed in an envelope. After the deadline for sales has been reached all envelopes will be stirred up in a "concrete mixer" and the first to be taken out will get first choice in location. The whole process will be effected in the athletic office and announcement of the seat placements will be made later.

With the inauguration of this system, Nebraska assumes a place among several large universities and colleges who have found it to work out satisfactorily and there is no reason that the same results can't be achieved here.

Time for Action

Fraternities on the Nebraska campus apparently do not relish the idea of having freshmen look before they leap. Year after year a badly organized rush week, minus efficient leadership and management, has come upon the campus. The rushing period lasts for three or four days and its consequences carry on during three to six college years.

One of the foundations of a fraternity is supposed to be the choice of its men. How, in the course of three exciting days, a fraternal organization expects to see, judge and select its men is beyond conception.

New students are necessarily lacking in certain qualities of judgment concerning fraternities, for their knowledge on the subject is usually limited. They must take the word of hard-rushing fraternity men and upon this make their choice.

If each fraternity would be content to show its rushes exactly what the organization had to offer, then the result would be satisfactory. Unfortunately a few fraternities insist upon showing that all other organizations are worse than the one in mind.

A rush week has just come to a close. Glaring defects face us. Will we be content to let the matter slide under the surface and worm its way along until another such period? The present situation gives food for thought and one organization on the campus has an unusually fine opportunity to justify its existence by an attempt at correction.

When a Man Serves.

Thirty-seven years of service, constant vigilance and unerring devotion to his vocation and task, marks the career of Dr. August Frederick Jonas, retired chairman of the department of surgery of the university.

Saturday morning, at his own request, the board of regents of this institution accepted Dr. Jonas' resignation, granting him the distinction of "professor emeritus in the department of surgery of the college of medicine." Probably one of the greatest guardians of humanity in his chosen profession, Dr. Jonas retires from office with the benevolent thanks of thousands, the respect of those to whom he administered care.

It is seldom that the university sees such a man in this difficult profession serve his country, his state and his fellow men with such steady, unswerving care as that practiced by Dr. Jonas. But yet when a man retires from active service because of a much needed rest the public does not forget his work for the community and Dr. Jonas' work will live as an example for modern surgeons.

The Nebraskan voices the appreciation of many loyal Cornhuskers for the wonderful record of Dr. Jonas. When we have spent our years as students at Nebraska, gone into the vast expanse of experience and hardened business, those of us who knew the success of Dr. Jonas will remember him as a wonderful character and benefactor of mankind.

Pershing Rifles Call

Meeting For Tuesday

Tuesday night, September 24, has been designated as the date for the first fall meeting of the Pershing Rifles, national honorary military organization.

The meeting will be held in Nebraska hall at 5 o'clock. All members are urged to be present as many important measures regarding the expansion of the organization and the year's activities for the local chapter will be discussed. It will not be necessary for members to appear in uniform.

AN ARMY of 65,000

Loyal, Aggressive Employees

AT YOUR SERVICE

THROUGHOUT the history of the world, happiness and progress have been based on Service. No institution in our present-day civilization plays so vitally important a part as do our transportation agencies—and our railroads still are, and must continue to be, by far the most important transportation factor.

That is the reason railroad men and women, generally, are such wonderfully fine people—because they have the knowledge that they are engaged in providing a service that is both necessary and very much worth while. In no other occupation is there greater opportunity for genuine service.

Therefore, it must of necessity follow, that the most successful and progressive railroads are manned by employees who are most loyal, aggressive and progressive. It also follows that those railroads whose employees possess the finest esprit de corps, the highest morale, the greatest loyalty and aggressiveness, automatically become the most progressive and successful.

Missouri Pacific Lines and Missouri Pacific employees both are fortunate. The entire system is manned by one of the finest organizations in the history of the world—and the Missouri Pacific army of 65,000 employees is following the standard of a successful and progressive American institution.

Result—the public benefits almost beyond measure. Every individual in the organization is fully aware of the importance of team work and there are few armies—even military organizations—that can exhibit the singleness of purpose; the effectiveness of concerted attack; the unanimous joy in achievement that motivates the Missouri Pacific Lines army.

Shippers and travelers who have discovered these things have benefited and profited. Some have discovered them accidentally. Others have purposely sought to test out the Missouri Pacific Army. Without exception the army has been found ready and willing to attack the largest or the smallest problem of the shipper and the traveler in order that the Missouri Pacific Lines might be of greatest possible service and so live up to the motto that is emblazoned on its banners and written indelibly in the hearts of all—A Service Institution.

The Missouri Pacific Lines Army is proud of its railroad and the railroad is proud of its army. Both seek greater opportunities to be of service.

I solicit your co-operation and assistance.

Girls From Four Countries Attend International Camp Near Gottenburg

Kerstin Thorin, of the department of physical education for women at the University of Nebraska, planned and directed an international camp for girls held this summer near Gottenburg, Sweden.

In planning the camp program, Miss Thorin invited counselors and campers from the United States and from foreign countries. Fifteen girls, five from America, two from Germany, one from England, and a number from Sweden attended the camp.

Acquaintance with Swedish life and culture, and the introduction of camps in Sweden was the double purpose of the camp. Intimate touch with the people of Sweden was possible through the knowledge of Miss Thorin of the country.

Miss Thorin, who was educated in Sweden has taught in the United States for the past four years. During that time she taught in Northwestern University, Illinois University, and for the last two years in the University of Nebraska.

The program of the camp included all the activities of a camp, including folk dancing, and talks on the history, art, and nature study of Sweden. French, German and English were spoken in turn.

At the close of the camp on July 16, the members of the camp traveled through Sweden. First to the north of Sweden, fishing in the Baltic sea, the group visited the university at Upsala, founded in 1400.

From there, they went to Stockholm, visited the Gotland island in the Baltic sea, and then went on to Darlecarlia. This is a province in central Sweden where folk costumes are still worn by the people. Mountains, lakes, and rivers make this part of the country one of the most beautiful spots in Sweden and it is visited by many tourists.

Trips into Germany, England and France were taken by individual members of the group.

Before the camp started, Miss Thorin attended a national folk dancing conference at London. All kinds of folk dancing was demonstrated, the programs usually taking place at Casino gardens or at Hyde park.

Miss Thorin admitted that she was glad to be back again at the university, and is looking forward to an enjoyable year of instruction and to another international camp next summer.

as dean of the college of medicine at Omaha to devote more time to private practice.

Chancellor E. A. Burnett has contributed an article telling of the changes made on the campus in the way of general repairs during the summer. He mentioned that the flagstone walks which were the pride of 1891 have been replaced by concrete. The old stones will be used to adorn dormitory courtyards.

The purchase of sites for dormitories and the loan fund which was established this summer by the Alumni association are discussed.

Nebraska writers and athletes receive their share of attention. Interesting editorials comment on what to do after graduation, student loans, summer progress, etc. An interesting poem entitled "New Uni Hall" gives some suggestions, although the author excites the curiosity by signing as follows: "By B. Sc. with apologies to all B. A. students."

The Alumnus proper was preceded by a football edition which was inaugurated last year and is published weekly during the football season. It contains the Nebraska football schedule and a discussion of the coming games. Old and new players are mentioned while the front page contains attractive pictures of Coach Dana X. Bible and Capt. George Farley.

lice dragnet was spread over the entire section.

Three days later, the night after two stores had been robbed at Murdock, three men appeared about 10:30 in the morning at the home of Roy Blunt to be received courteously by Blunt's bride of two months.

Their suspicions aroused when she failed to return after telling them she would go to the chicken coop for eggs, the convicts commanded her husband to drive them away.

After a chase of fourteen miles over snow-laden roads, the convicts, lying in the bottom of the wagon, opened fire, leaving Blunt, driving on the high seat, exposed to return fire of the posse. For one mile convicts and pursuers waged a running fight with steady gunfire.

Gray was killed by a shot from a member of the posse but not before Blunt had been mortally wounded. Death of Blunt left the team racing down the road without a driver. Dowd, seeing his and this build up local advertising. Good Staff Contributes.

The best talent in the university has been enrolled in the Awgwan and the largest staff in the history of the publication will edit the magazine this year. The Awgwan is sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, and a Sigma Delta Chi advisory committee has been appointed by Murray to assist in the publication of the magazine. This committee consists of Gene Robb, chairman, Doug Timmerman and Charles Wahlquist.

In addition to student contributors, Nebraska alumni, prominent in the fields of art and humor, such as Herbert Johnson, who is cartoonist for the Saturday Evening Post, will be "guest" contributors to some of the issues.

Murray Makes Survey.

The editor of the Awgwan stated that the best of the college humor magazines in the country have been studied and the new Awgwan will be made up of the best features resulting from the survey as well as many new and original features.

The Awgwan has secured eastern representatives, Roy Barnhill, Inc., New York City, and the College Special Advertising agency of Chicago.

The complete Awgwan staff will be announced in an early issue of the Nebraskan along with a hint of certain of the new features which up to this time have been kept secret.

An Awgwan booth will be maintained in front of Social Sciences hall all day tomorrow for the benefit of students who wish to subscribe. Representatives of the business staff will also call on sororities and fraternities Tuesday and Wednesday soliciting block subscriptions. Individual subscriptions may be obtained by mail, in care of the Awgwan, University of Nebraska.
