DENVER FROSH TO WEAR GREEN CAPS

Resolution for Abolishing Headgear Killed With Large Vote.

DENVER UNIVERSITY.—After an exchange of certain heated remarks concerning "personal ambition," the resolution to abolish the wearing of freshman caps introduced by Ben M. Blumberg last week was killed by an overwhelming vote in senior class meeting last week.

Action was taken, however, to request the Student commission to investigate the situation after the period for wearing freshmen insignia had expired.

Immediately after the defeat of the "Blumberg" resolution Dan Williams moved that the Student commission be asked to conduct an investigation through the D club, first, into the freshman attitude toward such insignia, and second, into the plan introduced this year by the Women's Student council to promote freshman cooperation.

Motion Adopted.

This motion was adopted practically without a dissenting vote, winning the support of the members of the D club present at the meeting.

Previous to the vote on the original resolution, Blumberg defended his idea with the suggestion that if freshmen wanted to wear caps, they should be required to wear them.

Some amount of fireworks ensued when Blumberg called for an investigation of the proceeds of the sale of freshman caps. He desired to know from where the money came, where the profits went, and the rest of the facts, and suggested that the Campus Student commission investigate this side of the question.

This called forth a reply from Ellison Ketchum, president of the D club. He refuted all charges of "corruption," stating that the D club had handled the sales of caps, and that they had retained the 25 cents profit on each cap as was the custom in other schools.

Applied to Deficit.

This profit was to be applied in paying off the D club deficit, Ketchum stated.

In closing, Ketchum charged Blumberg of an interest not so much in the school as in himself when drafting the resolution.

It was at this time that Dan Williams presented his idea on freshmen caps. He praised Blumberg as being "absolutely sincere," but suggested changes to the original motion.

He set forth that most freshmen like to wear and like to be forced to wear insignia proper to their class.

From the size of the vote against the original resolution, it was evident to observers that the time is not ripe to eliminate green dinkies from the campus of the University of Denver.

Nebraska People Civilized.

When asked if he liked Nebraska, he replied, "Oh, Nebraska people are civilized, they are hospitable and friendly to a degree no longer known in the east. I tipped a man shortly after I arrived from the east and I thought he would faint." Mr. Cunningham likes Lincoln, also. He says that he and Mrs. Cunningham have been made to feel perfectly at home here.

"I have always liked the teaching profession," he said, "but my interest has been more particularly in boys and young men. I believe in individuality, and the department of architecture proposes to turn out individuals in the future and not standardized packages. All standard packages will be tossed out the window. I propose to deal with each man as an individual instead of trying to teach all the members of the group to do all things the same way."

"I propose," he said, "to try to show men how to make beautiful things and to help them to be happy in so doing."

Father Was a Journalist.

Mr. Cunningham's father was a journalist. He has been the secretary of the Gridiron club, an organization of famous journalists in Washington, D. C., for the past twenty-five years. A cousin of Mr. Cunningham's was the first secretary of the group.

Mr. Cunningham was asked if he had been in the war. "Oh, yes," he said, "I'm in a war now. I drill a group of cadets for three hours every Monday morning to have a little peace." He was a major in the machine gun section of the United States army during the great war. He says, "I have been a major the longest of any man in the army. I was a major in 1918 and am still a major. The

Cunningham, New Head of Department Of Architecture, Has the Distinction of Being a Professor Without a Degree

BY ART WOLF.

A college professor without a degree! That is the distinction held by Harry Cunningham, the new head of the department of architecture of the University a degree in any of them," he says.

Before coming to Nebraska, Mr. Cunningham was a practicing architect in New York City, Paris and Washington, D. C., being actively connected with the Goodhue corporation.

Attracted by Capitol.

"I came here to be near the Nebraska capitol, because I truly believe it to be the greatest thing I will ever have any connection with," he declared. The plans for the tower were drawn by Mr. Cunningham. Mr. Goodhue left only a preliminary sketch of that part of the building and Mr. Cunningham carried on the work from that point.

"The Nebraska state capitol is one of the most beautiful buildings of all times, its proportions are perfect," he said. "The one thing needed now to properly frame the structure is more room, a block more on each side for landscaping," he added.

Mr. Cunningham is probably the only professor of architecture in the world who practiced architecture all of his life before entering the teaching field. His opinions are all worth while for his attitude toward the fine arts is attracting many university instructors who sit in his history of architecture class. One day last week Dr. C. H. Patterson, Dr. E. L. Hinman, Prof. Orin Stepanek, John Rosborough, Mrs. F. M. Fling, Mrs. R. G. Clapp and Mrs. Dean Leland were among others noted in the class.

After the war Mr. Cunningham entered the French army reserve. He had a rank there which was comparable to the rank of major in the United States army. During the reconstruction of the devastated areas in the shell torn parts of France, Mr. Cunningham was actively associated with that work. He was given a district in which to work which was one of the most seriously devastated of any in France. The wreckage was so complete that the streets could not be seen and property could not be allocated.

A friend of Mr. Cunningham's, a French aviator, had air photos of the region from which Cunningham was able to re-establish his maps of the area. From these he was able to allocate all the property for settlements and the continuation of the work. He stated that it was very difficult to encourage the French peasants to see the advantages of sanitation. They wanted everything exactly as it had been before the war and in centuries before.

HALF BILLION DOLLARS SPENT FOR EDUCATION

U. S. Office of Education Tabulates Money Spent By Students.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—During the college year 1927-28, a half billion dollars flowed into the tills of colleges and universities in the United States according to reports of 1,071 institutions reported to the United States office of education.

One-fourth of this came from the tuition and fees of undergraduates and graduate students; 23 per cent appropriated by city and state governments; 13 per cent given by private benefactions; 12 per cent from endowment incomes; 10 per cent from board and room, and 12 per cent was obtained from other sources. Three and four-tenths was contributed by the United States government.

ALUMNI QUESTIONNAIRE RESULTS ARE NOT GOOD

Grads Do Not Prefer to Divulge Knowledge Retained.

BERKELEY, Calif.—(IP)—When the University of California decided to find out how much important information they learned as students is still retained in the minds of its alumni, the results were not so good.

Most of the alumni, in fact, don't even want to recall having seen the questionnaire, which went as follows:

1. What state was formerly known as Desert?
2. What is the oldest university in North America?
3. When did the Holy Roman Empire go out of existence?
4. What famous American revolutionary leader later served in the Russian navy?
5. From what are the plains of Abraham famous?
6. Approximately when did Buddha live?
7. Who said, "They shall not crucify labor on this cross of gold?"
8. Who were the Boxers?
9. Who were the Shoguns?
10. Who is known as the father of history?
11. What was the Jacquerie?
12. What was the Hundred days?
13. In what war did the Charge of the Light Brigade take place?
14. What are the ABC powers?

THE CRIMSON-STAIN MYSTERY

Black and bloody tales of weird brutality emerged from the Campus Laundry. Shirt fronts and collars were continuously found spotted with gobs of gore. Police believed that the undergrads were careless with their raspberry jam. Imagine their consternation, when it developed that students dislike raspberries! Then suddenly, the stains ceased. Swank had come to town! Swank looks like a pin, but isn't. Yet it keeps your collar trimly in place. Swank has no points—and that's its big point. You don't tranche your collar, and punch it full of holes. You don't stab your neck and thumb, and make them look as though you had caressed a cactus. No punctures, pains, or pink stains. Jewelers' or men's shops. Plain, fancy and sport designs in various lengths. Gold-filled or solid gold. 30 cents to $10.
