

FACTIONS SPLIT STUDENT VOTE

Coed Vote Goes for 12:30 Night Rule

COUNT OF 427-13 BACKS PROPOSAL

Referendum in Tuesday's Election Follows Agitation Begun by The Daily Nebraskan and Student Council for More Convenient Hour.

MATTER STILL OFFICIALLY UNSETTLED AS YET

A. W. S. Board Is to Have Final Authority, Following Decision of Faculty Committee to Let Body Take Full Responsibility in Affair.

Nebraska coeds don't want to be escorted home by their dates until 12:30 a. m.

At least that's what 427 women voters signified at the Tuesday election when the referendum passed by the Student Council at its Monday meeting was voted upon.

Here is what the referendum said:

"Do you favor the extension of the coed time limit on week end nights from 12:15 a. m. to 12:30 a. m. 'yes' and 'no' with the regulation squares behind them were also included on the ballots.

The vote taken Tuesday was the culmination of an extended effort on the part of the Student Council and numerous men and women students to have the time to get 'dates' in at their sorority and rooming houses at a later hour than the long standing 12:15 rule.

But the matter isn't entirely settled yet. The final o. k. has to come from the Associated Women Students board, as decreed by the faculty committee on student affairs at a meeting early this week.

Whether the women's board will ratify the decision of the student voters is not known although it is intended that sanction of the new ruling will be made.

However, the women will decide the matter for themselves regardless of what was done Tuesday. This is what is shown by statement made by Esther Gaylord, president of the board, after the results had been announced.

"The referendum on 12:30 nights taken at the polls will be in no way binding," she declared. "The board still reserves the right to make its own decision."

A questionnaire sent to every house obtaining the opinions of the women in this way will be considered equally or to even a greater degree than the referendum, according to Miss Gaylord.

The referendum lost part of its value, she thinks, through the fact that not only women voted on the questions, but men also voted on the questions.

"The returns of the referendum, I feel, are not as representative as the questionnaire," she stated.

That there will be no faculty interference in what the women decide was promised by Dean of Women Amanda Heppner, prior to the election. She stated that with the placing of responsibility with the Associated Women Students board, the overseeing of the action of the women will be acceptable to the latter.

The reason that the Associated Women Student board was given the responsibility was because the matter was of such nature as to come under the jurisdiction of the board following its revised constitution.

A petition was forwarded to the faculty committee by the Associated Women Students board and the faculty acted upon this. The new ruling will come under the house rules, which are to be revised with the change of constitution.

Acting upon the suggestion of T. L. Steiger of the botany department of the university, the council of Lincoln unanimously agreed that a portion of the prairie land at Pioneers park should be kept to serve as a memorial to pioneers.

There have been several criticisms of what some have termed overplanting and the city council found Mr. Steiger's suggestion very helpful.

Someone who visit the park believe that the trees are planted too thickly. This situation, according to Parks Commissioner Blair, will correct itself. Some trees may die and if they do develop too completely they can be thinned easily.

Seventeen state universities were represented in the Dakota meeting and many topics were discussed which will prove beneficial to all state universities if adopted by them, according to Dr. Candy.

Dr. Candy gave a report of the meeting of the college of arts and science deans held in Vermillion, S. D., May 1 to 2, at the arts and science faculty members' dinner held at the University club last night.

SCHOONER STORIES PRINTED BY O'BRIEN

International Critic Picks Two of Twenty Chosen From Nebraska.

ALL NATIONS COMPETE

Prof. L. C. Wimberly, editor of the Prairie Schooner, is in receipt of a letter from Edward J. O'Brien asking permission to reprint "Along a Sandy Road" by Ellen Bishop, which appeared in the winter, 1930, number of the Schooner, and "The Voice of the Turtle" by E. S. Draper, which was printed in the summer, 1929, edition.

The above two stories, with La Selle Gilman's "The Return" which also was printed in the summer, 1929, number, have been given a three star rating by O'Brien. However, only twenty short stories are printed in his "Best Short Stories for 1930" so the choice was centered on the two by Miss Bishop and Mr. Draper.

With two out of twenty stories chosen, it means that 10 percent of the best literature of the world was chosen from the Prairie Schooner, for Edward J. O'Brien is an international critic. O'Brien also publishes yearly a volume of best British short stories.

Now in Switzerland. Mr. O'Brien is now sojourning at Villa Pauliska, Murallo-Locarno, Switzerland, where he is making his permanent home.

The Prairie Schooner publishes short stories and is placed in competition with The American Mercury, Atlantic Monthly, Harpers and Scribner's magazines. It also prints poems, a number of which have appeared in such magazines as the Literary Digest. Miss Helen Magarac's poem "Legs" was reprinted in Braithwaite's Anthology of Poetry some time ago.

Bookman, Scribner's and Century have placed their recommendations upon the Prairie Schooner, often referring manuscripts sent to them to the Schooner for its inspection.

True Platforms of Yellow Jackets, Blue Shirts, Barbs Are Revealed By Feminine Political Philosopher

BY FRANCES HOLYOKE

A wonderful thing is this election machine! Everybody looks busy. Everybody looks intelligent. Everybody gets chummy. But beware poisoned handshakes and saccharine smiles. They are instituted of the devil and elections—along with other phony institutions.

Blue Shirt faction run by the A. T. O.'s, McClery's and Deltas. Their usual stand is the support (universal, of course) of all five girls candidates running for the same office. We would like to know where they get their unlimited supply of identification cards. They also promise to advocate extended bedtime limits and a new scandal sheet with all modern improvements.

Yellow Jackets Strong. The yellow jackets were so named for their abilities in the general direction of stinging remarks (when they don't clean up). In other words they make many stinging remarks annually. They back sorority drinking rooms, fraternity beer cellars, and Sunday afternoon and evening dances at the Coliseum. They have one hundred percent support of all fraternities beginning with F including the F. S.'s.

Then there is the barb faction better known as Al Williams' party. His slogan is "date me and I'll make you May Queen." His platform provides lots of room for dancing—there's not much on it. However, he believes that there should be more power intrusted to the Student Council, and backs up his statement of policy. He hangs around the polls to be sure that no one pulls a fast one on any of its members. Such girls as failed to vote right were requested to say it with peppermints.

The student referendum is probably the most popular part of the vote—too bad the boys can't vote. Oh, a wonderful thing is this election machine.

BLUE SHIRTS LEAD IN NEW ELECTION

Former Most Powerful Party Now Has But Scant Gain Over Yellow Jackets; Barbs Also Win on New Proportional Representation Plan.

'ONE PLACE PER 125 VOTES' AIDS MINORITIES

Barbs and Yellow Jackets Each Place Two More Than Elected on Ballots Through Initiation of Fellman Idea; Blue Shirts Gain None.

Student affairs at the University of Nebraska will no longer be dominated by any one group or faction, if present alignments are maintained.

Such was the outcome of the annual spring election held in the Temple lobby Tuesday, when one of the most turnouts in student history was registered. More than 2,000 voters appeared at the polls, according to official estimation.

The blue shirts cannot be classed as the "ins" entirely now for some of their power has been usurped by the other faction lists and independents entered in the race Tuesday.

Although it is composed of the majority of fraternities, the blue shirt faction was able to place only eight men in fifteen of the elective positions and the yellow jackets seven.

One of the phenomenal events of the day was the election of two yellow jackets to the coveted positions on the Student Publication board. Heretofore the majority tribe has always prided itself in holding the balance of power in student membership on this board, but now the minorities will have a chance to rule.

Cyril Winkler, Lexington, in the blue shirt to cop a berth on the pub board. He is senior member next year and is a Delta Tau Delta.

The yellow jackets getting on the board are William Comstock, Omaha, a Phi Delta Theta, junior member, and Don Easterday, Lincoln, Phi Gamma Delta, sophomore.

Perhaps a matter of equal significance was that relating to the composition of the new Student Council which will take office next fall.

Because of a revolution in the method of seating members to the governing body that group will be made up of representatives from all factions and independents as well.

First Trial of New Plan. The new plan known as proportional representation ratio was adopted by the Student Council last semester and this is the first time that it has been put into operation.

Naturally the proportional representation scheme helped out the minority groups—the barbs and yellow jackets. Because their quota was elected by popular vote, the blue shirts were given no advantage in the ratio given them by the new plan.

The number of candidates is now twenty-four, including the four holdovers, whereas before the council numbered twenty-one or twenty-two.

Here is how the ratio stands for next year's council: Blue shirts—seven members, all men.

Yellow jackets—five members, all men.

Barbs—three members, two women and one man.

Independents—five members, all women.

Thus the council's personnel will be almost equally divided among the several groups, the barbs holding down the small end with their three.

The yellow jackets were given two additional members through the new system, there being three elected by popular vote. The barbs succeeded only in getting one candidate elected by ballot, the other two coming under the proportional ratio computed on the basis of total number of votes cast.

Independents, running outside of any party group, were not given any consideration in the new scheme.

Wins Highest Vote. Highest number of votes was received by Esther Gaylord, Lincoln, candidate for senior woman member at large of the Student Council. She tallied 1,213 ballots. Miriam Wigggenhorn, Ashland, also
