FLAMES DESTROY PAVILION ON AG COLLEGE CAMPUS

Spontaneous Combustion in Sawdust, Oil Rags Is Given as Cause.

VALUED SEED IS LOST

Experimental Corn Can Not Be Replaced; Firemen Suffer Injuries.

Spontaneous combustion among sawdust and oil rags is believed to have caused the fire which swept thru the livestock judging pavilion on the college of agriculture campus Friday night, causing a damage of about $25,000. The building was damaged practically beyond repair.

The fire started shortly before 8 o'clock. Fire Chief Hansen said the fire originated in a southeast room on the first floor and spread rapidly to the attic by way of a staircase on the west side of the building and an elevator shaft on the east side.

Besides damage to the building, the agronomy department suffered the loss of many bushels of experimental seed corn. Planting of the inbred seed corn was to be finished this next week and those in charge had the corn laid out ready for planting. Those in charge of the project said that it will probably be impossible to replace the corn.

Five trucks answered. Five truck companies and the hook and ladder wagon were called to the scene. As it was a second alarm, members of the off-shift were called on duty. Five water lines were used.

Two firemen suffered injury in battling the flames. Mansfield Rohrbaugh, 5626 Walker, was struck by a flaming cornice of wood and metal as he stepped out onto the sidewalk. He was taken to the St. Elizabeth hospital and attended by Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician. Al Barney, captain of a company, was painfully burned on the hand when the roof collapsed on a company of men in the attic. Barney stumbled and rolled down the stairway to the second floor. When he stopped his hand was thrust into burning embers. He was not taken to the hospital.

Classes to Continue. Tho the judging pavilion is probably damaged beyond repair, animal husbandry classes which have been held in the building will continue meeting at the regular hour. Prof. H. J. Gramlich, head of the department, and his assistants were busy Saturday morning moving the damaged office equipment to the south end of the meats (Continued on Page 4)

THIEF DASHES FREE WITH CASH, WATCH

Marauder Darts From Room As Sorority Girl Interrupts. It was the experience of Janet Schmidt of Hastings to discover a sneak thief ransacking her room when she entered it, have him run past her out of the room while she was groping for the electric light switch, and see him disappear thru a door leading to an outside fire escape.

This occurrence took place at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house Friday night at 10 o'clock when a marauder made away with a watch and $5 belonging to Miss Schmidt, and an unestimated amount of money belonging to Betty Wahlquist, also of Hastings, and two alumnae from Omaha, Jean Robbins and Josephine Vaught.

Miss Schmidt entered her darkened room, she heard someone within the room. While searching for the switch, the man ran past her and down the hall until he reached the fire escape on which he descended to the ground, the room being on the second floor. Miss Schmidt got but a glimpse of the intruder and was unable to describe him.

DR. HIMMEL OUTLINES NEW BIOLOGY COURSE

Innovation Places Emphasis on Habits of Careful Observation.

TO STUDY BOTH SIDES

Suggesting the greater possibilities and value of the new biology course appearing for the first time next semester, Dr. W. J. Himmel, of the botany department, outlined yesterday its outstanding features, characterizing the course of study as a departure from existing lines of study in biology.

"The training given in this subject, while following on a smaller scale the work aimed at in the present courses in Botany or Zoology, will at the same time place a special emphasis on the development of habits of careful observation," said Dr. Himmel. "This observation will not be confined to plants and animals only, but all living things as well. In this way we hope to develop an appreciation of the use and value of the scientific attitude. Much more attention will be paid to the life habits of organisms in addition to as careful a study of structure and physiological differences."

To Aid Neighbors. "Our aim will further be extended toward trying to enable the student to recognize and interpret the things he is more likely to encounter than those which he in all probability will rarely have opportunity to meet with again," continued Dr. Himmel. "In this particular course we will consider any phenomena of nature as in the individual concerned. This method of procedure should help the student to have a larger and clearer understanding of the subject involved."

The course will be a three hour one with three hours a week laboratory. Both the recitation and the laboratory will be under the personal supervision of Dr. Himmel, who has had previous experience on both botany and zoology. A large registration is not expected. (Continued on Page 3.)
