SCARLET AND CREAM TOSSERS WILL FACE EIGHTEEN ENEMIES

Attractive Hoop Program Awaits Team for Next Season.

Two Contests Tentative; One to Be Dropped Says Gish.

When members of the 1930-31 basketball squad return to the University of Nebraska this fall they will have one of the best seasons to look forward to—as far as the caliber of the respective opposing teams is concerned.

That they will have more than their hands full when the season opens next Dec. 13 is indicated by the announcement made this week by Athletic Director H. D. Gish, who already has nineteen squads on the string.

There will be only eighteen games played, however, since the conference rules stipulate that no team can play more than that number.

Fortunately, two of the games on the card remain as tentative, the one scheduled for Jan. 24 with Washington university, St. Louis at Lincoln, and the one slated for Feb. 17 with Drake university at Des Moines. Either of the two will have to be dropped off the schedule permanently, according to Gish, before the Big Six officials will give their stamp of approval.

The feature of the new season's contests is a three series to be played by the Cornhuskers at the University of Washington, Seattle, Dec. 27, 28 and 29. A three-year contract was signed this week by both Washington and Nebraska officials and the Scarlet and Cream tossers will for the first time invade the Pacific coast region.

While it will be the first time for Cornhusker cagers to go to Washington, the two schools have met before on the gridiron. In 1925 the Huskies came here to hold the Huskers to a 6-6 tie and the following year, Nebraska lost a 10-6 breath taker to the Washington gridsters on their own field.

Commenting on the new schedule, Gregg McBride, local sports writer, declares it to be a tribute to the progress made by Nebraska in the court sport and also the increased interest manifest on the part of the home fans.

"Growth of basketball interest on the Nebraska campus," states McBride, "has been marked ever since the construction of the new coliseum. Although the building has never been completely packed for basketball, the pace with which basketball crowds have been growing forecast that in a few seasons the athletic department may be forced to put out the S. R. O. sign at important games."

Six lettermen will be back this year. They are Don Maclay, center; Morris Fisher and Seldon Davey, Lincoln, forwards; Cliff Jensen, Omaha, guard, and Steve Hokuif, Crete, guard.

The schedule as it stands today:

- Dec. 13—University of South Dakota at Vermillion.
- Dec. 19—Pittsburgh University at Lincoln.
- Dec. 27—University of Washington at Seattle (three-day series).
- Jan. 5—Brigham Young university at Lincoln.
- Jan. 10—Missouri university at Lincoln.
- Jan. 17—University of Oklahoma at Norman.
- Jan. 18—University of Kansas at Lawrence.
- Jan. 24—Washington university, St. Louis at Lincoln (tentative).
- Jan. 31—Iowa State college at Lincoln.
- Feb. 2—Butler university at Lincoln.
- Feb. 7—University of Missouri at Columbia.
- Feb. 9—Kansas Aggies at Manhattan.
- Feb. 14—University of Kansas at Lincoln.
- Feb. 16—Iowa State college at Ames.
- Feb. 17—Drake university at Des Moines (tentative).
- Feb. 24—Kansas Aggies at Lincoln.

FRIDAY STUDENT PARTY WILL CLIMAX PROGRAM

Extensive Social Schedule Given by Faculty to Close.

The possibility that an all student mixer will be held next Friday evening at Grant Memorial hall is no longer a possibility. It is a certainty according to the faculty committee in charge of the arrangements.

Plans are now complete, including the hiring of an orchestra, the making up of an extensive program of games, features and other form of entertainment; in fact, everything that a tired university student would want to amuse himself or herself to the best advantage.

Ludlam and his Music Makers will furnish the orchestral strains while Frances Ash and her well known entertainment committee will have their part of the program well supplied with things to do. The stunts and games will start at 8:30 p. m. and will continue until 9:30 when the last number on the program—the dance—will begin.

The Friday evening party will culminate the plans of the summer session faculty for entertainment for their students. It will be the third and last mixer and in all probabilities will be the peak of them all.

At the last mixer held in the hall more than 400 were present. Since then the all summer school student picnic was sponsored by the faculty and that was attended by more than 700.

The usual admission price, 10 cents per person, will be charged Friday evening.

LANTZ RUNS INTO SNAG ON STUDENT COUNCIL PROJECT

Director of Summer Term Gives Disapproval to Idea.

An Appeal Is Made to Vacation Attendants for Opinions.

The matter of student government in the summer is still in the air.

Prof. E. W. Lantz, faculty adviser for the regular term student council, wants one for the summer as well as the winter. The director of the summer session, Prof. R. D. Moritz, however, doesn't see things that way.

"I yet maintain that there is a place for a summer student council," Lantz declares. "Since Mr. Moritz has given his disapproval to the idea I will not attempt to push the matter any further this summer. But that will not stop us from striving for it next fall when the regular council takes up its duties."

Mr. Lantz had intended to prepare a questionnaire to send out to all summer school students whereby some information could be obtained concerning a student council for vacation students. Due to the refusal of Director Moritz to sanction the idea, Professor Lantz has revised his questionnaire to read as follows:

"What should we do for your social and recreational enjoyment during the summer session?"

"What activities should we sponsor?"

"How often should each of these activities be encouraged?"

"What time of day and week should each of the activities be staged?"

It is the desire of the professor that as many students as possible mail or leave their answers to these questions at one of these places: Office of the director of (Continued on Page 4.)

Registrar Knows Students Ability; Can't Fool Her!

Everything but the students birth and death certificates—that's what the registrar's office at the University of Nebraska keeps in its records.

Requiring the largest staff—fourteen members in all—in the administrative offices of the university, the office of Miss Florence McGahey, registrar, handles all the details of the record from the time each student enters the institution as a freshman until he graduates or withdraws.

All reports regarding each student are kept on file in the office vaults, which contain the scholastic record of every graduate of the University of Nebraska since it was opened in 1871.

The office further keeps count of all students by class and college, numbers of men and women, certain religious data, occupation of father, residence by county, state and country, and other essential statistical material.

Registration of each student necessitates evaluation of his entrance credits from other schools, assisting him to register for his necessary classes, recording his courses, and later recording his grades in the official records.

Considerable checking and verification is necessary as students draw near the end of their college courses, to see that they have fulfilled all the requirements for the degree or certificate which they wish to secure.

In connection with her work as registrar Miss McGahey acts as the university publisher of the various official catalogs telling of the work of the various colleges and activities, and of all the official bulletins of information concerning the university.

She is also secretary to the faculty of each college and of the administrative council, made up of the deans. She is directly responsible to the chancellor.

HUSKER GEOLOGISTS BEGIN WATER PROBE

Federal Men Co-Operate in Seeking Sources Near Platte.

The University of Nebraska conservation and survey division, in co-operation with the United States geological survey, is soon to begin work on the underground water sources of the Platte valley, it was indicated by Dr. George E. Condra, director of the Nebraska survey.

L. K. Wenzel, hydrologist, for the United States geological survey, has arrived in Lincoln and will act as official representative of the government, joining with the water resource survey of the local conservation and survey division in a detailed investigation of the ground water resources.

He will engage in the co-operative work as soon as assistants can be secured for him from among graduates from the University of Nebraska, it was said. A party of surveyors will be sent out to the Platte valley in the vicinity of Lexington where a study of the depth of water table, the direction and rate of underflow of the valley will be made.

All the necessary appliances will be given the workers who will carry on their investigation along with the study which is being made by Dr. A. L. Lugin, assistant professor of geology at the University of Nebraska, for the federal war department.

O. E. Meinzer, geologist in charge of the division of ground water, is expected to arrive in Lincoln August 5, Condra announced. (Continued on Page 4.)

WEEK END TRAGEDIES CLAIM LIVES OF TWO UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

Elmer Skov, Well Known on Campus, Victim of Auto Crash.

Boat Accident Is Fatal to James C. Parker, Sophomore.

Two University of Nebraska students were killed and another injured in accidents happening over the week end.

The dead:
Elmer Marion Skov, Riverdale, victim of an automobile accident near Ashland, early Monday morning.

James C. Parker, O'Neill, who was drowned in Pioneers park, Lincoln, after his boat capsized, last Saturday night.

The injured:
Neal S. Gomon, Norfolk, riding with Skov enroute from Omaha to Lincoln.

According to reports, Skov and Gomon were returning to Lincoln from Omaha late Sunday night, the former driving while the latter was asleep. The boys are said to have crashed head-on into the truck near Ashland, the exact details unknown.

Both were rushed to Ashland, Skov dying soon after. Gomon was able to notify Lincoln friends of their tragedy, whereupon J. C. Skov, father of Elmer, was notified. The father is now in Lincoln.

The other accident occurred Saturday night at Pioneers park, Lincoln, when a boat occupied by nine persons, overturned following a leakage in the prow. All were forced into the water, but three were unable to swim ashore, one of whom was James C. Parker.

Elmer Marion Skov, the only son of J. C. Skov, Riverdale, Neb., was born in Chicago, on March 24, 1910. He graduated from Riverdale high school in 1926 and attended Kearney state teachers college for two years. In September, 1928, he matriculated in the University of Nebraska and would have graduated at the close of summer school, Aug. 7.

Although eligible for graduation at the June commencement, Elmer withheld his application for degree until this summer in order to be able to be elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary fraternity. He lacked but one hour in June to be eligible for the honorary and therefore enrolled in extension work.

That the deceased had one of the highest scholastic averages in the university is revealed in records in the registrar's office. His general average was well above 90 percent, enabling him to win a Sigma Delta Chi scholarship key last spring.

Elmer was not affiliated with any fraternity other than Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic professional. He was a member of the varsity basketball squad last season and served as sports editor on The Daily Nebraskan during the second semester. At present he was employed as desk man on the Lincoln Star.

Funeral will be held Wednesday, at Riverdale.

Parker is survived by his parents, James C. and Mrs. Luella A. Parker, O'Neill; two sisters, Mrs. Homer Ernst, O'Neill; Mrs. Orville Kemper, Page. His mother is a county superintendent of schools.

Parker was born and reared in Lincoln and attended the university last year and part of the previous term. He had been working this summer at Omaha for the Northwestern Bell Telephone company. The last several weeks he had been attending a school of instruction there and came to Lincoln to spend the week end. The body was taken to O'Neill at 7:30 a. m. Monday for funeral services and burial.
