CHURCH GROUP PLANS EASTER DAY DRAMA

First Christian Student Members to Present Religious Play.

The members of the student group of the First Christian Young People's department are planning to present an Easter play at the Sunday evening Easter church service. The drama is "The Boy Who Discovered Easter," by Alden and is being coached by Miss Polly Ann Gignell. The cast is as follows: Dr. Dexter, Charles Gray; Skelley Dexter, Morris Hayes; Maggie, Thelma Kirby; and Mary, Mary McKee. The story centers about the idea of the doctor and Skelley finding the meaning of Easter in a beautiful and happy companionship. There is a definite approach to the idea of God thru the senses of beauty.

Delores Deadman and Lavinia Moss are in charge of the costuming; Olive Seymour, Bud Treadway, and Bud Walters are in charge of properties; Bob Hird and Karl Yunker, lighting and scenic effects; Chester Hunt, back-grounds and stage arrangements; Genevieve Miller, music. The group has been at work the past week and everything is in line for the presentation.

Dear old Harvard and Yale are at it again. A very amusing episode at this time, too. As every well informed college student knows, Harvard has just completed some new buildings on the campus. They are distinctly of a colonial pattern—and therein lies the germ of the whole story (we hope you catch it). Because they believed it entirely out of place with buildings of colonial structure, the Harvard officials had all the Yale locks removed from the doors and others substituted in their stead. Everything would have been peaceful but for the discovery of this act by the Yale wits. Since then they have been riding Harvard most mercilessly in their college publications and in their humor sheets. One wit went so far as to compile a bit entitled "The Hape of the Yale Lock," imitating Pope in his best manner.

These old eastern colleges have a great deal to live for, and we envy them for the good times they have in keeping alive competition by constant alertness and prank playing. The above incident brings to mind the affair which Harvard had with Princeton some years ago. At that time, it was during the football season, the Harvard Lampton ran a cartoon showing a couple of pigs nosing in their mud. Below ran the caption, or should we say footnot, "Come, brother, let us root for dear old Princeton." Such is college life in the good old East, sir.

Spring has reached Chicago. And would you believe they have actually chosen a flower to be known as the city flower. It is the crocus.

Did you ever look down a dog's mouth and see the seat of his "pants"?

Some kind friend, interested in our welfare, called our attention to the fact that Madame Queen of No Man's Land felt the liberty to take a rather mean crack at us the other day. We looked the matter up and sure enough she had. We feel very sorry that we have been so indiscreet as to draw forth a rebuke. It is very unfortunate that to earn our daily bread we have to sometimes push a little red cart (not a wheelbarrow) about the campus. We do find solace, however, in remembering that good old Ben Franklin himself used to do that very same thing when he was but a stripling. We also remember that Deborah Rende used to stand in the doorway of her father's shop and laugh at poor Ben and wisecrack him. Later on she grew up and married Ben. We only pray the good Lord that that doesn't happen in this case.

Remember one can always look around him and find something to laugh at. We hope you like it.

OMAHA GETS PLAY PRIZE

Elaine Haverfield Awarded $25 as Best Playwright of University.

"The Dark Flame," a psychological play written by Elaine Haverfield of Omaha, senior in the Arts college, was Saturday night awarded first prize in the annual play contest sponsored by the University of Nebraska Dramatic club. The decision followed presentation of two select plays at the Temple theater before an estimated crowd of nearly 400 persons.

The other play entered, "Yellow Window," was written by Ivan Schweninger and was qualified entry as the result of elimination tests sponsored by the club.

In conjunction with winning of the prize, Miss Haverfield becomes an honorary member of the Dramatic club. Vera Waters coached the players of "The Dark Flame." They were Lee Bennett as Martin King; Blanche Sheldon as Cleo; Morton Richards as Cynic; Norman Hoff as Passion; Joe di Natale as Inferiority Complex; Carl Humphrey as Idealism; and Ben Franklin as Death.

Coached by the author, the cast of "Yellow Window," included Don Crowe, Dorothy Weaver, Dorothy Zimmer, Madison Shaw, and Judd Brenton. This play dealt with a French peasant family during the World war.

As an added feature on the program, the professionally written play, "Wurtzel Flummery," was presented by a Dramatic club cast including Russell Lindskog, Miriam Kissinger, Betty Evans, Albert Tiffany, and L. Roland Martin. Jane Wickersham coached. R. W. Spencer acted as business manager of the production and adva ticket sales were handled by Tassels, girls' pep organization. Marguerite Danielson presented the prize money.

MILESTONES

April 5, 1901

The varsity baseball team walloped Nebraska Wesleyan by a score of 18-1.

Nebraska won the first of three interstate debates, winning over Colorado by a unanimous verdict. Nebraska upheld the affirmative of the question of the municipalization of surface transportation facilities in cities over 100,000 population.

The first year class in domestic science was specializing in fancy bread making, which included buns, rusks, and coffee cakes.

"Quo Vadis," a unique organization for the purpose of seeing that the football team would always be represented by a few Nebraska rooters while playing away from home, was installed at this institution. The club consisted of thirteen members, and the only requisition of membership was that the prospective pledge must have bumbled at least 1,000 miles without paying a sou for transportation. The official badge was an open tomato can with an "N" on the upturned lid, and the inscription "Quo Vadis" in black on the red background of the can.

The sixth district convention of Sigma Nu was held at this university. Chapters from Iowa, Ames, Minnesota and Cornell were represented.

A subscription contest was launched for the sale of the Nebraska song book. A $40 cowhide traveling case was to go to the girl winning the individual prize, and either a $70 vacuum sweeper or a $70, four piece tea service to the winning sorority.

"A fig for scarlet tendrils! Puff for vermillion wads! The knob that draws the notice Wears its foliage in wads."

Such was the dramatic couplet which accompanied the award of the prize for the greatest quantity of red hair at the fourth annual luncheon of the Golden Fleece, university organization of red headed co-eds. Prizes were awarded likewise for the most vivid coiffure, and the most scintillating golden glow.

Bunny F. Oakes came from Tennessee to accept the offer of head line coach at Nebraska.

Traffic lights were installed at Twelfth and R streets. There was considerable dispute over whether a uniformed policeman might not be a better remedy for coping with the traffic problem.

SOCIAL PROGRAM TO BE SPONSORED BY CHURCH GROUP

An informal social hour will be sponsored by the members of the young people's department of the First Christian church, Sixteenth and K streets, this afternoon in the young people's parlors at 5:30 o'clock. The program will be under the direction of Ethel James. Light refreshments will be served at the end of the hour by a committee under the direction of Inez English and Gladys Williams.

At 6:30 an informal discussion group will be held and the theme will center around the Easter season. The meeting will open with a period of devotions. All Christian church students and those not affiliated elsewhere are very cordially invited to attend, it was announced.

Wesley Players Will Present Drama Sunday

The Wesley Players will present their three act play, "A Sacrifice Once Offered," at Wahoo Sunday evening. This religious drama presents the Easter message. Those taking part in the cast are: Russell Lindskog, Carolyn Cooper, Oliver Kibben, Lloyd Watt, Ingeborg Nielsen, Charles Greer, Mildred Johnson, Jeanette Hollander, Irving Walker, George Schmid, and Norman Peters. They will be accompanied by Mr. W. Edgar Gates and Rev. W. C. Fawell. The young people's service in the evening will be in charge of Mr. Gates, who is president of the Lincoln District Epworth league and also a member of the board of directors of Wesley Foundation.
