ORCHESIS AT BEAUX ARTS BALL.

Five members of Orchesis, dancing organization, who presented a tableaux of the classic period at the Beaux Arts ball held in Morrill hall Wednesday evening.

already expressed itself unambiguously in favor of the change. Its president, Ralph Raikes, is giving wholehearted support to the measure, as shown by the following statement:

"The plan is fair, because it gives representation to all of the groups in accordance to their relative strength and interest in university affairs as displayed in past elections."

Asked why the council was willing to see its structure altered, Raikes stated that the main reason was his realization that there have been political parties existing but have never been officially sanctioned or allowed to exist.

"With this new system the parties will be recognized as such and the council will be generally a more representative group of the student body of the University of Nebraska. And then it will be better able to command respect and power in the minds of the faculty."

The dean of women and the dean of student affairs are both willing to see the plan given a trial. They are not sure of what the outcome will be but think that the best way to test the merits of the plan is to let it be in operation for a short while at least.

Miss Heppner Sees Danger. "The only danger I can see," says Miss Heppner, dean of women, "is that the plan might have a tendency for women students to organize into political parties, not only locally but nationally as well, as is the case in several other large universities and colleges."

"Of course, women have participated in the polls here all along and have probably lined up with either of the fraternity factions or the bars, but it seems to me that if they wish to get any place under the new system they will have to form groups or cliques of their own."

Thompson is in Favor. When questioned as to his reaction to the Fellman proposal, Dr. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, asserted:

"I am not expert enough in such matters to make a definite statement. However, I should like to see the plan given a trial on the Nebraska campus."

Dr. J. P. Senning, chairman of the department of political science, is skeptical of the feasibility of the plan. He says it has never been tried before in the United States but has been attempted in foreign countries, where it has failed to be retained.

The political science head sees too many loopholes in the Fellman plan. His objections, as outlined to the faculty subcommittee during its conference with him, are as follows:

"1. It is inconsistent to have group and college representation at the same time. Only one or the other, singularly, is practical.

"2. The amendment does not specify whether the voter shall cast a single vote for all candidates or for candidates individually.

"3. No provision is made for the method of counting the votes.

"4. Opportunities are offered for groups to consolidate their interests to such a degree that they can control the power in the council as they have in the past."

Titans are not related to the Russians, nor are they merely red-heads, nor carrot tops, nor vermilion-hatches. They are persons, preferably intelligent, who have a touch—just a discreet and alluring tinge of sun red in their hair.

Harvard's varsity football team played a total attendance of 410,189 persons during the 1929 season.
