Professor Fullbrook is chairman. Vague rumors have it that the new document has hit several snags. In fact these rumors are not quite as vague as they may sound. There are strong grounds for confidence and these conclusions would indicate several striking changes in the new constitution, particularly in that part of it which defines its powers. Whatever statements may be ventured, one is comparatively safe in saying that the new Student Council law-code will not emerge unchanged.

The Student council committee which has charge of the military drill issue has not yet reported to administrative authorities. Sometime this week, in all probability, this committee, of which Joe Hunt is chairman, will appear before the administration with the statement that they believe men students should be given the choice of either military science or physical education.

When they arrive, however, they will find at least one antagonist awaiting them. This antagonist, which should do quite a little to refute the council's arguments, is a petition which bears the names of eight hundred basic military science students who have indicated their preference for military drill as against compulsory physical education. The probable result of the whole thing is that the council committee will be quietly heard and then the entire matter will be forgotten.

ANTI-FORCED DRILL SPEAKER IN OMAHA

Declares Nebraska Doesn't Have to Make Students Take R.O.T.C. Work

OMAHA.—Charging that heads of land grant colleges and universities have been misled by war department officials into believing that to continue getting government financial aid military education must be compulsory Harry E. Terrell, Des Moines, associate secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, met a group of Nebraskans here to consider means of combatting compulsory training in this state.

Indications that public sentiment is being aroused against compulsory military training in colleges is seen by Mr. Terrell in recent resolutions passed by student groups, church, farm and women's organizations. Wisconsin has abolished it by legislative enactment. A similar bill is pending in the Iowa legislature.

Regret that proponents of such a bill in Nebraska were "talked out of introducing it at the present session" was expressed by Mr. Terrell.

Says Bound by Contract.
"The board of regents of the University of Nebraska is bound only by a contract with the war department," he added. He produced a copy of a contract which gave the university officials the choice between optional and compulsory training.

"The time has passed when any group of students who wish to discuss military training in schools or colleges can be intimidated by military authorities or groups of superpatriots," he said.

Nevertheless, members of the group which met with Mr. Terrell were reluctant about giving their names. Two were from Lincoln.

Talks at Meeting.
Mr. Terrell said that recent action of the Student council at the University of Nebraska in calling for abolition of compulsory training, and resolutions passed by various church groups indicated the sentiment in the state against forced drill.

"When the Farmers' union of Nebraska passed a similar resolution this year, that would seem to show that they feel a farm boy in Nebraska has a right to an education," he added, "without being drafted into the army."

Mr. Terrell came to Omaha to meet his chief, Frederick Libby, Washington, D. C., executive secretary of the national council, who spoke at a closed meeting of the public affairs committee of the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday morning and at a luncheon in the Blackstone sponsored by the peace study group of the Council of Jewish Women.

Bess Steele Has 23 Varieties of Cactus Collected

A collection of twenty-three varieties of cactus is to be found in the studio of Bess Steele, head of the design division of the home economics department. Among some of the most unusual specimens are the Living Rock and Crown of Thorns.

Miss Steele became interested in cactus while she was in Europe last summer. In many countries, and in Germany and Austria especially, she found that cactus collecting was a widespread hobby. The plants are particularly interesting to artists since their amusing, sometimes fantastic shapes carry out the spirit of the modern movement in art.

The first specimen Miss Steele purchased was obtained in Vienna. She then found that she could not bring the plant into this country because of our laws regarding foreign plants. Her interest in cactus was undaunted by this experience, however, and since her return she has built up an interesting collection, as a hobby and as possible material for class work.

Dresses should be the customary wearing apparel of men as well as women, according to a professor at the University of Illinois, who believes that the ordinary coat and trousers are too tight and close fitting for free play of the human body.

LEADER OF SOONER WRESTLERS

CAPTAIN BASS

NORMAN, Okl.—Here is Oliver Bass of Tulsa, captain of the University of Oklahoma wrestling team this season, who has earned two letters and is wrestling this year for his third. He is a heavy-weight, burdening scales to the extent of 220 pounds, and is 22 years old and stands 6 feet 3 inches tall. The Sooners squad is, for the fourth consecutive season, coached by Paul V. Keen, whose Red and White team won the "Big Six" championship last year but has lost its three "Mighty Mites," Marvin Leach, Lawrence Mantooth and Leo Miller, by graduation.

Frosh Basketeers Labor in Obscurity So That Varsity May Lead Conference

BY MERLIN SPENCER.
Numbered among the unsung heroes at the University of Nebraska are the members of the freshman basketball team coached by Coach Harold Browne. Working in the background, scrimmaging the varsity, these men labor in obscurity minus the plaudits of the crowd.

The yearlings play no schedule, but are in a large measure responsible for the success of the conference leading Cornhuskers by virtue of the practice that they give the latter.

The depleted ranks of the varsity after graduation this year will be filled mainly from the members of this freshman squad. A number of high school stars are found in the ranks of first year men. Madison Letts from Central high at St. Joseph, Mo., is looking good at a guard position. Walter Henrich of Wichita, Kas., and a former star for Wichita university is working material this spring and that position will be a hotly contested one next year. Among the most likely men for that position are Wallace Norton, DeWitt, former Doane college star; Rule Rosswick, Grand Island; and Marion Scott, College View.

Squad Members.
The members of the freshman squad are:
Marion Scott, College View.
Harold Lindquist, Holdrege.
Leonard Smith, Lincoln.
Rule Rosswick, Grand Island.
Melvin Paul, West Point.
Wallace Norton, DeWitt.
Frank Mueller, Hampton.
Leonard McManama, Cathedral high, Lincoln.
Charles Galoway, Holdrege.
Bob Elliott, North high, Omaha.
Gerald Barger, Ashland.
George Sauer, Lincoln.
Wayne Norwood, York.
Kurth Nelson, Lincoln.
Ralph Mason, North high, Omaha.
Kenneth Lunney, York.
Glen Jones, Tech high, Omaha.
Arthur Hoag, Wesleyan.
Hubert Boswell, Ravenna.

Elmwood History Class Visits Morrill Museum

Thirteen members of the American history class of Elmwood high school visited the museum in Morrill Hall February 4. The entire morning was spent in examining specimens pertaining to the subject of early American history. Mr. Collins, director of the museum, conducted the tour.

Dean Mandel of Yale university says that the abolition of the old-fashioned beer garden is responsible for the growing taste of college students for hard liquor.
