HUSKER AERIAL ATTACK WORRIES GWINN HENRY

Scouts Bring Back News of Nebraska's Passing Stuff After Battle With Pittsburgh; Mizzou Line Challenges Strength of Old Foe.

By JACK ELLIOTT.

A fast, snappy signal drill coupled with an entire review and examination over the work that will be taken up against the Missouri Tigers in Columbia Saturday, was the headline on Coach Dana Bible's program for his Scarlet football warriors on Memorial stadium sod last night. In the final drill session of the week, the Huskers were loaded to the brim for the mighty attack to be launched against the opening conference foe this week.

Coach Bible and his Huskers pulled away from Lincoln at 9 o'clock Thursday evening and will reach Columbia in time for a workout on the Missouri field Friday afternoon. Thirty-one players were taken on the trip, four listed in the injury column. "Hi" Frucka, Lewandowski, Scherzinger and Rowley will not make the trip due to injuries received during the season. The probable lineup to meet the Tigers at kickoff time in Columbia tomorrow will find Morgan and Hofuk at the wing positions, Richards and Broadstone at the tackle berths, Greenberg and Koster at the guard posts and Rhea at center. The Husker backfield will be made up of Young-Farley-Witte-Sloan.

Passing Worries Mizzou.

Reports from Columbia are that Coach Gwinn Henry and his coaching staff are worried over the new passing attack that the Cornhuskers launched against Pitt. Heretofore Henry was only concerned with a Nebraska running attack but Coach Jack Crangle returned to Columbia this week after watching the Husker-Pitt game with reports that the Nebraska team had taken to the air with a well polished aerial game. Missouri scribes say that for the first time in years the Tiger gridgers are able to match the power of Nebraska when the football teams of the two schools meet Saturday in the annual homecoming classic at Columbia.

Coach Gwinn Henry stated something to this effect last week, but quickly added that it will take more than sheer power to cope with the tactics of Coach Dana Bible and his band of Cornhuskers from Lincoln. And the Missouri coach has figured that it will not take the power of the Tiger wall alone to stop the powerful drives of Clair Sloan, Captain George Farley and "Red" Young, but it will take a smart Tiger team on defense to break up the Husker aerial game. Missouri will no longer be able to pull its defense up behind the line and leave it there as it has done for the past three years, but it will be kept on the alert all afternoon for the Cornhusker aerial game that will be mixed up with a well groomed running attack by the Biblemen.

Scout Brings Message.

For the first time in many years a Missouri scout has returned to the lair of the Tiger with the report that the Scarlet machine is to be feared more in the air than in any other way. The strategy of the Bible team will be unleashed in full strength tomorrow afternoon when the Tiger and Husker eleven clash in one of the greatest football classics ever to be played by the two ancient rivals.

Coach Bible has spent the majority of the practice time this week in polishing up the Husker eleven on fundamental work and the offensive power. The first part of the week was turned over to fundamental tactics in tackling, blocking and linework with a Wednesday scrimmage against the nubbin team and fresh eleven. The Thursday session was tapered off with a light signal drill and dummy scrimmage before the squad entrained for Columbia. Bible is satisfied with the morale of the team on the eve of the opening Big Six game and hopes to give the packed stadium at Columbia tomorrow one of the greatest football games they have ever seen.

The following list of Scarlet warriors made the trip to Missouri:

- Maxon Brodston, Norfolk.
- Charles Byrne, Lincoln.
- Clinton Edo, Lincoln.
- Clair Sloan, Lincoln.
- George Farley, Sioux City, Ia.
- Hanson Fruck, Beatrice.

- Harold Packer, Kearney.
- Art Perry, Lincoln.
- Frank Prucka, Omaha.
- Hugh Rhea, Atkinson.
- George Ryz, Grand Island.
- Clair Sloan, Lincoln.
- Paul Sloan, Pawnee City.
- Clair Sloan, Verdon.
- Joe Bill, Lincoln.
- Robert Young, Norfolk.

Aggies Meet Engineers On Playground Today

The second of a series of inter-college playground baseball games will be played at 4:30 this afternoon when the Aggies meet the Engineers on the drill field.

The inter-college sport is the first in a new field. A complete program involving competition among various colleges of the university has been planned for the year. The purpose of the inter-college program is to give non-fraternity students a chance to take part in some athletic activity, according to Rudolph Vogeler, director of intramural athletics.

There is one thing at least that the Cornhusker football fans will not have to worry about this year and that is Coach Gwinn Henry sending in a pair of cripples to win the football game as he did the last time Nebraska played at Columbia. Reports out of Columbia state that the Tiger team is in the best of condition for the Cornhuskers from Lincoln. Paul Marvin, reserve Tiger footballer, is the only member of the Mizzou squad on the injury list and Coach Henry expects to throw his entire power on the gridiron tomorrow in an attempt to down the mighty Scarlet from Lincoln and continue his victories in the Big Six. And on the other hand, a fighting band of Cornhuskers under the tutelage of Coach Dana X. Bible left last night for Columbia, where they open the Big Six conference season and hope to start the season as they have started for a number of years—with a victory.

The Oklahoma Sooners, that band of redmen coached by Ad Lindsey, will find it tough going Saturday when they mix with "Bo" McMillin, Aggie eleven at Manhattan. Fresh from their victory over the Jayhawkers, the K-Aggies will take on the Sooners to prove the fact that they will be in the race this season with one of the strongest eleven ever turned out by the Manhattan school. The Aggie crew have confidence in themselves and as they continue to grow in the teachings of Mr. McMillin, they come out of their slump and show Big Six followers that the Wildcat is not a discarded thing but just as powerful as ever before.

Lee Page, halfback on the University of Kansas eleven, is the high scorer at present in Big Six football circles, with a mere eighteen points. Unless some Tiger individual or Husker back can run rampant in Saturday's game, Page will continue to lead the scorers. The eighteen points rolled up by the Jayhawkers back is considerably small in comparison to other years but the Big Six is late this season in getting under full steam. After Saturday, the scorers in the conference will begin to pile up and the power of the conference backs will soon come to the front.

Two large blotches arose on the football horizon the past few weeks, which have caused considerable comment. The first is the Carnegie athletic report which has caused quite a stir in footballdom, and the second is the wide publicity given to the resignation of Ernoch Hagshaw at Washington. The first is a selection of universities by the Carnegie foundation to find out how much commercialism existed in football, and there were only a handful of schools that Carnegie did not find some stain of commercialism existing. Nebraska was not included in the report and Yale, Cornell, Chicago, West Point, Wesleyan and Williams were the only ones that were among the guiltless. The case of Hagshaw at Seattle was a culmination of a two-year fight by the student body to oust the football coach. Hagshaw has gone through three games so far this season without a victory and the school is clamoring for his dismissal, although he still has two more years to serve on his contract.

Kansas will go north this week to meet the Iowa State Cyclones on State field. Kansas Aggies will entertain the Oklahoma Sooners and Nebraska meets Missouri to complete the first week this season that all Big Six eleven have battled the same day in games with a bearing on the championship. Despite the fact that Lee Page, Jayhawk back, did not score last week, he still continues to lead the conference in individual scoring. Missouri and K-Aggies, the only two conference teams who have played thus far, are tied in the lead for the 1929 flag.

Last night on the sod Coach Bible sent his pigskin warriors through their final workout on the home field. He was well pleased with the showing made by the Scarlet and commented on the improvement since the first of the week. It took the Huskers about two days to get that Pitt defeat out of their minds and turn their attention to football doings in the Big Six conference, the title of which they held from last year. Ren Young, Clair Sloan and Capt. George Farley ran wild against Bill Day's nubbin team in the open session Wednesday and from all indications it's going to be a battle for blood in the annual Tiger-Husker duel at Columbia tomorrow. The final scrimmage almost proved to be fatal to Clair Sloan, Cornhusker backfield ace, as he returned a punt and was tackled outside the field. An injury to his knee was reported to be of minor importance and the team physician stated that Sloan would be in condition for the game Saturday.

Professors Attend Toronto Dairy Men
Professors H. P. Davis and K. Crowe, of the department of dairy husbandry, are in Toronto where they are attending the international dairy exposition. The newest improvements in dairy equipment are featured at the exposition and the men expect to get some information about modern dairy machinery before returning Sunday. Professor Crowe is secretary of the Nebraska Dairy men's association.
