Wrestling is proving to be a flourishing activity on the sports calendar of the Agricultural college. A squad of about fifteen men have been working out regularly since the first week in November under the tutelage of Dick Blore, national intercollegiate 115-pound champion in 1925.

Eight weight classes, ranging from the 115 pound class to heavyweight, are represented on the squad. The strongest competition is found among the 135-pounders with Lowenstein, intramural champion and Hoagmeyer having the edge on the others.
