Neutrals Urged to Organize for Competition in Intramural Sports

Do you think neutrals should organize in order to compete in intramural athletics? In the words of Theodore Olsen

30, vice president of the Men's senate, member of the senior executive committee, and a neutral: I believe that neutrals should seganize to compete in intramural athletics. Such organization would not only bring out the potential athletic ability or many neutrals, thereby stimulating greater competition for positions on varsity posits, but would bind more close ly together the present unorganzed neutral group.

'I think it a very excellent plan. It will make for better co-operation and understanding between fraternity men and neutrals. This will ald in doing away with prejdiese and bass, which undoubtedly gains at present," in the opinion of eterfraternity Bowling league with Trying Constantine, 31, a member in average of .700. If they should be organized into competitive athletic groups, it would be a big step loward selowship between fraternity and the First Practice Battle Held of the catcher's mitt. Grace drove non-fraternity men.

Most decidedly yes. The crux of the problem is in organization. At present there seems, to be no attractive stimulus to cause so in choate a body to organize. This question has been informally discursed with various prominent fraternity men who are of the opinlos that because the neutral can shoute a bady to organize. he is given an untair advantage over the fraternity man, I do not think that is so. The number of neutral attitutes is relatively few. Intramural athletics between the fraternity and neutral groups will do much to obviate the unconscious harriers that now exist," according to Emanuel Rosenblat, a Lou (Tuppy) Hayman, 31, the defeated candidate for the office of student senator, water, polo and
