POSSIBLE DEFICIT OF $400 LOOMS IN LAST YEAR'S CORNHUSKER

Records in Selleck's Office Reveal Salaries and Bills Unpaid.

Surplus Waste Will Be Remedied This Fall, Says Business Head.

Present indications in the student activity books on file at John K. Selleck's office point toward a financial deficit for the 1930 Cornhusker.

Accounts for the last year's Cornhusker are not as yet closed and although a number of copies remain to be sold and there is still some money collectable on advertising accounts there will most likely be a $300 or $400 deficit, according to Mr. Selleck, director of the student activity fund.

The salaries for last year's staff have not yet been paid but there are no other accounts outstanding. The present balance as shown on the books for the Cornhusker, however, is very small, in the neighborhood of a hundred dollars. Although a definite statement will not be made until next fall there will undoubtedly be a deficit in the yearbook finances for 1930.

350 Copies Unsold.

Approximately 350 copies of the 1930 Nebraska annual remain unsold in the basement of U hall. It is probable that a large number of these will have to be disposed of at a sizeable loss.

This waste will be remedied next year, according to Mr. Selleck who says:

"All subscriptions to next year's annual will be sold next fall and only that number will be printed. If we sell only 900 yearbooks, only 900 of them will be published. We will absolutely print no surplus copies as past experience has shown that this inevitably results in an annual loss."

Rearrangement Planned.

According to various reports the business management of the annual will be placed on an entirely new basis next fall. A complete change of plans involving the discard of previous practices is to be effected under the direction of Edwin Edmonds, business manager for the 1931 yearbook.

The Daily Nebraskan made a creditable showing during the first semester last year, showing a net profit of $1,299.29. The reports of its financial status at the end of the second semester are not yet compiled, according to Selleck.

Both publications, the Cornhusker and The Daily Nebraskan, are student managed, but the funds are handled through the office of the business manager of student activities in the coliseum.

NEBRASKA SAVANT CONSULTS LAWYERS ABOUT NEW PATENT

Dr. C. J. Frankforter, member of the chemistry department instructional staff, has gone to Washington, D. C., where he is conferring with his attorneys in regard to his application for a patent on a new method of removing sulphur from petroleum.

The professor recently filed articles of incorporation with the Nebraska secretary of state for a company which he hopes to organize in Omaha. He is expected to be in Washington until the latter part of this month.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS HAVE PRACTICE DAY

The 4-H clubs of the state held a preliminary judging contest last week end at the college of agriculture. About 400 children brought their stock, sewing and home department projects for the judging. The feature of the day was a demonstration of how to make rope, tie knots and splice rope. This was given by Milford Smith and Keith Norton of Weeping Water.

NEW BALL CLUBS MAKE THEIR BOW IN LOCAL SPORTS

A couple of playground baseball teams have sprung into existence within the last two weeks and are to be seen every Tuesday and Thursday evenings on the plot north of teachers college. One aggregation is known as the Ritchie Old Stars and the other as the Jones Wildcats.

The Wildcats took the Old Stars into camp last Tuesday by a 1 point margin of 13 to 12; and the Old Stars more than retaliated Thursday to the tune of 18 to 11.

Jones and Ritchie invite others to get out and join the throng. They are both playing short handed.

FIRST WESTERN FIELD TRIP GETS UNDERWAY

Six Geography Students Accompany Prof to Rockies.

A group of six geography students left Tuesday morning with Prof. L. S. Paine for a field trip through the Rockies.

A new trip is being arranged to leave Aug. 9 with a second group of field students.

"We are planning to take a special bus for the second trip," stated the professor, "but if there are not enough registrations to fill one we shall engage a private car. This itinerary will be the same as the first trip, including Salt Lake City and Yellowstone and Estes parks. The plans and cost are identical in every respect except for the date of departure."

The following were officially registered as members of the first party: Elizabeth Belka, Crete; Carrie Hansen, Hubbard; Margaret Reynish, Leigh; Emma Ferguson and Mrs. Estelle Ferguson LeRoy, York.

INCREASE SEEN IN EXTENSION WORK

June Records Show Addition of 260 to Bureau's Clientele.

An increase of 218 new registrants and the re-instatement of 42 students who have not been pursuing correspondence work during the current year was noted at the close of June, records in the university extension office show.

Between April 1 and July 1, 106 students, who were already actively engaged in correspondence work, registered for more courses, bringing the total number of registrations for the period from April 1 to July 1 to 467, states the bulletin.

The June registration represents a total of 947 college hours and sixty high school hours as compared with 223 college hours and twenty-one high school hours in May.

MILLER & PAINE TRIP POSTPONED

The trip through the Miller & Paine department store, which was to be conducted by the University of Nebraska, Wednesday afternoon, was called off until next summer. The department store was unable to take care of the "student tourists" on that date.

Army Captains Return From Northern Service

Capt. John W. Crissy and Capt. T. A. Baumeister have returned from Fort Lincoln, N. D., where they instructed in the C. M. T. C. camp. Both captains are instructors in military service at the University of Nebraska.

Gish Leaves for Iowa to Plan for Grid Game

Herbert D. Gish, athletic director, is leaving Saturday for the University of Iowa. He plans to make hotel and transportation arrangements for the football game there next season, Nov. 22, and to visit the athletic plant. There will be conferences with the officials there and stopovers at Ames and Des Moines for visits with authorities.

CORNHUSKER SPORTS HEADS VENTURE ON PUBLICITY SCHEME

Selleck Prepares Placards, Tickets for Coming Grid Season.

Two Outside Games, Kansas, Iowa, Attract Many Local Fans.

The weather may not be very appropriate for such thoughts as football, but there is one man on the campus who is constantly thinking and planning for the next grid season.

John K. Selleck, University of Nebraska business manager of athletics, is busy every day making preparations for the football program to be given by the Cornhuskers next fall. He is now in the midst of a big state wide publicity campaign, including the sale of tickets and the printing of posters.

That approximately 10,000 posters will be printed shortly and distributed throughout every town in Nebraska was the estimate made at the business manager's office.

250 Already In.

The placards will contain an airplane view of Memorial stadium filled with rooters during the Missouri-Nebraska game last fall as a background and a backfield man in the foreground, it was indicated.

Although most of the reservations come in during the latter part of August and the first part of September, Selleck says that already 250 orders have been received. Advance reservations made for outside games indicates that a large following will accompany the Huskers to Iowa and Kansas, he said.

The Hawkeye game will take place at Iowa City, Nov. 22, he announced, and the Kansas game is scheduled for Lawrence, Nov. 8.

Price Remains Constant.

Because there will be a large number of fans going with the team to both of these places, the business manager has accordingly made reservations for blocks of seats to constitute the Nebraska section at each of the two schools.

The price for the home season ticket to persons other than those registered in the university is $12. Student tickets will possibly be the same rate as last year, $9 with an extra 50 cents for those desiring seats in the cheering section.

The rates for the Nebraska-Kansas and Nebraska-Iowa games will be $3, the business manager stated.

ALUMNI SECRETARY AGAIN TAKES HIS GOOD WILL PLANE

Ray E. Ramsey, secretary of the Nebraska alumni association, left Wednesday on a second good will tour. This time his itinerary includes Albion, Tilden, Pierce, Norfolk, Wisner and Sioux City.

The officer went by plane, acting as his own pilot as before. He expects to return to Lincoln this afternoon.

Final Social Event for Summer Slated for Friday, Aug. 1

The third and final summer student mixer will be held next Friday night, Aug. 1, in the Armory, according to a recent announcement by Prof. E. W. Lantz of the faculty committee in charge.

"We hope to make this the biggest and best mixer of the year," says Professor Lantz, "and unless unforeseen complications turn up it will be held next Friday night."

Big things are being planned for the final student gathering, and they hope for a larger attendance than ever. There may be one or two surprises in store for those who attend this final student fete, according to reports.

TIRED, BEDRAGGLED R. O. T. C. STUDENTS TO TREK HOME SOON

Eighty-three University of Nebraska advance military students will return to their respective homes Sunday, July 27, when the R. O. T. C. camp at Fort Crook closes, ending their six weeks session.

Working with detachments from South Dakota, Creighton, and Iowa, the Nebraska drill students received military instruction from Lieut. Col. F. F. Jewett, commandant of the Nebraska R. O. T. C. unit, who was in charge of the summer camp.

Capt. Jack Spoerry and Capt. R. G. Lehman, who assisted Colonel Jewett, will return with him to Lincoln immediately.

SUMMER INSTITUTE TO BEGIN HERE MONDAY

Washington Educator Will Hold Classes for State Workers.

Prof. Frank J. Bruno, Washington university sociology expert and president of the American Association of Social Workers, will arrive in Lincoln Sunday night to take charge of the summer institute for Social Workers which begins Monday morning.

Twenty-seven registrations are now on file for the institute and three more will fill the allotted quota of thirty which is the limit on the size of the class.

The program of the institute is marked by morning class sessions, afternoon excursions to various surrounding welfare institutions, and evening conferences in the form of a forum discussion of social problems.

AG ENGINEERS WORK OUT WATER PROBLEM

New Bulletin Gives Data on Modern Systems for Farm Homes.

The University of Nebraska college of agriculture is ending out a new bulletin entitled "Water Supply and Sewage Disposal Systems for Farm Houses." This bulletin was compiled by Ivan D. Wood and E. B. Lewis of the department of agricultural engineering.

It describes first the simplest type of water system—an indoor pump, where waste water must be carried out. It goes through more complicated systems, until it reaches the very highest one. This one not only provides running water, hot and cold, but also an automatic water softener.

Elton Lux of the extension department predicts that this will be one of the most popular bulletins of the year. He says that farm women desire good water connections in their homes before they have any other conveniences.

CAMPUS DIGNITARIES FEEL NEED FOR MORE SUMMER ACTIVITIES

Ideas of McCleery, Kelly And Williams Coincide on Student Council.

Danger of Lack of Interest Is Seen Due to Absence Of Spirit.

That the University of Nebraska needs some sort of activities during the summer sessions to maintain the interests of students is the joint opinion of three seniors, who will assume the most responsible positions on the campus next fall.

They are Bill T. McCleery, president of the Innocents and editor of The Daily Nebraskan, who is at present on the staff of the Hastings Tribune; Robert Kelly, president of the student council and managing editor of The Daily Nebraskan, who is with the Nebraska City News-Press this summer, and Alan G. Williams, president of the bar council and member of the student council.

All would like to see something in the way of student government started for summer school students, but like so many others are skeptical of the actual workings of the group.

McCleery Favors

"If summer school students look upon the University of Nebraska as a living institution—and not a dormant academy—then there may be some hope for student government during summer sessions," begins a letter to the editor of The Nebraskan from McCleery.

Continuing his discussion on the matter, next semester's editor of the student newspaper said:

"My knowledge of conditions at summer school is embarrassingly limited. The one great obstacle in the way of student government development during the summer session, as I see it, is this:

"Most summer students are on the Nebraska campus to get some special courses, or to fill in requirements. Many are students of other colleges or universities, to whom they owe allegiance and support. They, under such circumstances, would fail to grasp the spirit of the thing—which is essential to the success of student government."

"Are there not large numbers of summer school students who have taught for several years and are taking work at Nebraska at the request of their schools? Would such students care a rap about extra-curricular affairs?"

"Is there a spirit of unity, a cognizance of common interests among summer school students? I rather doubt it."

"Student government," as I have always maintained, must be a natural outcropping of spirit. The type of government that is set up without this foundation of spirit and loyalty results in graft, corruption and other malpractices. Do summer school students have this spirit?"

"Important," Says Kelly

"My opinion on the matter is not valuable for the reason that I have never attended summer school and am not acquainted with conditions during that term. Anything I can say will be based upon my experience in the regular winter term," writes Bob Kelly.

"Editors of the summer edition of The Nebraskan are to be commended for their efforts to promote extra-curricular activities. Such activities, it seems to me, are an important and necessary part of that thing we call 'college life.'"

"Student government is a natural outgrowth and result of student activities. I can see no obstacle to having a separate student council, or student senate, as you may wish to call it, for the summer session."

"You will encounter the same difficulties that we do in the winter term in all probabilities. The greatest of these is the apathy and indifference upon the part of many."
