COURSES ARE EXPANDED Offer Flexible Program to Fit Changing Needs of Education.

Joint six-nine weeks courses for the 1931 summer session as unanimously approved by the university council of administration is continuing of the plan inaugurated in 1930, will begin June 8, according to announcement made yesterday by Prof. R. D. Moritz, director of the university summer session.

"The six-nine weeks session is based on a desire to make the summer courses serve the greatest number of students possible without impairing the quality of the work offered," declared Professor Moritz.

Program Expanded.

The program of summer courses has been expanded to meet the constantly changing needs and demands in the field of education. The work offered, according to the director of the summer session, is designed to offer not only a scholarly program of professional and academic courses but one sufficiently flexible to meet the needs of all types of students including the teachers, or those preparing to teach, school supervisors and administrators, college students who desire to make up deficiencies or to continue their regular collegiate study, students who must meet prerequisites for admission to professional schools, or anyone desiring to pursue studies for their cultural vocational values.

The university officials place major emphasis on the nine weeks summer session offers unusual opportunities in both the professional and liberal arts colleges for students to pursue their graduate work. Prof. Moritz declared.

Arrangements have been made with the various departments offering extension courses whereby a student will be permitted during the six weeks session to carry the courses which may be completed after the close of the six weeks session thru the extension division. "The offerings in the graduate college are more extensive than in former years and the nine weeks summer session offers unusual opportunities in both the professional and liberal arts colleges for students to pursue their graduate work," Prof. Moritz declared.

These classes are intended to demonstrate educational principles given in courses during the summer session.

FAULKNER NAMED STUDENT COUNCIL HEAD YESTERDAY

Fee, Huber, Simanek Also Named to Offices in New Group.

BARBS TO BE ADMITTED

Legislators Decide Against Recommendation of Faculty Senate.

Edwin Faulkner, Lincoln, 32, was elected president of the Student Council for next year at the first meeting of the recently elected council yesterday. Other officers chosen were: Gretchen Fee, vice president; Walter Huber, treasurer; Julia Simanek, secretary.

The council approved the recommendation of the university senate committee on student organizations that the Barb faction be allowed to choose two Student Council members to represent those students who were otherwise deprived of representation when the regular Barb candidates were declared ineligible because of illegal use of printed handbills in the campaign. The Barb faction will be allowed to pick its two representatives for the council.

To Work on Union.

The council also authorized the new president to appoint a committee representative of all student groups to work with the faculty and alumni committees towards getting a student union building for Nebraska. The new committee will be announced at the first meeting of the council next fall.

Berenice Hoffman, senior woman-at-large representative on the council, was elected chairman of the Student Council judiciary committee. Other members of the committee are provided for by the council rules which make the four hold-over members and the faculty adviser automatically members of the committee.

Innocents Request Night.

The request from the Innocents society for a closed night Oct. 24, Homecoming, in order to foster interest in a general all-university party that night was declined. The council, however, voted to use its prestige with other student groups and the Interfraternity council and Pan-hellenic council to secure proper scheduling of parties for that night. Opponents of the closed night request included Adviser Lantz who did not favor any policy of the council for indiscriminately ordering closed nights to any group which requests that it be done. Mr. Lantz favored the plan for a general party that night, but thought it sufficient if the council would "recommend" no parties be scheduled without arbitrarily ordering a closed night.

Following the election of the new president, retiring President Kelly read a summary of the work of the council this year and recommendations for next year. The passing of the new Student Council constitution was cited as the outstanding achievement of the year. Most important of his recommendations for next year was affiliation.

NEW ALLOTMENT OF CORNHUSKERS IS DISTRIBUTED

Staff Urges Purchasers to Get Books as Soon
As Possible.

With a new allotment of 1931 Cornhuskers coming in from the printers, the Cornhusker office opened at 1 o'clock yesterday to fulfill the order of a great many students who are apparently very anxious to receive their new year books.

Students filed into the office, according to Ed Edmonds, business manager, nearly as fast as the day before when the business staff issued the annuals at the rate of better than two per minute between the hours of 8 and 5.

Books Go Rapidly.
The rapid rate at which the Cornhuskers are going out is gratifying to the business staff which has encouraged students to get their books as soon as possible in an effort to clean up the 1931 orders.

Those students who have purchased their 1931 student publications on the three pay installment plan must submit the remaining money due when they present their receipts for getting their books.

Carrying out the tradition instituted many years ago, Chancellor Burnett yesterday sent out 125 1931 Cornhuskers to that many high schools in Nebraska. This is done to give prospective university students a brief, yet complete view of the accomplishments of university students in all its phases.

There are several new features in the 1931 Cornhusker which have come in for great approval and much favor among students. Outstanding among the innovations is the theme, "one for all—all for one," which runs throughout the book and characterizes each section. In carrying out the theme there is the portrayal in various forms the three musketeers in comparison to students of the university.

Group Section Good.
The fraternity and sorority sections have come in for a constructive change which has drawn from the many students and faculty members who have seen the book exclamations of approval and satisfaction. The rearrangement of the pictures which now run from top to bottom of the page make possible much larger pictures. The names of the towns from which each Greek member comes is also included in the new book.

The final change is that the humor section excludes personalities. Also the feature section is given more copy space. To this section twenty-four pages with three full page portraits are devoted.

In the colors of black and gold upon which are placed the same characters student and musketeer which fulfill the theme the cover is a very striking one. It is made of imitation leather.

In chronological order the "back" of the book during the school year is recorded in the pictorial section. It begins with football rallies and ends with outstanding campus events of the year.

The book consists of individual pictures of the seniors and seniors, both social and professional fraternities and sororities, religious and business organizations, various councils, faculty, publication activities, and all other features that have taken a prominent and regular part in record of students, activities and organizations.

She will begin her duties in July making a visit to the eastern United States prior to that time.

VISITING TEACHERS ARE IN CHARGE OF SUMMER SCHOOL

Outstanding Professors of Other Schools Will Conduct Sessions.

FACULTY FAVORS PLAN Say Is Especially Adapted To Professional Needs Of Teachers.

In order to meet more adequately the professional needs of Nebraska teachers, the university officials in charge of the 1931 summer sessions have arranged to have a number of visiting instructors of national standing in addition to keeping practically the entire staff of the teachers college who will be on duty carrying on the full work, it was announced yesterday.

The outstanding visiting professors who will offer courses here this summer are Dr. W. L. Carr of Columbia university; Charles S. Thomas, director of the work of the commission on English appointed by the college entrance examining board; Dr. F. B. Knight, professor of psychology and education at the university of Iowa; Dr. M. E. Lazerte, university of Alberta, Canada; Mildred Miller, kindergarten-primary supervisor of Cleveland Heights, Ohio; Bessie Rasmus, University of Iowa; Josephine Richards of the Margaret Morrison Carnegie college, Pittsburgh, Penn.; Dr. Charles Reeves, chairman of the department of education, Elmira college, Elmira, N. Y.

Will Aid Education.
"In bringing here these prominent professors, the university is doing all in its power to aid in preparing a body of properly qualified teachers to meet the needs of the state," Prof. R. D. Moritz, director of the summer sessions, declared yesterday.

Many college students who might be inclined to enter the teaching profession find themselves lacking the necessary preparation. In some instances, this preparation can be secured in the summer. The summer session offers an unusually large number of courses in both graduate and undergraduate work in education.

Faculty Favors Plan.
"The possibility of securing from 6 to 9 hours of university credit makes the summer session especially well adapted to the professional needs of teachers," was the opinion of the faculty.

ADVANTAGES SUMMER SCHOOL WORK CITED

High School Grads Starting
Now Are Better Off
Says Moritz.

High school graduates who begin their university work during summer school will have certain distinct advantages over those who wait until fall, R. D. Moritz, director of the summer session, said yesterday. The freshman starting in the fall is usually given little attention or consideration during registration because of the rush but the summer student does not have to worry with this.

A student may receive more helpful advice during summer registration because the advisor is not so busy. He will usually take a more personal interest in the student at this time than in the fall.

If the incoming student is deficient in any subjects he can make these up in summer school and be all ready to start his fall term with a clean slate. By attending summer sessions he may also be graduated sooner and may possibly receive his degree a full year sooner than otherwise.
