Miss Sweet Sixteen Risks General Health by Wearing High Heels Is Opinion of Noted Nebraska Teacher

Miss Sweet Sixteen may like her high heeled pumps but she must take her chances on the consequences. For according to Miss Mabel Lee, professor of physical education for women at the University of Nebraska and newly elected president of the American Physical Education association, there is a definite connection between heels and health.

Studies made by Miss Lee of entering students at the University of Nebraska last year showed that but 10.3 percent of the girls were wearing shoes correct for foot health, while 82 percent of them were wearing either questionable shoes or shoes considered absolutely incorrect. The same studies showed that more than 80 percent of these girls had some degree of arch trouble. High heels were the main source of trouble, according to the study, causing backache as well as arch troubles. Of those reporting backaches, 88.8 percent wore high heels. Other foot troubles were caused by ill-fitting shoes and run-down shoes. Flat heeled shoes are considered by Miss Lee as proper foot gear.

Posture Related to Heels. Posture and heels seem to be closely related, according to figures supplied by Miss Lee. She found that 10 percent of the entering women had a good posture, practically the same percentage as wore correct shoes; 44

English Author's Sofa Is Found and Placed in Museum

A mahogany sofa, found a short time ago, brings to Nebraska's museum a memory of the Bronte family. English authors noted for the melancholia.

The finding of the sofa and its history were described by Frederick Collins, curator of the university museum, in his regular weekly radio broadcast Thursday. The sofa originally belonged to Patrick Bronte, pastor-poet of the early nineteenth century. Curator Collins related. Bronte gained his short lived distinction through his fanaticism, but his children, the innocent victims of his vicious whims and fancies used their lives to bring lasting fame to the family.

One daughter, Emily Bronte, wrote the noted story, "Wuthering Heights," and another, Charlotte Bronte, wrote "Jane Eyre," under the pen name Currer Bell. The background for these stories was an isolated monastery. Today this monastery, on the edge of the bleak Yorkshire moorland near Haworth, is a mecca for tourists.

YELLOW JACKETS DEFEND POSITION OF PRESIDENTS

Gomon Answers Charges of Delphian Nash About Class Officers.

VOTING DATE IS FEB. 17

Party Believes Minority Group Should Run Best Men.

Answering Delphian Nash, president of the barb faction who announced that his party would place no candidates up in the coming election because class officers are foolish, Neal S. Gomon, president of the Yellowjackets has issued a defense of class presidencies.

Class heads, Gomon asserts, are not powerless but may be a constructive element as shown by some of the work carried on by two of the presidents last semester. He believes that the Barb party by withdrawing from the race is merely admitting a lack of suitable material to place in the race. Competent presidents are necessary if the office is to be justified and he declares that it is the duty of a faction to select men who measure up to this standard.

Presents Statement

Gomon's official statement as drawn up from the Yellowjacket faction's standpoint, follows: "The Yellow Jacket political party will present candidates for class officers in the coming election and all elections in the future because:

1. Class officers do have a place (Continued on Page 3.)

OPERA PRICE LOWER FOR STUDENT BODY

Selleck Announces Similar Plan to One Used Last Year.

GROUPS TO BUY BLOCKS

A ticket price reduction of 15 percent to University of Nebraska students purchasing tickets to the Chicago Civic Opera company's appearance at the university coliseum, March 17, was announced Saturday by John K. Selleck, business manager in charge of the campus performance organization. The reduction is made to tickets in the 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 dollar sections. Purchases must be made in student groups of 25 or more, the offer being open to any sorority or fraternity and to any group of 25 or more students regardless of affiliation with any campus organization.

To Encourage Students. "The reduction is made to encourage students purchasing the better seats to the opera," Mr. Selleck explained Saturday. The entire block of tickets purchased by the groups need not be in any particular priced section, it being necessary only that the group order total 25 or more tickets.

Last spring nearly every campus group purchased opera tickets on the above plan and took advantage of the reduced rates. While stressing the importance of the opera performance to Nebraska campus activities, Mr. Selleck called attention that already the student activities office has received requests from Nebraska Wesleyan university, Cotner college and Doane college for large blocks of opera tickets.

END NEARS IN FINAL ANNUAL SALES DRIVE

Chancellor and Dean of Men Issue Statements About Yearbook.

Expressing concurring beliefs to the effect that the Cornhusker yearbook is a valuable article for every college student to have especially after graduation, Chancellor E. A. Burnett and Dr. T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, have issued statements which give their opinion of the annual.

The next few days mark the climax of the final Cornhusker sales drive, prior to ordering the spring's supply of yearbooks. Only as many books are to be ordered as are sold and there will be absolutely no books on hand in the spring, according to John K. Selleck, manager of the student activities fund.

Chancellor Issues Statement. Chancellor Burnett's statement, which gives his views of the Cornhusker's worth, follows:

To the Student Body: In response to a request for a statement regarding the value of the annual publication, The Cornhusker, I wish to say that a college yearbook is a record of events and happenings in the lives of students at school. It is an album which preserves the memories of their closest friends and acquaintances at school. As such it is useful and valuable. For it bestows not only a personal benefit but also provides a medium for giving parents and friends at home insight into university life.

The Cornhusker, I believe, performs these services in a competent manner. It should be of particular value to out-going seniors as it is really the last concrete records which many of them will have of their friends and college experiences.

Very sincerely yours, E. A. BURNETT, Chancellor.

Thompson's Statement. Although Dean Thompson believes that students should use their money with discretion and believes they should make personal decisions in monetary affairs he has the following to say concerning the value of a publication such (Continued on Page 2.)

OPPONENTS PLAY BEST GAME OF YEAR TO WIN

Collins and Campbell, Guards, Smother Husker Attack; Carl Huhn, Center, Is High Score Man With Ten Points.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—Nebraska dropped into the ranks of the defeated Saturday night when they received a trouncing at the hands of the Missouri Tigers, 33-20. The defeat broke the six game winning streak of the Cornhuskers.

The standings of the two leaders in the Big Six will not be changed, however, due to the defeat of Kansas at the hands of Oklahoma.

The defeat Saturday night was the first conference loss sustained by the Cornhuskers, Missouri, in downing the leaders, played its best game of the season. Credit for the win must go to the Missouri guards, Collins and Campbell, who held the Huskers to one of the lowest scores of the season.

Missouri Leads at Half. The Tigers jumped into a 6 to 0 lead in the early part of the game, but Nebraska gradually pulled up to within one point, Missouri led 15-9 at the half. When the second half got under way, Nebraska began to look better. Maclay sank two field goals in rapid succession, then Huhn made one. ### Banes Oriente Affords Amusement To Nebraska Agricultural Graduate Working in Cuban Sugar Industry

BY ARTHUR KOZELKA. Banes Oriente, a little village in Cuba surrounding almost 800 people, not Americans, not even white in most cases, was the place Paul Frink, a Nebraska graduate, visited occasionally on a Sunday afternoon to satisfy his longings for amusement. Mr. Frink, upon graduation from the agricultural college in 1927, accepted a position with the United Fruit company as a timekeeper on one of their huge sugar plantations, but he discovered that the sugar business is not as sweet as it may seem and he is back in Nebraska working on his master's degree.

One would be led to believe that life is terribly dull down there in Cuba, but to hear Mr. Frink talk you would readily see that life moves pretty fast, especially when some tantalized Spaniard conveys the idea of placing the pointed edge of a knife in one of your vital organs. The fact that the natives are easily excitable makes diplomacy one of the greatest assets to the individual who intends to work there.

Becomes Overseer. Starting as a timekeeper, Mr. Frink gradually worked himself up to farm overseer in the course of three years. His position consisted of supervising a 2500 acre tract of sugar cane. Because of the intense heat the fields are susceptible to fire and some one must constantly be on the lookout for such outbreaks. For this rea-
