

CROWE DEVISES NEW ICE CREAM TESTER

Ag Professor Says Method to Be Saving for Producer.

No ice cream testers needed from now on.

The latest in ice cream testing is a simple, inexpensive device for testing butterfat in ice cream, which has been perfected by L. K. Crowe, of the Nebraska college of agriculture.

Crowe's new invention is built on the plan of the Babcock cream tester, using two acid "re-agents" in a simple process.

The new tester is going to interest ice cream manufacturers, who previously, in compliance with the law requiring a certain percentage of butterfat in the popular confection, have been using the "majonnier," an expensive machine.

LANTZ RUNS INTO SNAG ON STUDENT COUNCIL PROJECT

the summer session; The Nebraskan office; or Mr. Lantz's office.

Just what objections Mr. Moritz has to offer on the proposal are not known. Associate Professor Gayle C. Walker, director of the school of journalism, however, thinks the plan impracticable.

"I can't see how the thing could work, especially if the group were to be elected. Of course, there is a possibility if the so called council or committee of students were appointed rather than elected," the journalism head remarked.

The fact that so few summer school students know each other in proportion to the associations of the regular termers is the foundation for Mr. Walker's objection.

HUSKER GEOLOGISTS BEGIN WATER PROBE

He and the Nebraska geologists are to make a three day trip through the Platte valley to outline fully the nature of the investigation to be made. They are to be accompanied by Lieutenant Young and J. J. Doland of the federal war department.

According to Condra, all the studies are to be closely correlated with the activity of the state bureau of irrigation which is under the direction of R. H. Willis.

STUDENT PULSE

HOW ABOUT THE PRICE?

To the Editors of The Nebraskan: I was over on the university campus on business this morning and happened to see a copy of the July 25 issue of The Nebraskan in which I note a deficit in the 1930 Cornhusker year book accounts, that U hall basement is storing about 350 unsold copies and several jibes at Cornhusker spirit.

Now, see here, gentlemen, if you have a deficit and a stock of that size on hand something must be wrong (surprising conclusion) for it certainly is strange that among a group of 7,000 persons who attend the regular term of school here, not even 2,000 copies of the Cornhusker can be disposed of.

But did it ever occur to anyone that the price of the book is too much for the student body that does not buy? Did anyone ever hear the students objecting to the cost of the photography, engravings, etc., that go into the book? Some of these whispers have blown past my ears down here around O street but they may never have gotten over to the campus.

I have heard it asked if it would not be better to publish a book at a low cost that 4-5 of the student body could afford, than one which less than 1-3 can afford. But would it?

It has been suggested that such a book might arouse some of that old fashioned college spirit of which the lack is so sadly deplored in your issue of July 25.

Well, well, never mind, you young fellows have a lot of problems to solve in the next fifty years, some of the economic ones quite a bit bigger than this one, but here is betting on you, even if you do have to learn that for the public to "come a running" you sure do have to give them a full dollar's worth for their money.

Here's to you, from an old party down on O street who sometimes has a hard time solving these problems himself.

Yours truthfully,
OLD FOGEY.
