THOMPSON SETS FINAL DATE OF TUITION FILINGS

Students, Seeking Second Semester Scholarships, Must Fill Blanks.

AWARDS ARE PRORATED

Attainment in Studies and Financial Need Provide Selection Bases.

The final date for the filing of applications for tuition scholarships has been set for Friday, Dec. 20, according to an announcement from the office of the dean of student affairs. Applications should be filed with the dean of the college or the director of the school in which the applicant is registered.

This is the fourth semester that these scholarships have been offered. The winners will have their tuition expenses refunded but must pay registration and outstate fees. The awarding of the scholarships is based upon financial need and scholastic attainment. The awards are prorated among the various schools and colleges with the exception of the college of law and the college of dentistry. The former has different scholarships of its own, independent of the tuition scholarships, and the latter has no scholarships. Between 95 and 100 of the awards will be granted.

Students who apply will be requested to fill out a special blank which will be supplied in the office of the dean of his college. The blanks are very detailed. The applicant must state his age, residence, marital status, the occupation of his father if living, his preparatory school, courses of study and number of semesters he has been in the University of Nebraska. He is also required to tell whether he expects to graduate, what his college activities have been, the manner in which his vacations are spent, and whether he is in possession of any special remunerative skill or trade.

In regard to financial data he must state to what extent his parents or guardian are able to defray the expenses of his college education, and how many dependents his parents have. A statement of the extent in which he is self-supporting, the hours spent in outside work, scholarships now held and a statement as to whether his grades have been affected by lack of sufficient funds is also required. A special page is provided for the listing of the courses carried in the university and the grades made in each.

It was announced at the same time that it is hoped that a list of the names of the winners of the seven $100 scholarships, applications for which closed Dec. 1, will be available before the Christmas holidays. The money will be available for the winners at the beginning of the second semester.

Latest Book by Le Rossignol Gets Favorable Comment From Critics

Characters with souls as well as beauty of actions and words are the features of J. E. Le Rossignol's new book, "The Flying Canoe." Le Rossignol is dean of the college of business administration, and writes for publication as a hobby. Great has been the praise of Le Rossignol's work, especially from Canadian critics, where Le Rossignol bases most of his tales. "The Flying Canoe" is for the most part a book of the great outdoors, but at the beginning of the first chapter, also entitled "The Flying Canoe," the author presents a cozy home scene in the heart of a Canadian woods as the blaring sirens gathered around a tale of Damon Le Corbion and his "species of sorcery" as told by the countryside story teller, Cousin Pierre. Mingled with the smooth flowing English which the author uses in presenting his tales, are words of French, which add to the color of the people, to the spice of interest for his French Canadian readers, and to the food for imagination

Students Find New Diversion to Take Place of Rallies in Mystery Structure

Rally season is over but who misses it? Nobody should for the university authorities, always considerate of the students who labor under their guidance, have provided new diverting elements to keep the minds of harassed students off the boring lectures of their instructors. The new barn, we suppose its a barn for at least the drums of the students. Sometimes they beat so loudly that it is too difficult to attempt to listen to lectures and when the racket is not sufficient to justify deliberate in-attention students find that an interesting pastime is the count the beats of the hammer and attempt to estimate how many nails have been driven into the structure during the course of a class period. Many professors are complaining that the construction of the barn is a nuisance. They declare that they have enough trouble keeping their classes awake without having the monotonous thuds of a hammer adding to their burden.

TWO GROUPS SPONSOR ALL-LUTHERAN PARTY

Plans Call for Party to Be Held in Gallery of Morrill Hall.

AFFAIR COMES FRIDAY

The Lutheran club and the Lutheran Bible league, the two Lutheran student organizations on the campus, are jointly sponsoring an All-Lutheran Christmas party to be given Friday evening at 8:00 p. m., Dec. 13, in gallery A, Morrill hall. Vocal and instrumental musical numbers and readings will make up most of the program, but the entertainment committee is arranging games of all kinds for the party. Following the games and the program a supper will be served.

Rev. and Mrs. Henry Erick, the former the Lutheran student pastor, and Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Elliott will sponsor this party. The gallery will be decorated with Christmas colors and in keeping with the occasion.

FACULTY WOMEN SING AT CHRISTMAS PARTY

Lincoln High School Girl Reserves Also Provide Entertainment.

A Christmas party was given by the Faculty Women's club Wednesday afternoon in Ellen Smith hall. Mrs. S. Avery and Mrs. E. A. Burnett poured Christmas carols, lead by Mrs. J. D. Hicks and accompanied by Mrs. O. K. Bousma. Mrs. E. W. Lantz played the part of Santa Claus at the meeting of the faculty club. Rouge to paint the doll's faces was scarce, so old Nick came to Lincoln for a supply. A Christmas tree and holiday decorations carried out the spirit of the party.

Christmas carols were sung by the group. Following were selections of carols by the Girl Reserve chorus from Lincoln high school dressed in old English costume. The committee members who plan the party were Mrs. A. R. Congdon, Mrs. M. M. Fogg, Mrs. Lewis Washburn, Mrs. W. H. Dunman, Mrs. O. K. Bousma, Mrs. L. V. Skidmore, and Mrs. R. E. Cochran.

Here's One Ticket Sale That Turned Out to Be Successful

"Now who'd a thunk it?" The innocents, based on tradition and designated to boost student affairs, have set another tradition besides two tone oxfords and cap and gaiters. The Cornhusker grid banquet, planned by them has a complete sellout in the ticket column. According to members, the last ducat was disposed of for one buck late last night, setting a goal for the interfraternity banquet committee to aim toward. As stated before in the columns of "The Daily Nebraskan," the grid-banquet will accommodate 350, providing the beans and black bread hold out, and the football team will be ushered in as guests of the management. To those who have bought tickets, no description of the affair will be necessary, and to those who were less fortunate, a description of the banquet is set for the crowning of the football captain and the temporary scuffle in the Venetian room of the Lincoln hotel.

Two Scarlet Fever Cases Are Reported To Health Officers

Two cases of scarlet fever have been reported to the student health office and are being cared for at the university infirmary. Through them a number of students have been exposed to the disease and as a necessary precaution Dr. R. A. Lyman, director of student health service, requests that any one having a sore throat or high temperature report at the student health office for examination immediately. This is the first time this year that a contagious disease has been reported on the Nebraska campus to the student health department and all effort should be made on the part of the students to prevent any further breaking out of such diseases, Dr. Lyman declares.

Heating Plant Will Warm State Capitol

Lines from the old university heating plant to the capitol building will be tested today, and if they function properly, as those in charge expect them to do, the capitol will be heated from the school plant. Lines are also being constructed from the capitol to the governor's mansion and when they are completed this building too will be heated from the plant. It is expected that the lines to the women will be ready for use in about three weeks. When the new university heating plant, now under construction, is finished, it will take up the burden of heating the school and the other state buildings now heated from the old plant.

STEPANEK WILL TELL OF CZECHS AT CONVOCATION

Motion Pictures Will Aid Depiction of Life in New Republic.

FILM SHOWS FESTIVAL

Slavic Language Instructor Is Well Acquainted With Nation's Customs.

Prof. Orin Stepanek of the departments of English and Slavic languages will give an illustrated lecture on the quinquennial Sokol tournament at Prague, Czechoslovakia, at the convocation hour to be held this morning at 11 o'clock in the Temple auditorium. Motion pictures, showing over a million Sokol athletes gathered from various parts of the world, will be used to illustrate the lecture. The Sokols assemble every five years for a month's fete of pageants, masques, and athletic exhibitions, among them the spectacle of fifteen thousand turners drilling in absolute harmony, though coming from many countries and meeting for the first time in the greatest amphitheater in the world before several hundred thousand spectators, many of these in colorful peasant costume. Pictures Are Impressive.

The pictures show fifteen thousand men, young men, women, and girls respectively in various exhibitions of gymnastic skill, including delegations from America, among them, one from Nebraska. The Sokol organization, numbering over 800,000 athletes in Czechoslovakia alone, was founded in 1862 by a professor of the history of art in the University of Prague, the oldest university in central Europe, and the ideals of the organization are those of Attic Greece, the festival every five years being very similar to the Panathenaea of ancient Athens. During the festival, Prague, a city of less than a million, entertains over a million guests. Professor Stepanek was official representative of the University of Nebraska at the tournament shown in his pictures. The delegation from London included the lord mayor, H. G. Wells, Lord Dunsany, and other distinguished Britishers.

First Lady Is American. A striking figure at all of the exhibitions is Thomas G. Masaryk, eighty years old, president of the new republic, whom Emil Ludwig, the famous German biographer, calls the greatest statesman in the world. President Masaryk married an American woman. His children have attended American schools. His ideals of statesmanship have been derived from America, which he visited several times as professor and as liberator of his people from the Hapsburg yoke.

Professor Stepanek, who holds a master's degree from Harvard, has been at the University of Nebraska since 1920. He is an associate professor of Slavic languages and an instructor in English.

Statistics Measure Magnitude of Decorations for University Party

If all the decorations that have been obtained for the all university party to be held Saturday evening were placed end to end it would interfere with the plans. Members of the barb council ready to spring a party which will overshadow anything of the like nature that has been attempted at the University of Nebraska. More than two miles, approximate distance across the drill field on a cold morning, of decorating paper has arrived in Lincoln and is ready to be assembled or distributed. The director will have to walk a pair of miles to get the paper around, apparently. Silver decorating strips will constitute a large part of the all-university party's Christmas decorations. In fact twelve miles of this material will be used to disguise the interior of the coliseum. More might have been procured, but the barb council hesitated to outdo the twelve mile limit. Something in the nature of an interior snowstorm has been suggested for the party. Santa Claus was expected to appear at the dance, but substantial rumors have reached the publicity offices of the council to the effect that there is no Santa Claus. This may interfere with plans, but nothing is known for certain. Christmas trees will be used throughout the decorative scheme. Hanging streamers and paper arches will add the finishing touches to the plan, and favors will be distributed among those who skid around on the coliseum floor Saturday evening.

Bailey Slips Threat Of Libel: Nebraskan Cracks Back in Hole

In order to avoid the libel suit which Arthur C. Bailey, editor of the 1930 Cornhusker has threatened to institute, The Daily Nebraskan finds it necessary to print a statement declaring that those in charge of the publication of the yearbook have decided not to break the all time university record in regard to the extension of Cornhusker deadlines by granting another one. It is now too late for students to present their proofs at the Cornhusker office, Bailey avers. The proofs for the pictures which will appear in the alleged year book are being selected by the studio where they were taken.

COED CONDEMNS IDEA OF MILITARY COURSE

Ruth Hatfield Heads List Of Student Speakers in World Forum.

SAYS PROPAGANDA BAD

"It is hard to find out what is the truth," declared Ruth Hatfield, who spoke at the World Forum luncheon Wednesday on "A Student's Contribution to World Peace." Miss Hatfield was the first of a list of students, who will address the World Forum gatherings. "We must think and find out what is the right thing to do and then do it," she stated, pointing out that students should not let themselves be unduly influenced by propaganda. "Free thinking is taken for granted," she said, but yet student's ideals are moulded by forces of which they are entirely ignorant. There is nothing binding upon what students may think, according to Miss Hatfield but propagandists are not willing to allow students to form their own opinions. Attempting Influence.

Miss Hatfield stated that both the pacifists and the militarists were attempting to influence the students by the use of propaganda in order to plant their ideals into their minds. She especially decried the attempt of the militarists "to create military ideals in the minds of (Continued on Page 3.)

Players Are Seeking a Fan Worthy Of Being Gift of an English Lord

A fan! A fan! Who has a fan? That is what the University Players are trying to find out. They need it badly, too, because it plays a vital role in "Lady Windermere's Fan" which will open Friday evening at the Temple theater. Of course it can't be just an ordinary fan, for it must be the kind that an English lord would present to his wife as a birthday gift. And according to Oscar Wilde, the author of the play, those English lords were right up to the minute where gifts were concerned. This fan, moreover, has the distinction of being in more dramatic scenes than any character in the play. When anything exciting happens, the fan is not only right there, but also is usually the cause of it. While it doesn't say a word, it is the most important element in the show. The Players, recognizing the great distinction which will automatically fall to that fan which will be chosen to take the part of

BURNETT DENIES HIS STATEMENT OPPOSED BARBS

Chancellor Thinks Omaha Bee-News Story Is Misleading.

SPEECH GIVEN MONDAY

Analysis Was Intended to Show Ease of Fixing Responsibility.

Denial that his remarks before the Bellevue Men's club of Omaha were derogatory to nonfraternity students in any way was made by Chancellor E. A. Burnett Wednesday night after being quoted by the Omaha Bee-News Wednesday morning as favoring the fraternity system and "rapping" the barbs. The remarks of the chancellor which he declares were grossly misinterpreted by the Bee-News reporter who covered the meeting dealt with the ease in which sorority and fraternity students could be handled because of their compact organization. The Bellevue club meeting took place Monday night but an account of it did not appear until Wednesday in the Bee-News.

"The headline does not belong to the story," was the first comment made by Chancellor Burnett was shown a copy of the story. The report carried the following headline: "Burnett Raps U. 'Barbarians.'" Comment Explained.

In explaining his comments which were made before the Bellevue body, Chancellor Burnett also stated, "The statement credited to me about fraternities not being a problem and that it was the 3,000 or 4,000 students who are not in fraternities and sororities that cause the faculty troubles is not what I meant at all. I did not intend to praise the fraternities nor did I intend to denounce the nonfraternity students. "What I was trying to point out," the chancellor continued, "was the ease with which fraternity and sorority groups can be handled, because of their compactness, in contrast to the unorganized students — those who are not connected with the fraternities and sororities. Whenever anything goes wrong in a fraternity we are always able to fix the responsibility upon one person, who will see that the proper recourse is taken."

In comment on his treatment of the nonfraternity students, Chancellor Burnett declared, "With the nonfraternity students, it is different. We have to get hold of them individually, in the most, and we are not able to get at them in as direct a way as with the fraternity students. Of course, after the dormitories are installed on this campus we will be able to handle the affairs of the nonfraternity students just as easily as those of the fraternity students."

Y. M. C. A. PROPOSES SEPARATE CABINET

Agricultural Group Wants Separate Staff for Their Campus.

Plans for the formation of a separate student Y. M. C. A. cabinet at the agricultural college will be made tonight when a small group will meet at the agricultural college cafeteria at 5:30 o'clock. The meeting has been called by Ted Menke, who is in charge of Y. M. C. A. at the college. He said that the formation of a cabinet on the agricultural campus was planned in order to stimulate more interest in the work. He also said that he felt that a separate cabinet would be better able to care for the projects of the organization at the college.
