

SUMMER SESSION'S ENROLLMENT PASSES PRECEDING RECORDS

Students Total 2,713; New Plans Tried During Short Term.

With 2,713 students in attendance, the 1931 summer session eclipsed the one of 1930 at which time 2,577 studied. Seven hundred and seventeen of the students registered this last summer were taking graduate work. This was also an increase of about 23 percent over the year before.

Twelve hundred sixty-nine completed their work in the six weeks' course while the remainder of those enrolled stayed for the nine weeks' session. A new idea in attending summer school was inaugurated by the extension division. Students could go to summer school six weeks and make nine hours credit by completing one hour in each course by extension. Many took advantage of this opportunity.

Sessions of various lengths were offered regular students and also instructors from the schools of the state. Three special two week courses included vitalized agriculture for rural schools, rural school administration and supervision, and parent teachers association.

A coaching school in connection with the 1931 Amateur Athletic games held in Lincoln was sponsored by the athletic department. Besides the local coaches, D. X. Bible, H. F. Schulte, Charlie Black, Ed Weir and Bill Day, "Doc" McLean also gave instruction in taking care of injuries of the athletes. Coaches from various colleges and universities, who were in Lincoln with men competing in the games, also taught classes.

A student executive committee was appointed to have charge of the social and recreational affairs of the students. This was the first time anything had been attempted and the success of the venture indicates that in the future a committee will be appointed from the student body for each summer session.

New members for Phi Delta Kappa, honorary and professional educational fraternity, were chosen and initiated. They included fifteen graduate students in education who are prominent in the educational field of Nebraska and surrounding states. Election is decided upon by scholastic record as well as service in this field.

A new scholarship fund for students in dramatic arts was begun last summer. A special showing of the University Players in "Ladies of the Jury," sponsored by the summer student group, brought in more than two hundred dollars, which is to be given to worthy students in dramatics. Each scholarship will be worth $100.

Junior Ag College Livestock Team Will Begin Work This Week.

Prof. M. A. Alexander of the animal husbandry department at the agricultural college announced late Thursday that the junior livestock team would start working out Saturday of this week. Alexander is to have charge of the team until Prof. R. R. Thalman returns from Chicago.

The team will start practicing immediately for judging competition at Denver this winter. Last year the Nebraska team won first place in the western show at Denver. Five men will compose the team.

If Nebraska wins at Denver again this year in the collegiate livestock judging contest, they will be allowed to keep a large trophy which was temporarily won last year. In order to secure permanent possession of the trophy a team must win it three times. Nebraska and Kansas have both won the contest twice in former years.

NEBRASKA GRAD GUIDES NATIONAL PARK TOURISTS

Howard Rowland, 31 M. A., spent three months this summer in the Fall River Pass section of the Rocky Mountain National park. Mr. Rowland assisted in supervising the thousands of tourists that invaded the park this summer, and said that there was a greater number of tourists there than ever before in the history of the park.
