Editor Requests Students To Have Photographs Taken Soon.

WILL USE NEW SYSTEM

With a number of students having their pictures taken for the Cornhusker in the past few days, progress on the annual is encouraging. Otis Detrick, editor of the Cornhusker, announced yesterday, Cornhusker members have been calling staff members to make appointments for students to have their photographs taken with the local photographers.

"I wish that the students would show more interest in having their pictures taken," Detrick declared. "With the deadline approaching, there will be the inevitable last minute rush, and many students will be disappointed."

Active members of the honorary work with non-sorority and sorority freshmen women through organized hobby groups in order to become better acquainted with these women and to help them in matters pertaining to scholarship. They will help these girls delinquent in scholarship to acquire proper study habits by advice or actual tutoring.

A meeting of all girls interested in these hobby groups was held last Wednesday evening when groups were organized and leaders of these groups appointed. Active members of Alpha Lambda Delta who act as leaders are: Music, Evelyn Lyon and Lucille Hitchcock; charm school, Kathleen Becker; cooking, Danna Davis and Alice Geddes; poetry, Dorothy Hughes and DeMaris Hilliard. These hobby groups were organized for the first time last year and meet once or twice a month.

ATTEMPT REDUCTION STUDENTS SALARIES

Jayhawkers Score Effort to Cut Pay to Fifteen Cents an Hour.

The effort to reduce the rate for student labor to fifteen cents an hour which has been made by a local man through the Lawrence chamber of commerce has met with the disapproval of Sam Carter, secretary of the university employment bureau for men.

The local man, a salesman, requested Mr. Carter to send him several men to deliver samples for fifteen cents an hour. Mr. Carter promptly refused, explaining to the man that it costs a student at least two dollars a day to remain in school, and that to earn that amount he must obtain at least thirty cents an hour.

The appeal was next made through the chamber of commerce. Mr. Carter gave them the same explanation and told them that he would not send students out for less than thirty cents an hour.

"It is ridiculous to suppose that a student can afford to work for fifteen cents an hour," states Mr. Carter. "We have already reduced the wages from thirty-five cents to thirty cents in view of the present conditions, but we feel that it would be a detriment to the student to work for less."

"The work of the employment bureau," said Mr. Carter, "is not just to secure jobs for students, but to secure the right kind of jobs at a fair price. We never send a man to a job until we have investigated and found the position to be all right."

TEACHERS HIGH BEGINS SERIES OF CLASS ATHLETICS

Coch Earl McClure of the Teacher's College high school is launching a program of inter-class athletics. These contests are to start about Oct. 16. The girls also play scheduled games of kitenball each noon hour. Coach McClure reports about forty boys and about twenty girls out for athletics each day. He hopes to build up a good athletic spirit in time for the basketball season which will begin about Nov. 9.

ITS a funny thing—I mean this case about the professor who surprised the country by telling us that all whistlers are morons. Here is something that is hard to explain—Walter Winchell, gabby New York columnist, tells that "this same professor came to him requesting a blurb for a new book which is coming from the publishers soon. And all the while, Winchell would have us know, that same whistle-scoffing professor was whistling an off key tune while he waited for the columnist's answer, which, incidentally, was "no!"

HERE is one for steak eaters. Back in the pompous days of regal frivolity it seems that a king, perhaps it was King James, was eating a cut of steak. So excellent was the tid bit, and so highly did it please him that his honor asked what part of the cow the steak came from. Being told that it was "loin steak," King James would do nothing else but have a cow brought into the courtyard so that he could whack it across the hips with his sword and christen it "Sir-loin."

THE Delta Gammas are doing funny things. First a story comes of from Missouri that the Showme State D. G.'s, are limiting themselves to a ten cent sodas on dates in order to save their escorts money. Next comes a dispatch from Evanston, Ill., where Northwestern coeds of the same sorority say they will set no limit because "the boys seem to have plenty of money and they might not like it if we put a limit on what they can spend on us." But on another day the Missouri girl economists send out a story saying that they made no such rule and that if anyone doesn't believe it, "just take us out to a dinner and see." Delta Gammas at Nebraska appear not to be concerned with the matter for they are taking no chapter action on the issue.

IT caused a lot of trouble—that article in an Omaha paper a week or two ago which described sorority rushing at this university. It seems that the article presented "the Big Five" sororities. It further seemed that some sororities, one in particular, took offense to that journals' classification of sorority standing. Some even go so far as to say that their was more or less of a lit-ta-too in a Panhellenic meeting the Monday following. But then, of course, one never knows, does one?
