300 HIGH SCHOOL BOYS WILL ENTER JUDGING CONTEST

Students From Institutions Of State to Gather at Ag College.

DATE IS APRIL 24, 25

Minteer Makes Preliminary Plans for Annual Public Event.

More than a total of 300 eastern Nebraska high school boys are expected to gather in Lincoln for the seventeenth annual agricultural contests held at the college of agriculture on April 24 and 25. C. C. Minteer, secretary of the contest committee, made the preliminary plans for the annual event public for this morning.

Starting in 1914 when Prof. H. J. Gramlich, now head of the animal husbandry department, had charge of the contests, they have grown until 37 schools were attracted to Lincoln for the judging days last year. Up until 1929 all Smith-Hughes schools in the state competed at Lincoln but schools in the western end of the state started their contests in North Platte that year. This year schools in the western section of Nebraska will hold their contests on April 16 and 17.

Twenty-Two in 1922.

A resume of past contests shows that 22 schools competed in the 1922 contests held in Lincoln when all vocational educational high schools in Nebraska competed. Schools winning championship awards that year in the various contests included York, Red Cloud, Eagle, Geneva, and Holmestown. Eagle high school topped two championship honors the next year when 21 teams participated in Lincoln. Fairfield, Randolph, Stromsburg, Tecumseh, Millard and Newhanna were among the other schools winning high awards at the 1923 contests.

It took the Milford high school boys to win two championships in 1924 when 21 schools competed at Lincoln. Then in 1925, Waverly won two high honors when 20 schools were in Lincoln for the annual contests.

Albion Wins Twice.

Albion high school broke into the record books with two wins in 1926 when 20 schools were attracted to Lincoln for the judging. The following year the number of vocational high schools entered again took a jump and 31 schools competed. Following that year 34 came to Lincoln in 1928, the last year that the western schools appeared in Lincoln for the contests.

Bad weather prevented many schools from entering either the North Platte or Lincoln contests in 1929. The records show that only 27 schools competed in the Lincoln contests. This number, however, was increased last year when 37 schools sent teams to Lincoln to compete in the eastern Nebraska contests. Nineteen schools were represented at North Platte last year.

MUSICIANS WILL REGISTER.

Registration for the fourth quarter in the University school of music, will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 9 to 11.

25 Copies of April Humor Sheet May Yet Be Purchased

Twenty-five copies of the April "Campus Beautiful" issue of the Awgwan are available at the Awgwan office in the basement of University hall, the staff said Wednesday afternoon.

Extra copies of the issue were printed because of the fact that both of the first two issues were sold out on the day of publication.

Reporter Sniffs Infant Grass as Sol Laughs at Advent of Picnic Season

By MRS. GABBY N. CHATT.

Having been told by her superiors to find some signs of spring and write a story concerning them, the reporter who writes under the above signature was seen an afternoon or two ago lying prone on the grass. She was sniffing the sweet freshness of several of the infant blades of grass, and using her microscope in an attempt to locate a lost, strayed, or stolen angleworm waiting to furnish nourishment for some young robin.

While she was thus engaged, she felt a burning sensation on the lobe of her right ear. "Say, Sol," she said addressing Father Sun himself, "cut that out. I haven't time to play with you today." And, imagine her consternation if you can, when that austere person merely turned upon her a grinning countenance and continued to play with her ear, after the fashion of all Sols, or Sons.

"Say, Sunny," she said maternally, "what are you so burnt up about today? If you're so hot, find me some signs of spring." And actually, Apollo burst right out laughing. Sobering however, he started flashing messages to her.

Season is Here.

"If you had my position," he grinned, "you'd need look no farther for material. Picknicking season is here!" he said significantly as if that explained his first statement. "I have a great time. In the first place I incite the students to picnics, and they bless my arrival. When they start on the picnics, they hide from me, but I see them just the same," and he laughed a wicked, villainous laugh as he went on his way to brighten somebody's corner.

And Sol is right. Picnic season is here. Poor old Noah. He probably turns in his grave at the connotations the word has now come to call forth. At least many respectable people do. And yet, he wasn't so dumb—and perhaps he was rather a gay old dog.

At least he defines picnic as it was originally meant, as it is now used, and according to slang usage. The latter definition applies most beautifully in its breadth to any kind of picnic with any kind of person—on any picnic or non-picnic ground.

Fashion to Excursion.

"Originally," reads the work of Webster, "a picnic was a kind of fashionable social entertainment at which each person contributed food to a common table. Now, however, he goes on to say, "it is

COUNCIL HEAD TO SPEAK

Y.M.C.A. Worker Scheduled To Appear at Ellen Smith Hall.

David Porter, head of the national student council of the Y. M. C. A. of New York will speak at Ellen Smith hall at 8 o'clock on Sunday evening. This meeting is being planned for all students who have attended the Estes conference or who are planning to attend this year.

GRAMLICH ANNOUNCES FEEDERS DAY PLANS

Head of Animal Husbandry Department Declares Program Ready.

MAY BREAK ATTENDANCE

With Feeder's day less than two weeks away, plans are rapidly nearing completion to accommodate 2,000 or more Nebraska farm men and women at the college of agriculture, Prof. H. J. Gramlich announced this morning. Feeder's day comes on Friday, April 17.

A complete program for the day has been outlined, according to Gramlich, and is being sent over the state to interested feeders. Several of the leading livestock authorities in the country are scheduled to appear on the program. No cancellations have been received and the college of agriculture man believes the program will remain intact.

Results of the experiments conducted with hogs, sheep and cattle will be reported on at the Feeder's day. The most interest will probably develop around a cattle experiment which has been dealing with wintering calves under eastern Nebraska conditions. Prof. R. R. Thalman has had charge of the test.

2,000 Feeders Attend.

Last year feeders from eight states outside of Nebraska were present for Feeder's day. Twenty-five interested farmers from Iowa were among the 2,000 farmers at the meeting. Other states having representatives at the meeting included Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Illinois, Texas, Indiana and Kentucky. Fifty-eight Nebraska counties were represented by farmers also at the meeting.

Information reaching the animal husbandry department at the college indicates there is more interest than ever over the state in regard to the meeting. Placards have been sent to leading feeders, bankers and county agents to advertise the meeting.

Given good weather, another attendance record may be hung up, Professor Gramlich believes.

BIZAD APPLICATIONS ARE BEING RECEIVED

Executive Head Announces Filings for Manager of Annual Day.

Smith stated that as yet no definite program for Bizad day has been decided upon. He indicated that the customary luncheon will be held but the greater share of the day's activities will depend on the new manager.

Last year Bizad day was observed by a lunch at Antelope park followed by various sports during the afternoon and a dance at night. Tickets were sold among the students of the college of business administration for the affair.

According to the new university ruling Bizad day will come May 1.

As a matter of fact, Jane is already engaged to her mother's choice when she succumbs to the captain's charms, and complications ensue. Everything ends satisfactorily, however, altho someone is, of course, disillusioned.

Worcester writes Education Article

Journal Higher Education Publishes Research of Professor.

"Purpose and College Attendance" is the title of an article by D. A. Worcester, professor of educational psychology, in the April issue of the Journal of Higher Education, published by Ohio State university. Professor Worcester's article deals with the effect of permanence of intention to attend college on later college success.

After a comparison of environmental factors, intelligence quotients and college marks, the author concludes that a definite and long held intention to attend college seems to have a more definite effect on success in college than the study of Latin in high school.

After presenting the results of a study of 100 picked at random, 50 of whom had taken Latin and 50 of whom had not, Professor Worcester says, "It is conceivable that

STUDENT COUNCIL POSTPONES PARTY TO FUTURE DATE

Legislators Point to Many Functions Occurring During Week.

SCHOOL SING OUTLINED

Grau Proposes New Method Of Arousing Student Class Spirit.

At a meeting of the student council held last night on the lawn in the rear of administration hall, it was decided to postpone the suggested all-university function to a date later than May 1 because of the many conflicting events occurring on that evening. May 1 was the date originally proposed for the affair.

Fred Grau, senior class president, came forward with a proposal for an all-school sing every Sunday evening on the campus. No definite action was taken on this proposal.

In advocating the establishment of such an institution, Grau said, "If the tradition of a Sunday evening song fest could be established, school spirit which is admittedly low now, would be greatly increased, and with the increase in school spirit, interest in such projects as a student union building, and so on, would be easily awakened."

Too Many Conflicts.

Bill McCleery put forth the motion to drop temporarily the plans for the suggested all-university affair, pointing out that Farmers Fair, the Kosmet Klub show, Engineers night, and other events all would conflict with such an event.

It was also pointed out that certainty of definite faculty financial support would have to be secured before the council took any practical action on plans for such a party. Robert Kelly, council president, was delegated to secure details of faculty financial support.

Favor Sing.

The general opinion of the council seemed to favor the establishment of a Sunday evening sing such as the senior class president proposed. According to Grau and others, however, the institution of the tradition could not be undertaken by the council members acting as such, but would have to come from the student body itself or from the council members acting as a representative student social group.

"It is my idea," Grau stated, "to have no 'bally hoo' or advertising publicity of the first sing. The word would spread among the students, and they would come in numbers, if for no other reason than to satisfy their curiosity."

PLANS PROCEED FOR ALL-UNIVERSITY FETE

Roulette Wheels, Gambling Motif Will Feature Friday Party.

Plans for an elaborate All-University party to be held in the coliseum Friday night are under way, according to Delphin Nash and George Thomas, who are in charge. Gambling of all sorts with pseudo money will be offered to those present. Three roulette wheels claimed to have been taken in a raid in Chicago will be part of the extensive gambling equipment. Besides these there will be 100 other roulette wheels, games of poker, faro, put-and-take. Dice throwing will also be included.

Fifty dollars in fake money for gambling will be issued to each one entering the door. Fake drafts for $200 will be sent to the specially invited guests which will be payable in the currency of the evening at the door.

Frontier costumes will be the vogue for the party. Most of those attending will dress in this fashion.

A solid ceiling effect will be carried out in decorations. According to Martin Klingler this is to be an elaborate ceiling covering and this and the decorations will require a large amount of preparation.

Eddie Jungbluth's orchestra will play.

Many guests have been invited both from the university faculty and from the state legislature.

FAIR REFRESHMENT PLANS ARE DEVISED

Copenhaver, Chairman, to Provide Concessions For Event.

ONE STAND WILL SERVE

In line with the fair board's policy to emphasize exhibits rather than concessions for the 1931 Farmers Fair, Ralph Copenhaver, co-chairman of the general committee, has announced tentative plans for his committee.

Despite the fact that more emphasis is being put on exhibits, Copenhaver and the rest of his committee hope to make the refreshment stand better than before. In previous years there have been numerous stands scattered over the campus but the plan will be altered this year when all the refreshments will be served out of one large stand. Fair patrons will be able to receive hot dogs, hamburgers, pop, candy and other refreshments at the one large stand all day.

Divides Group.

Together with Hazel Benson, co-chairman, Copenhaver has divided his group into two sections. One-half of the committee is working on the tea room project while the rest are to have charge of the refreshment stand. Ruth Mierhenery is chairman of the tea room and is making elaborate plans to make it one of the 1931 fair features.

Miss Mierhenery announced this morning that students on her tea room group include Hazel Benson, Patricia Synder, Goldie Gibson, Agnes Madison, Margaret Trobough, Esther Atkinson, Carol Beatty, and Louise Hornong.

At the same time Copenhaver announces that Harold Nickels is to have direct charge of the other stand. Floyd Ingersoll will direct the construction while Helen Newberg will see that the stand is properly advertised with signs. Other members of the general committee include Naomi McGuire, Alice Zimmerman, Georgia Yates, Cecil Sherkey, Scott Beadle, Roy Blaser and Clifford Brown.

Tentative plans call for the erection of the refreshment stand just east of the student activities building. The size of the stand has not been determined. Floyd Ingersoll, however, is working on plans for the construction of an eating house that will attract all hot-dog eaters.

LUCE PAYS TRIBUTE TO HUSKER STUDENTS

Editor of Time and Fortune Makes Short Visit in Lincoln.

PLEASED WITH SIGHTS

Tribute to the high character of Nebraska university students was paid yesterday by Harry R. Luce, editor of Time and Fortune, during a short visit in Lincoln. The famous editor arrived early Tuesday and spent most of Wednesday looking over the city and visiting acquaintances here. Mr. Luce was accompanied by Senator Malcolm Baldrige and was a guest of B. Frank Watson, local attorney.

In discussing university students Mr. Luce said that he could not be able to make any statement from an expert's point of view but that Fifth avenue would not be able to present a more smartly dressed group of girls than he saw leaving a classroom yesterday morning on the university campus.

'BIRD IN HAND' GIVEN FOR REFORM SCHOOL

University Players Present Drinkwater Comedy Last Night.

TO PLAY FOR VETERANS

University Players, Nebraska dramatic organization, presented "Bird in Hand" at the Nebraska Reformatory school last night, and will present it again tonight at the Nebraska Veterans hospital. "Bird in Hand," written by John Drinkwater, is one of his most popular plays.

The players will climax the present season, the most successful in many years, with this comedy, showing it from April 13-18. They have presented several plays this year, some of them being "Ladies of the Jury," by Fred Ballard; "Holliday," and "Fashion," all being satires and comedies in keeping with the trend of plays this season, which were mostly of the comedy type.

"Bird in Hand" depicts the story of the rich man's son trying to marry the poor girl, and after a family quarrel, the girl's father gives in, and the marriage or promise of such, climaxes the story.

Plans are being made to present the play for members of the state legislature in the near future, before the present session adjourns.

SURVEY OF COLGATE PHI BETA KAPPAS SHOWS THEY ARE NOT ONE-SIDED; ARE USUALLY SUCCESSFUL IN AFTER YEARS

The old question of whether or not one can be an outstanding athlete and a fine scholar at the same time was discussed by Frank Carman Ewart in a recent issue of the Journal of Higher Education, in an article entitled, "Are Phi Beta Kappas Grinds?" According to Mr. Ewart, the member of the honorary society is not the "greasy grind" ordinarily pictured by student opinion. On the contrary, he is not only far from one-sided but is also quite successful, as a rule, in the world of post-graduation, if the figures brought out by Mr. Ewart from a survey of the Phi Beta Kappas of the past thirty years in Colgate university are to be accepted.

"A frequent remark in college circles," said Mr. Ewart, "is, 'If so and so is Phi Beta Kappa type, I do not care to work for it.' To see what ground there is for this kind of student opinion, research into the record of all Colgate graduates of the last thirty years who have been elected into Phi Beta Kappa was undertaken. This study has been concerned with three things, athletic record in college, participation in non-athletic activities, and the positions attained out in the world."

Some of the figures advanced by Mr. Ewart from this survey report that, out of the 416 honorary members of the past thirty years, representing 16 percent of the total number of graduates during that period, 68, or 16 percent, won their letters in some sport. Of these 68, 15 or 22 percent, earned it in two major sports; four more, or 6 percent, earned it in three; one other earned it in four. Furthermore, the college graduate manager of athletics declared that 15, or 22 percent of these 68 "letter men" were the outstanding athletes of their college generation.

"Again, out of the Phi Beta

Kappas, 143, or 34 percent, won positions of great leadership in the student body," continued Mr. Ewart. These presidents of leading campus organizations; editors of the college weekly or annual, positions of prime importance; and other positions of pre-eminence in student life.

"Their still remains the question, 'What have Phi Beta Kappas done out in the world?' To begin at home, where has Colgate university gone for members of its own Phi Beta Kappa graduates, we find, Twenty are on its teaching staff at the present time. Also, 117 out of 374 graduates of that the first decade of the century, or 31 percent, have been elected to membership in Who's Who.

"Such facts," concluded Mr. Ewart, "would seem to be an answer to the question, 'Are Phi Beta Kappas "grinds"?'
