PAUL HARRISON TELLS OF LIFE AMONG ARABS

Nebraska Graduate Speaks of His Experiences in Medical Work.

CROWD PACKS THEATER Primitive Races Challenge Cultured Peoples, Says Author.

A challenge of the primitive races to the cultured races of the world was voiced Tuesday morning, by Dr. Paul Harrison, medical missionary, traveler and author, at a crowded convocation in the Temple theater. Speaking from his experiences of nearly twenty-five years spent in Arabia, Dr. Harrison prophesied that the world in the future will turn to Arabia for its political philosophy, and metaphysics.

Three great challenges are issued to the cultured races by the backward countries, Dr. Harrison declared. The first, and perhaps the least important, is the challenge to a really exciting existence. The second, the challenge of the actual need, and the third and most important, that of their own superior culture. To illustrate these challenges, Dr. Harrison illustrated the conditions in Arabia with a wealth of amusing anecdotes.

Considers First Challenge. Speaking of the first challenge, Dr. Harrison declared the modern luxuries which have deened the sense of originality in the cultured races. "I am simply appalled to see the amount of toil, expense, preoccupation and equipment put into modern buildings, declared Dr. Harrison. "I want to register a protest against the preoccupation of the people. Clutter up people's minds with buildings, furnishings and don't expect much in the way of originality or results."

Dr. Harrison, in a criticism of American hospitals, declared that he believed that too much emphasis was placed upon the buildings and equipment and not enough on the results. "The people in this country don't know as much as

'COME BEFORE GOD' HARRISON PREACHES

Vespers Speaker Tells All To Learn the Art of Making Friends.

"If ye then be risen with Christ seek ye the things that are above where Christ is," quoted Dr. Paul Harrison in his talk at Vespers, Tuesday afternoon, in Ellen Smith Hall at 5 o'clock.

"We need, sometimes, to come before God, and we need to come in the presence of Christ, in order to learn how to cultivate Christ," continued Dr. Harrison. "What are we going to do to cultivate the acquaintance with Christ?"

"Everyone of us is attempting to follow Christ," continued Dr. Harrison. "but if we want to follow Christ in these days, we have to put, pretty well, our whole soul into it."

"There is nothing we need to learn better, than the art of making friends," stressed Dr. Harrison, telling a story of the Arabian who had in his possession, hundreds of thousands of beautiful, lustrous pearls. Dr. Harrison told of the Arabian's handling his pearls with all the respect and love that he would his own child.

MOUNTAIN FOLK WANT 'YOUNGUNS' TO GET 'LARNIN'

People of the Cumberland mountains of Kentucky are very hospitable and have wonderful potentialities, but have been isolated and haven't had a chance, according to Ida M. Ladiges, graduate student, who spoke at the agriculture college Y. W. C. A. vespers meeting Tuesday noon.

The mountain folk want their "younguns" to get all the "larnin" they can and refer to the teachers as the "quarre women fatched down from the level land who have right smart of larnin."

Miss Ladiges taught for four years in the settlement schools of the Cumberland mountains, twenty-one miles from the nearest town, and did social work.

FOUR COUNTY AGENTS TAKE WORK IN STATE

Extension Workers Go Into New Fields; Several Changes Made.

Four Nebraska counties are re-organizing and hiring county extension agents at the present time, officials of the University of Nebraska college of agriculture, reported this week. One county is definitely employing a 4-H club agent, another is adding a woman extension agent, and another county agent vacancy is being filled, making a total of seven additional changes in two weeks time.

Scottsbluff, Holt, Sheridan, and Dodge counties are starting with new county agents this week. J. F. Ross, for several years the county agent of Hamilton and Boone counties, is going to Scottsbluff to continue the county farm bureau and extension service program which stopped temporarily when Phil Sheldon, former agent, resigned last fall.

James Rooney is at work at O'Neill in Holt county where the commissioners have recently appropriated the county funds to handle local expenses. Holt county had a county agent several years ago. Mr. Rooney has been working with 4-H clubs in Antelope and Boone counties for two years.

Bernard Barnes of Loretto is taking Rooney's position in the two counties and will open offices at Albion the first half of each month and at Neligh the remainder of the month. Barnes graduated from the Nebraska college of agriculture last June and has been a 4-H club boy of the counties in which he is now at work.

Huckfeldt Has Job. Elmer Huckfeldt started work in Sheridan county the first of February. He has been Smith Hughes vocational agriculture instructor in Gordon high school for four years, is a graduate of the Nebraska college of agriculture, and was an outstanding 4-H club boy before he came to college. Mr. Huckfeldt's office will be at Rushville. He will work with 4-H clubs, farm demonstration projects, men's meetings, women's project club work, and every other phase of the agricultural college extension program. Sheridan county also had a farm bureau and county agent several years ago.

Mildred McGraw Is New Social Position Worker

Mildred McGraw formerly of Broken Bow and lately associated with the United Charities organization in Chicago, recently was appointed psychiatric social worker in the Cook county hospital in Chicago after taking a civil service examination in which more than 300 other persons competed at the end of the first semester last year.

Second Semester Pledges Warned About Do's, Don'ts of College Life

By Auntie Diluvian. Second semester pledges both of fraternity and sorority are, if possible, even dumber than first semester ones. The first ones were bad enough. There was the Alpha Sigma Phi pledge that hung his pledge button, before he ever got a jeweled one. There was the little Gamma Phi who spent all afternoon in the reference room looking for a book by Ibed. There was the young squab of Delta Tau who thought somebody was getting funny when a fellow called and asked for Rusty Joint, and the Phi Psi who went shopping for a dormitory cover.

But the second semester pledges start out with a handicap. Their predecessors, now worldly wise to all college doings and don'ts after a half year's experience are ready with snares and snaers to entrap them. For their benefit, therefore, some do's and don'ts have been compiled.

Steam Heat! Boys, first of all, don't get into the tub when a sophomore ran the water with that intention. Don't get the idea that the Coed Follies are something for the masculine eye to behold. Above all else, when you are told to call up an upperclassman's girl and give her a message, don't call her by the wrong name, especially if you are a Sig Ep.

Don't Sign! And when you are going to unofficial, unchaperoned parties at out-lying fraternity houses on Sunday nights, don't put down where you are going when you sign out, or you may not get asked again. Don't say you love to answer the door or the other freshmen will believe you, but act as though you did when no other freshmen are around. Don't ever kid anybody but a freshman about the appearance of her room, and by all means buy tickets to University Players and basketball games. That means six less study halls a year.

AWGWAN MAKES NEW START ON CAMPUS TODAY

Humor Publication May Be Purchased at Booths In Buildings.

1,300 SOLD IN ADVANCE Publications Board Will Choose Permanent Staff Soon.

The Awgwan, campus humor magazine which went out of existence by suspension order of the publications board in November 1929, is making a comeback today going on sale this morning in booths in social sciences, Andrews hall, teachers college and the mechanic arts building. The subscription blocks and delivery subscriptions will also be distributed today.

The February issue which comes from the press this morning features practically all original material. Longer articles include "Your Yoked Announcer," by William T. McCleery, "Awd for Wuncie" by Jack Erickson, "Learn to Dance," and "All Wasn't Quiet on the Western Front." The cover design, "An Affair of Hearts" is drawn by Marvin Robinson.

To Appoint Staff. Members of Sigma Delta Chi have filled the department head posts for the current issue of the magazine. The publication board will choose a permanent staff for the four remaining numbers of the sheet to be issued this year. Gene Robb, William T. McCleery and Neal Gomom are supervisors for the February issue with Elmont Waite and Lowell Davis as co-editors and Edgar Backus heading the business department. Robert Kelley and William Taylor have charge of circulation.

STUDENTS SHOW MORE INTEREST IN MUSIC

University Organizations Grow; R. O. T. C. Band Plans Concerts.

That there is an over increasing number of musically inclined students on the campus is again evidenced this semester by an enlarged enrollment in both the R. O. T. C. band and the Fine Arts band, according to W. T. "Billie" Quick, director of these two organizations. He announced Tuesday that the membership of the military band has been augmented by thirty new members, bringing its total membership to 100, while the Fine Arts instrumental group has brought its total membership to 55 with the addition of 18 musicians.

The size of the cadet band is usually limited only by the number of uniforms available for its men, and ordinarily there are many more applications for admittance than it is possible to grant. The R. O. T. C. band's rally sweaters, which were ordered and paid for by the individuals in the group, have arrived, Mr. Quick said, and will probably be seen at the next basketball game.

The concert given last Sunday by the military band will be followed by two more this season, one in March and one in April. It is likely that the Fine Arts band will also present a concert this semester as a convocation hour feature, Director Quick said.

is a bad plan to try cutting out one of your upperclassmen, especially if you are double-dating with him. And don't call professors by their first names.

Girls do have "don'ts" to contend with too. They must remember that all upperclassmen were once freshmen and therefore are all the more anxious to see them go thru what they did. They must always answer the telephone themselves, especially when the fellow calling them has been dating an upper. Don't ask your elders where they are going when they are going into the women's gym, and don't try to mooch cigarets from Mortar Boards. Don't ask if it wasn't cold when sisters come in from mid-winter picnics, and don't ask to borrow clothes from anybody who isn't another freshman, unless she is a lot smaller than you are.

Don't Sign! And when you are going to unofficial, unchaperoned parties at out-lying fraternity houses on Sunday nights, don't put down where you are going when you sign out, or you may not get asked again. Don't say you love to answer the door or the other freshmen will believe you, but act as though you did when no other freshmen are around. Don't ever kid anybody but a freshman about the appearance of her room, and by all means buy tickets to University Players and basketball games. That means six less study halls a year.
