

VARSITY RESTS AFTER VICTORY OVER WILDCATS

Bible Will Begin Intensive Drill for Iowa State This Afternoon.

ONE ON INJURED LIST

Swanson Out With Broken Wrist; Koster Will Be Back In.

With few serious injuries as the result of the fray at Manhattan Saturday, Coach Dana X. Bible gave his men an opportunity to rest Monday evening before a week of training for the decisive home game to be played against Iowa State this week end. Swanson is the only man the Kaggies sent back to Lincoln in a disabled condition. He is suffering from a broken wrist bone. Koster's bruised shin bone is causing him some trouble but will not hinder him in the coming game.

Clarence Nelson, who is scheduled to be game captain for the Iowa State game, broke a wrist bone in the Nubbins game with Kearney Normal last Friday and will not see action next Saturday but will retain his title and will be present when the coin is flipped.

Altho it is thought by most Husker followers that Nebraska already has the Big Six championship in the bag, the statement Coach Bible made Monday night tends to point out that it may not be safe to claim the title until the final shot of the gun next Saturday. Coach Bible said, "Iowa State has succeeded in upsetting the dope bucket in every conference game they have played this year. Before each game they have been slated to lose, but they have managed to pull thru on top. They have a strong defense which they are able to muster in pinches, and it is a hard one to score against."

Most of the varsity appeared on the field in sweat suits for a short period of exercises, but a sudden shower caused the practice to be continued in the dressing room in the form of signal practice and a lecture from Coach Bible.

Few new offense plays will be put into effect this week. The team will concentrate on improving the technique of those plays already in use. The points that Bible emphasized to his men were that they must play "a little lower, a little harder, and a little faster."

Saturday's game will be the last home one for several of Nebraska's most reliable players. This is another reason why the Cornhuskers can be expected to show added spirit and exhibit that brand of football which has been evident at times in preceding games.

CAMERA CATCHES ACTION IN SATURDAY GAME

High Henry Cronkite, stellar end of "Bo" McMillan's Kansas State Wildcat grid machine, is shown in the upper photograph just as he successfully booted a placement from the Nebraska 38-yard line to score the only Kaggie point at Manhattan Saturday afternoon. Wildcat blockers are shown protecting the kicker.

The lower photo shows Sauer hitting the Kaggie line for a five yard gain in the third quarter. The run was made just before the long Husker march to the Kansas State 7-yard line, only to be stopped. Lewie Brown's 70-yard runback of Auker's punt late in the fourth quarter saved the game from what looked like a sure win for the Aggies.

CLOSE RACE LOOMS FOR TENNIS CROWN

Matches in Semi-Finals Are Miller - Gardner and Sherman-Nye.

The all-university tennis tourney has reached the semifinals with Harold Sherman slated to play Charles Nye in the lower bracket and Joe Miller scheduled to go up against Al Gardner in the other match.

Sherman, who has completed three years of competition on Gregg McBride's university racquet team is a favorite to win the championship. In Nye, however, he meets a steady, clever player who may test him to the limit.

The other semifinal brings together two evenly matched performers in Miller and Gardner. Miller was freshman champion two years ago and a member of the Husker tennis squad last spring. This year is Gardner's first at Nebraska, but he has played at Antioch college in Ohio. His play has been one of the features of the tournament, according to those who have watched his work.

A gold medal will be awarded the tournament champion, with a silver medal going to the runner-up.

PANTHERS PASS WAY TO WIN OVER CADETS

Pitt Aerial Attack Nets Quartet Touchdowns Against Army.

Coach Jock Sutherland's Pittsburgh Panthers unleashed a brilliant passing attack Saturday afternoon to completely rout the Army, 26 to 0. All four of Pitt's touchdowns came via the aerial route, while the powerful line held the Cadets far away from the Panther goal.

Pittsburgh rolled up 302 yards by their passes while holding the Cadets to a total of 32 yards from scrimmage. Several stout hearted stands on their own goal line by the Army kept the score from running much higher.

There was never a doubt of the outcome. Heller and Reider tore huge holes in the Army forward wall for long gains and then dropped back and tossed passes to score.

Pittsburgh is Nebraska's Thanksgiving day opponent. The game will be played at Pittsburgh.

One week in the infirmary for appendicitis—the next week the hero of a great football game. That is the record of Lewis Brown, Husker quarter who ran seventy yards in the closing minutes of play to win from the Aggies. The huge Nebraska delegation seemed to sense that something was going to happen when Brown caught the punt on the dead run. As he started down the field, everyone stood up—the Nebraska section hoping for a touchdown and the Aggies supporters begging their team to stop him. It seemed that he would be forced out of bounds several times in the run, and how he escaped the Wildcat tacklers is a mystery to me. But he did it in a splendid example of what grit and determination will do. What a beautiful run—it will live in the memories of every fan that saw the game.

Coach "Bo" McMillan had difficulty in keeping the center of his line intact. He was forced to use three centers before the game was over, the last one going into a game for the first time. Ely was certainly playing havoc with the Aggie centers, and incidentally was breaking thru to spill the backs before they could get started. Rhea was playing the same kind of a game, and easily proved his superiority over any other tackle in the conference. He has even more of a right to all American honors this year than he did last. It will probably all depend upon his showing against Pittsburgh Thanksgiving day when the eastern fans will be given a chance to see him in action.

Now that other departments of The Nebraskan have taken up our fight for "walking" dates, we can rest a little. Many of the big shots on the campus seem to favor the idea, altho the girls didn't rise up in any great demonstration of enthusiasm. Naturally it shouldn't worry them any if the boys have to rent cars, but they may still come around to the idea. A couple of dead evenings at home might make them see the right thing to do.

Football players at Kansas Aggies seem to all be journalists. At least the editors of the program are: Wiggins, Breen, Auker and a couple of more prominent football stars. It might be a good way of going thru school at that.

"This system that McMillan uses is one that is confusing at times. You can never be real sure just who he has in the backfield. For example, Saturday he jerked a tackle and replaced him with a fullback, and the substitute saw work in the backfield. Also, Cronkite comes back from end position to pass and place kick. This place kick that gave Aggies the first three points was a beauty. You could hear the thud of the shoe hitting the ball all over the field and the ball sailed squarely between the posts and was still going up when it cleared the bar. Auker was another stellar player for the Aggies. His kicking gave the Wildcats a big advantage.

Only one more game remains between the Huskers and a championship. By every way you can look at it Nebraska should win, but you can never tell in football. The Aggies ran Iowa State all over the field, yet came out on the low end of the score. We'll put our money on the Huskers though. No team realizes what a good line is until they hit that forward wall of the Cornhuskers. Any time Nebraska gets within the ten yard line we doubt very much if the Cyclone line can hold.

"The Growler" seemed highly indignant over the terming of the Nebraska team "Bibleites" or "Biblemen" in a news story. There is an excuse, a very good one in fact, for using these terms. I'd like to see the Growler write a football story in which the Huskers are referred to fifteen or twenty times without resorting to the use of these names. As long as the public wants variety in their stories, and repetition is monotonous, then will the sports writer be compelled to use the term "Biblemen." It is not meant to play up the coach to any outlandish degree, and I doubt seriously if the public feels that way. Coach Bible deserves a great amount of praise for the team he has developed this year, yet I have not seen any case where the team itself was not given its full share of credit. Of course, it is just one of those things that some people don't understand.

SOONER GRID SQUAD TO PLAY AT HAWAII

Team Will Meet Champions of Honolulu Senior League.

FANS ACCOMPANY TEAM

NORMAN—The Sooner football squad that goes to Hawaii will ride two different steamship lines and three different railroads, according to the Sooner itinerary announced today by Athletic Director Ben G. Owen.

The only possible deviation from this itinerary might result in the Sooner party's embarking from Tulsa Dec. 13, instead of from Oklahoma City. The Sooners will be in Tulsa for the Dec. 12 charity game with Tulsa university and might find it more convenient to leave from that city.

However, present plans call for the squad's leaving from Oklahoma City at 1:10 p. m., Dec. 13, riding the Rock Island line to Los Angeles, where they will arrive at 8:55 a. m., Dec. 15, and traveling from Los Angeles to San Francisco via the Southern Pacific road.

Boarding the steamship Matsonia from the San Francisco dock Dec. 15, the Sooners will spend six days on the Pacific ocean until Honolulu is reached Dec. 22.

Coach Adrian Lindsey's squad will then have three days to limber up and make ready for their first Hawaiian contest, that against the champion of the Honolulu Senior Football league Christmas day in the Honolulu stadium. According to dope, this foe may be the strong St. Louis alumni team which defeated the University of Hawaii last week, 20 to 13. After playing the New Years game against the University of Hawaii, the Sooners will leave Honolulu Jan. 2 on the Lasso steamship line for the seven day return voyage to Los Angeles, and will arrive home in Oklahoma City via Santa Fe at 7:35 a. m., Jan. 12. Several Sooner fans have declared they will accompany the team to Honolulu.

The organizing committee has arranged for the use of a splendid pavilion for the fencing events, which will be held from July 31 to Aug. 13. This pavilion, which is the California state armory, is located in Olympic park, near Olympic stadium, and is of concrete and steel construction, surmounted by a glass roof which provides natural light. The floor measures 90 by 45 meters, and will accommodate eight regulation fencing mats. The pavilion is arranged to seat several thousand spectators.

The Growler

By HARRY FOSTER

This shows the effect of association. To begin at the beginning I must go back to the Northwestern game. Four of the Husker huskies missed the train at Evanston and had to get an iron horse to catch the team's train. Coming home from Manhattan a similar event occurred. One of the huskie Huskers who missed the train out of Chi was in the company of ye skribbler. We were standing by a hamburger joint in Marysville, Kansas, talking to a couple of Nebraska rooters who were traveling to Lincoln via automobile. We heard a couple of toots. We looked around. The train was pulling out. We ran. Coach Browne on the observation platform offered encouragement. We were so exhausted that we couldn't even catch that snail special. We gave up. Taking advantage of the offer of the kind student from Nebraska we piled into a rumble seat and sailed down the highway. At Beatrice we inquired if the student special had arrived. We had to wait twenty-five minutes for it. All of which goes to show what association will do for you.

The scene occurs at the pass gate at Manhattan, Kansas. The time is immediately before the game. The characters are the

Greek Basketeers Present Show as Tournament Opens

And now that the intramural basketball season has started, you may find between the walls of the coliseum sweating groups of scantily clad fraternity hoopers battling for their societies almost any night.

It looks like pandemonium. And usually it is. But once in a while you see some lithe young man coming up from obscurity to win honors on the basketball court. It's hard to understand how some of these escape going out for the team, for it is evident from their skillful play that they might easily qualify.

Perhaps they have been heroes in high school, but have cast all that behind them. Who knows? But more often than admiration, the antics of the Greek basketeers call forth only laughter. Gawky and spindly, the hairy shanks of "cakes" may lend an entirely new light to their reputations. And the fat boys... they're always good for misdirected humor. Poor things! How some of them pant!

Speaking of pants, did you ever notice the glorious but molley attire of the prancing "courtiers"? Everything from dirty cords to flimsy remnants of prep school days. Shoes, of course, are anything but uniform, ranging in variety from rubber-soled "sneakers" to revamped carpet slippers.

There is a great deal of effort put forth in the intramural basketball games, and some of the contests are as close and exciting as real "big game" tilts. The language is often loose, but so is much of the variegated clothing. And even in defeat the clowning players seem to have a world of fun.

The movement on foot to use the feet in going to fetes touches the soul. The idea to walk your date isn't a new innovation. The renaissance number of the Awgwan will prove that. It seems to simmer down to this. If you have a car you are willing to ride, if you don't why not walk? It looks like a compromise to me.
